ROBINS SHUT OUT INDIANS IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES

Grimes Puts National Leaguers Back on Even Terms with Rivals by 3 to 0 Victory.

IS MASTER AT ALL TIMES

BROOKLYN FANS CHEERFUL

WEATHER BUREAU PREDICTS RISING TEMPERATURE TODAY

Slowly rising temperature for the third game of the world's series at Ebbets Field this afternoon was promised last night by the weather man. The wind will continue to be brisk. "Fair today and Friday with slowly rising temperature" was the official prediction.

The ruffled Brooklyn Robins thrust adversity behind them at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon and leaped out of the realm of despair by defeating the Cleveland Indians in the second game of the world series by a score of 3 to 0. Each club has taken one game, and from now on it looks like a real battle. In evening up the count the Brooklyns displayed the fighting spirit which overcomes obstacles and showed that Uncle Robbie's team has the gameness and spunk to make it dangerous.

While Brooklyn's victory wasn't proclaimed with unlimited fervor by the home crowd, there was more enthusiasm than on the cold opening day, and there were several tense moments when the nerves of the amateur sentiment were tuned to high C. The Indians were always menacing and many times were on the verge of driving their tomahawks home.

The pitcher before whom the Cleveland sluggers paled yesterday was Burleigh Grimes, a master of the aqueous toss. Grimes played tricks with his spitball against the Clevelands, just as Coveleskie did against the Robins in the opening game. While the Indians got the same number of hits off Grimes as the Dodgers did off Sergt. Jim Bagby—seven—the Brooklyn hitsmiths grouped their raps effectively, while Grimes was cunning enough to keep the Cleveland slaps duly scattered.

Grimes Gives Fans a Scare.

Not a Cleveland runner got beyond second base until the eighth inning, when Grimes suffered an alarming attack of wildness, but after jamming the corners with inhabitants of the Forest City he coolly twirled his way out of the difficulty. In this eighth inning Jamison perched himself on third, and was the only Indian who advanced that far. It was at this moment when it looked bad for Grimes that the flinger measured up to his job. Jamieson walked to start the eighth and Manager Speaker sent up George Burns to hit in place of Wambsgans, the second baseman. Grimes had lost control of the ball and he also walked Burns. The efficient Speaker came to the bat and the crowd expected the worst. The Indian leader, however, banged a hot grounder to Pete Kilduff, which was so swift that Pete was just able to knock it down. He recovered the ball in time to throw Tris out at first, while Jamieson went to third and Burns to second. Elmer Smith, at times a notorious home-run hitter, cocked his eye on the right field wall and swung with all his might. Grimes's spitball was working famously and Elmer hoisted a foul fly to Otto Miller.

This man at the bat is Larry Gardner, whose bat is chock full of dynamite in a pinch. Burleigh Grimes better watch out for this fellow. The crowd sat back pop-eyed to see what Larry was going to do. Grimes was careful not to throw Gardner a good ball, and while he was trying to fool him with tosses close to the inside he wasted too many, and Gardner walked and jammed the bases.

Tense Moment with Bases Filled.

The bases are filled, with two out, and Doc Johnston, Jimmy's brother, is at the bat. Here was a moment of dramatic silence and the spectators came forward to the edge of their seats as Doc faced the faltering Grimes. The pitcher looked over to the bench at Uncle Robbie and saw that his boss was taking a drink of water. When Uncle Robbie is troubled, and the moment seems with tense excitement, he always goes over to the big bottle at the end of the Brooklyn bench and takes a drink of water.

Grimes looked at his manager's face for some sign or order. He saw nothing but that natural, bland, confident smile. Not a wrinkle of worry could be seen on Robbie's countenance, and Grimes felt better. This remarkable faith which Uncle Robbie has in his pitchers is a great thing, and when Grimes again peered at Johnston he had decided that he was going to pitch as he had never pitched before. Johnston was nervous under the heavy responsibility which weighed him down. That was just what Grimes wanted to give him final assurance.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 6.—The southbound Pittsfield Express on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was held up fifteen minutes this morning just north of the Lenox Station by an obstinate bull moose that had come down from Harry Payne Whitney's game preserve on October Mountain.

The big, ungainly animal was stalking between the rails when first seen by the engineer, who stopped his train, and the crew after much persuasion drove him away.

CLEARED $800,000 AS TRAVIS'S AGENT

MARKET PRICE EXCEEDED

The profits which Albert L. Judson, broker, of 30 East Forty-second Street, made in buying bonds for the office of State Controller Eugene Travis, amounted to about $800,000 on purchases of about $30,000,000 worth of municipal securities. These figures were given by bank officials and bond specialists in the John Doe inquiry before Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan of Special Sessions, sitting as a Magistrate, into charges against the way the Controller's office obtained bonds for the State Sinking Fund.

It was brought out that Judson swung deals in millions without putting up a cent in cash or collateral.

It was testified that Controller Travis had purchased $2,000,000 worth of bonds at 89½ when, according to a witness and to Assistant District Attorney Pecora, who is conducting the inquiry, the market price was about 82.

It also was revealed that Mr. Judson in negotiating one loan had deposited as collateral 100 shares of stock in The Albany Journal, the newspaper published by William Barnes, sometimes referred to as a "Republican boss."

The Day's Witnesses.

The day's witnesses were Bertram Cruger, treasurer of the Metropolitan Trust Company, which has Judson's account; Arthur W. McKay, former manager of the securities department and now assistant cashier of the Mechanics & Metals National Bank, and William S. Fanshawe of William S. Fanshawe & Co., brokers, at 11 Pine Street, and specialists in State and municipal bonds. It was Fanshawe who testified the Controller had bought the bonds at a figure in excess of the open market price, and in giving this evidence said he, personally, had lost $88,000 on the transaction.

Mr. Fanshawe was told what a waiver of immunity meant and refused to sign one. He said he sustained the $88,000 loss through buying the bonds at 94-plus and selling at 89½. He testified Judson had instructed him to buy $4,000,000 worth of bonds at 94-plus, and then had refused to accept the purchase on the ground that the State was out of funds. Then the market began to sag and Mr. Fanshawe said he found himself saddled with $4,000,000 of bonds. It took him about a year, he testified, to sell approximately half of his Judson holdings to Mr. Travis.

"Morally," he testified in response to questions by Mr. Pecora, "the Controller was under obligation to purchase the bonds," because, Mr. Fanshawe said, he had "always considered Judson as the Controller's agent."

Conference with the Controller.

Mr. Fanshawe said the sale of the $2,000,000 block of bonds at 89½ was arranged at a conference with Controller Travis in the Empire Trust Company. This conference lasted an hour and a half, but Mr. Fanshawe's recollection of the conversation was limited. He quoted Mr. Travis as declaring at the outset that he would not buy the bonds at Mr. Fanshawe's figure "in justice to the State." He also said the Controller had denied he authorized Mr. Judson to get $4,000,000 worth of bonds together.

As a result of the $88,000 loss, the witness testified, he gave notes in that sum to the Empire Trust Company and debited Judson for that amount, for, he explained, he had bought on the agent's instructions and he thought he should make good the decline. According to Mr. Fanshawe, Judson still owes him and he still owes Mr. Judson. He informed Justice Kernochan—who was manifestly astonished that such a debt should run three years without collection—that he had telephoned Mr. Judson once about it and the agent had promised to look into the matter. Later, the broker said, he had talked to a lawyer about it. He said he had made partial payments to the Empire Trust Company on the renewed notes.

Bank's Fees Were $250.

From the evidence of Mr. Cruger it appeared that George C. Van Tuyl, former Superintendent of the State Banking Department and subsequently President of the Metropolitan Trust Company, was a close personal friend of Mr. Judson. It was this witness who told of the Barnes stock, a side light interjected in discussion of a minor loan of $40,000 which is still to Judson's credit at the bank.

For clearing transactions totaling almost $18,000,000 between Judson and the State Controller's office, Mr. Cruger said the Metropolitan received only $250 in fees. This charge was made for service and was applied on the last transaction in the Spring of 1920 only. For all the other transactions the trust company paid out and received millions without charge of any kind. The witness said he was unfamiliar with the arrangements between the bank and Mr. Judson, testifying that these details probably had been arranged between Mr. Judson and Mr. Van Tuyl, who is still a member of the Metropolitan's Board of Directors.

The inquiry will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock. An attorney promised to have Mr. Judson on hand at 2 o'clock for questioning, and George Z. Medalie of Wasservogel & Medalie said Mr. Travis would appear on Saturday morning.

WARSHIP GUIDED INTO PORT BY RADIO PILOTING CABLE

NEW INVENTION A TRIUMPH

The navy gave yesterday a demonstration of the radio piloting cable which it is developing as a safeguard to vessels of the merchant marine at sea and to facilitate their entrance into harbor when fog is heavy. With his pilot house windows covered with a heavy canvas Commander Norton of the Destroyer Semmes piloted his vessel from near the Ambrose Channel Lightship to Fort Lafayette in the Narrows, following a magnetized pilot cable. He picked up the cable and guided the Semmes in by "listening in" and steering to port and starboard as the volume of sound indicated his position.

Like the little girl who wrote on her Lincoln composition "I did this with a little help from mother," the Commander was assisted by one of his officers who once warned him, "You are at the turn, sir," and again, "Your course now is 33, sir." Radio men who watched the piloting of the Semmes said afterward that they considered the demonstration to have been a success.

Yesterday's public tryout of the radio piloting cable was incident to a series of experiments the navy has been conducting since Aug. 6, when the cable used was laid in the sixteen-mile fairway of Ambrose Channel, from Fort Lafayette to near the Ambrose Channel Lightship. The source of power consists of a 500-cycle motor generator located at Fort Lafayette. This delivered approximately 3.5 amperes of current to the cable at 375 volts, the current being interrupted by a transmitter and at the test the word "navy" in the continental Morse code was spelled out at frequent intervals. This is the "noise" that comes to the pilot through the receivers pressed to his ears by the headpiece and the effect is the same as though listening to a telegraph instrument clicking, though with a softened sound.

Sails Into Magnetic Field.

There is created about the cable an electro-magnetic field and into this the vessel sailed. Visible evidence of the piloting device on the Semmes was a small table back of the wheelman on which were the amplifiers and the apparatus used for the reception of signals fastened to the sides of the destroyer above the water line and just where the superstructure breaks the line of the deck. These reception instruments were held at an angle from the side of the vessel and they look like large picture frames painted black. They consist of two coils, each made up on several hundred turns of small copper wire wound in the form of a square.

"The coils are connected through a switch to a two-stage vacuum tube amplifier, in which instrument the current, induced in the coils by the rise and fall of the magnetic field with alternation of the 500-cycle supply current, is magnified approximately 400 times, and being of an audible frequency, acts both on the diaphragms of the telephone receivers in the same manner as the voice modulated currents do in ordinary telephone receivers," a statement by the Navy Radio Service explained.

"In view of the fact that the direction of the field is concentric to the cable and that its intensity is greatest in the centre of this field or directly around the cable, it is obvious that the strength of the receiving energy will vary with the distance of the coils from the cable. The intensity of the received energy also varies with the position of the coils in respect to the magnetic field, it being greatest when the plane of the coil is parallel to the cable. In approaching the cable the signal will first be heard in the coil nearest the side of the cable owing to the shielding effect of the vessel's hull. This renders the system distinctive to the extent of being able to determine on which side of the vessel the cable lies."

Radio Experts Aboard.

The Semmes picked up her passengers off the Battery about 11 o'clock. They were brought out from the barge office pier on the navy tug Algoma. In the party were Commander R. F. McConnell, in charge of radio activities in the Third Naval District; H. J. Lang, radio expert, Brooklyn Navy Yard; Earl Hanson, whose amplifiers were said to have made the cable pilot possible; A. Crossley, radio aid, Bureau of Engineers, Navy Department, and J. F. Shaughnessy, radio aid, Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Just before the Semmes reached Fort Lafayette at the Narrows, the generator end of the cable, half a dozen head pieces were fitted to the instruments on the table and those who could crowd into the space beside the wheel were allowed to listen when the pilot cable was picked up and follow the course of the ship as it passed out to the light-

Reds Sign Armistice With Poles; Also Make Peace With the Finns

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Government today received a telegram from Riga stating that the heads of the Polish and Russian delegations there had agreed to the signing of an armistice and of the fundamental preliminaries of peace.

The terms agreed to, it is understood, are the terms offered by the Poles. The success of the negotiations has owed much to the influence of Prince Sapieha. It is probable that the armistice line will run through Boronovitchi, Pinsk and Rovno. East of that line the Poles, it is understood, will acquiesce in whatever government the Russians may set up in White Russia and the Ukraine and will not insist on any special form of government.

The chief provisions of the agreement include a demand that the Bolsheviki shall desist from propaganda in Poland and restore Polish national treasures. Russia, of course, is to recognize fully the independence and sovereignty of Poland.

The question of East Galicia, it is expected, will be settled between the Allies and Poland. The Russians abandoned their demand with regard to East Galicia.

WARSAW, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—Dispatches from Riga say that hostilities between the Poles and Russian Soviet forces will cease Friday under an armistice signed by the Polish and Soviet peace delegates yesterday.

RIGA, Oct. 6.—It was said this morning at the headquarters of the Polish delegation that M. Joffe, head of the Russian mission, had accepted virtually as a whole the Polish peace draft based on the eleven points framed by the Riga delegation and made public at the beginning of the Riga conference.

There are understood to be fifteen points in the new draft. The details of two of these points have not been worked out, although the points have been accepted in principle. The working out will probably be completed today.

The Poles have defined a boundary based on ethnographic lines which has been accepted but not yet written into the draft by the secretariat.

The boundary will cut off Lithuania entirely from Russia, granting Poland a corridor between, it was authoritatively stated at the headquarters of the Polish peace delegation here.

The line as virtually agreed upon begins to the east of Dvinsk, runs south through Baranovitchi, Luninietz and Sarny and practically along the German line of 1915 to the Rumanian boundary.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 6.—The Russo-Finnish peace treaty has been accepted by both the Russians and the Finns at the Dorpat conference. It will be signed as soon as it has been printed.

4 SEIZED IN WALL ST. BOMB INVESTIGATION

IDENTIFY THREE AS BANDITS

In the belief that members of the Bresci and Galliani groups of anarchists were responsible for the Wall Street explosion on Sept. 16, which caused the death of thirty-seven persons, detectives of the Bomb Squad yesterday, in conjunction with agents of the Department of Justice, arrested Giacomo Carusso, 24 years old, a barber and tailor, of 175 Roosevelt Avenue, Corona, Queens, and three other men, who the police declare are intimates of Carusso.

Carusso, according to William J. Flynn, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, had been under surveillance since January last in connection with the sending of thirty-six bombs through the mail in May, 1919; the explosion of a bomb in front of the residence of Judge Charles C. Nott, 151 East Sixty-third Street, and the attempt to blow up the Washington home of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, in June, 1919. He was arrested by Detective Sergeant Cornelius Browne of the Bomb Squad as he was entering a Second Avenue elevated train at the Chatham Square station. A loaded pistol was found in his pocket. He was taken immediately to Police Headquarters to be questioned by Detective Sergeant James J. Gegan and several Department of Justice agents.

Anarchist Literature in Home.

After the man had been under examination for more than two hours Detective Sergeant Browne and ten members of the Bomb Squad made a flying trip to Carusso's home in Corona, where, they allege, they found a short-barrelled shot gun and two suit cases packed with anarchist literature.

When they had placed their find in one of the automobiles the detectives crossed the Queensboro Bridge to Manhattan and drove to First Avenue and Sixteenth Street, where they met half a dozen agents of the Department of Justice, who were hiding in doorways. The detectives and Chief Flynn's men then broke up in pairs, and while Detective Sergeant Browne led one group to the barber shop conducted by Charles Fasulo, 24 years old, at 411 East Fifteenth Street, another group went to a tenement house in East Sixteenth Street, and covered the rear of Fasulo's place to prevent anybody in the barber shop from escaping.

Detective Sergeant Gegan said that when Browne and the members of his group of detectives entered Fasulo's place, they found fourteen men in the place, including the proprietor and Vincenzo Abato, 22 years old, of 274 First Avenue and Frank Ferro, 23 years old, of 413 East Fifteenth Street. A patrol wagon was called from the East Twenty-second Street Station, and after the men had been placed in the vehicle the detectives searched the barber shop.

Powder Like an Explosive Found.

In the bottom of a closet in the rear of the shop the detectives said they found two bags of what they believe to be an explosive such as is used by anarchists and the Black Hand in the construction of bombs. The powder was placed in the automobile containing the shotgun and suitcases of anarchist literature and the detectives started for Police Headquarters with the men found in the barber shop. Fasulo later said he had found the powder in his yard some time ago.

Meanwhile examination of Carusso had continued but, according to Detective Sergeant Gegan, he denied all knowledge of the Wall Street explosion.

Chief Flynn had been in communication with Gegan from the time Carusso was arrested. He had previously informed Gegan that his agents had trailed Carusso and five other men to Waterbury, Conn., on Sept. 22 last, six days after the Wall Street explosion, and that, although his men lost the trail in the Italian section of Waterbury, they obtained information which led

CLEGG SEES DANGER IN SHIP CONTRACT

INDORSES JONES SHIP LAW

Alfred F. Clegg, Vice President of the Kerr Steamship Company, which withdrew from the plan for using Government-controlled American ships for the reopening of German prewar trade routes in connection with the Hamburg-American Line, issued a statement yesterday criticising the contract made public on Tuesday providing for this use of American ships.

The contract between the Hamburg-American Line and the American Ship and Commerce Company was made public by W. A. Harriman, President of the latter company, who defended the contract as being in the interest of the United States. The contract was also indorsed by Admiral Benson, head of the Shipping Board, who described it as a "heaven-sent" opportunity.

Mr. Clegg reviewed the contract, clause by clause, alleging that the instrument was loosely drawn and that it provided a one-sided bargain by which enormous advantages would be reaped by Germany. He asserted that the arrangement was not in the interest of the future of the American merchant marine, but simply provided for the use of American ships for the rebuilding of the German carrying trade.

"If Shipping Board steamers are operated under this contract," Mr. Clegg said, "the loss to the taxpayer will be enormous, with no compensating benefit such as building up the carrying trade for the future. If the provisions of the Jones bill are enforced, an American marine can be sustained without an alliance of this one-sided character."

Hints at Secret Agreement.

Mr. Clegg alleged that the compact between the American company and the Hamburg-American Line was not completely expressed in the published contract, but that further agreements had been reached by letters so far kept secret. He said:

"For some reason Harriman has not made public a letter signed on the 19th of June, 1920, by the corporation and the Hamburg-American Line, which provides for further agreements, among others one 'relative to accounting and settlement as between the parties with regard to the receipts of the services provided for in the general agreement.'"

Mr. Clegg makes separate criticisms on the general agreement and the operating agreement, prefacing his comments with this paragraph:

"GENERAL AGREEMENT.

"A document substantially in this form was first executed by W. A. Harriman & Co., and after control by Chandler & Harriman was secured, the American Ship and Commerce Corporation took over the commitment, as is shown in this general agreement. This general agreement might be called a 'contract of intentions,' and makes way for what is an 'agreement on principles,' which is referred to as exhibit A."

"Exhibit A, Section 2—The fundamental principles of equal participation is just only after contributions and sacrifices are equal. It would be bad enough if the Hamburg-American Line contributed nothing yet secured equality, but as the operating agreement is at present drawn, the Americans contribute everything and are repeatedly and consistently penalized.

"Section 3—As window dressing the following is excellent:

"The parties propose to inaugurate a passenger service between ports of the United States and German ports, but turning to the operating agreement, Section 3, it is seen that the Americans are obliged to put in 40,000 tons of passenger ships within one year.

German Company Fixes Rates.

"Section 4—On services from Germany to the United States and to and from Germany and countries other than the United States, the Hamburg-American Line will fix the rates.

When American manufacturers learn that the pre-war practices of foreign steamship companies of manipulating ocean rates, in order that export orders may be diverted from the United States to the workshops of Germany but that the manipulation is this time to be done on American Government steamers, they will, doubtless, consider some modification of the plan necessary.

"Section 8—This gives the parties mutual right to transfer to others the

WILL PAY BEST, HE HOLDS

ALEXANDER SUPPORTS PLEA

American Secretary Explains That We Seek Only to Provide for Our Expanding Trade.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Adequate world trade development by Great Britain and the United States requires that both nations lay their cards on the table, Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, declared tonight at a dinner given by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to representatives of the British Chamber of Commerce here as guests of the American organization.

The Ambassador insisted that there was greater desire in Great Britain for close business co-operation with America than has been indicated by many American writers. He has learned from these writers, he said, "how diabolically clever the British, more especially the English, are, and with what Machiavellian duplicity the British push their trade."

Economic waste results when each nation regards the other's commercial and financial activities with suspicion, he said, adding:

"I believe that it is imperative that each country should play the great game of world trade, so important to us both, with its cards upon the table in so far as trade is supported and developed by national, that is, political, action.

"Secrecy breeds suspicion, the mother of hostility. I believe that full reciprocity in frankness is essential if we are to avoid difficulties. I believe most strongly that in spite of possible local diminutions of profit, co-operation between our nations will pay us both best in the long run."

The Ambassador denied published reports that the British Government had resold to the German Government a number of German ships with the object of hindering the development of the American mercantile marine.

"Utter nonsense," he said, adding:

"The British Parliament under the leadership of the Government has made it illegal for a period of years to sell any ship in British hands to Germany or to Germans."

Reverting to his theme of mutual understanding, the Ambassador said:

"If the English-speaking peoples work together, no half-baked Communists or militarist adventurers will long continue to disturb the resettling world."

Echoing the Ambassador's plea for co-operation, Secretary Alexander of the Department of Commerce told of American merchant marine policy.

"The United States does not contemplate any attempt to drive other nations out of the shipping business," he said. "On the other hand, I am only stating what is fair when I say it is the policy of this country to own and to operate a fair share of the world's shipping. The requirements of her growing import and export trade are so great that commercially, as well as from a broader national standpoint, our former position was an anomaly. But we simply want ships enough to take care of our own expanding business."

Secretary Alexander said that while rivalries as a result of international competition cannot be avoided, they "can be harmonized and localized," adding:

"We are a little apt, perhaps, to become unduly excited about the things which would not disturb our equilibrium in more normal times."

Threats Sent to Owners and Merchants to Close While Prices Are Low.

ATLANTA, Oct. 6.—The destruction of several cotton gins and business houses in the cotton belt after anonymous threats had been received by operators and business men to cease activities while cotton selling at what many farmers termed prices below the cost of production, has resulted in the placing of armed guards around several gins and the closing of business in at least one community.

The burning of the second gin in the Stamford, Texas, territory within two days was reported last night. The general mercantile establishment of Taylor & Barnette at Hanceville, Ala., was destroyed yesterday after the proprietors had ignored orders to close it until cotton was selling at 40 cents a pound.

Business houses at New Hanceville, whose proprietors received similar warnings, closed yesterday, but stores at Garden City and Hanceville, and gins in the vicinity, remained open under armed guard.

Threats have also been received by business men in Georgia and South Carolina. Warnings posted on gins at Bowman, Ga., read: "We, the citizens of everywhere, kindly ask that this ginnery be closed until November, 1920, unless further notified. Please take notice."

Red Cross Gives $500,000 For Chinese Famine Relief

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Half a million dollars for the relief of famine sufferers in the Peking, China, district has been appropriated by the American Red Cross.

It was announced at the State Department today that the fund would be expended under the joint supervision of the Red Cross and the State Department.

An appeal for relief was received several days ago from Minister Crane, at Peking, who told of the distress in the Peking district where thousands are without food. This appeal was immediately reported to the Red Cross.

A cable message has been sent to Mr. Crane outlining the measures to be adopted, the action already taken here and the arrangements for distribution of effective relief.

LLOYD GEORGE SURE WE WILL JOIN LEAGUE

Says We Will Enter After Election—Wants Germany Also, to Make Body Effective.

DISCUSSES IRISH POLICY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Premier Lloyd George has given an interview for publication in the first number of a new 6-penny magazine entitled The Lloyd George Liberal Magazine, which will be issued tomorrow. "In Defense of the Coalition" is the heading on the interview, and this is taken, together with the title of the magazine, to sufficiently indicate the purposes of its publication.

The chief points of interest in the interview, outside of purely domestic British politics, are Ireland and the League of Nations. On the latter point the Prime Minister was asked: "Do not the independent Liberals quarrel with you very severely over your alleged failure to give proper support to the League of Nations?"

Mr. Lloyd George's reply was: "We shall not have an effective League of Nations until all the nations come in. You must have America within the League of Nations, and also Germany. Germany should be allowed to come in once she proves that she will respect her treaty obligations. I believe that she will, but now she is on her trial. If she gives proof of good faith Germany will be welcomed within the League.

"I believe, too, that America will come in after the Presidential election. When those two events happen the League of Nations will become an effective instrument. At present it is only a league of the Allies."

His Views on Ireland.

With regard to home rule for Ireland the interviewer said: "We are told that your coalition politics have ruined that cause. What is your reply?"

The Prime Minister answered, referring to recent suggestions that dominion home rule be granted:

"The situation would be far worse than it is now. Suppose we had reintroduced the Home Rule bill of the Liberal Government and gone back to the situation of 1914, when we agreed that home rule should be placed on the statute book only on condition that it should be seriously amended. If party warfare had been renewed on the initiation of the Liberty party, the Unionist party would have been tempted to resist the new policy with the full power of their old hostility to home rule, and that hostility would have been strengthened by the record of Ireland during the later years of the war.

"I don't want to go back on that record, but it contains some serious blots. Would not the Unionist party have reminded us of the championship which the Sinn Fein gave to Germany at a critical moment of the struggle? The irreconcilable section of the Unionist party, as voiced in The Morning Post, is evan now making that reminder day by day. If we had had no coalition that protest would have been the prevailing voice of the Unionist opposition, and we should have been further from an Irish settlement than we are today."

Under the subheading "Does Mr. Asquith know what he means?" the interview continues with the following question:

"Asquithians allege that they would, if they came into power, carry dominion home rule, which would be an advance on any Irish policy yet promoted by the British Government. What do you say to that?"

Says Asquith Is Irresponsible.

The Prime Minister replied: "Well, I asked Mr. Asquith in the House of Commons to tell me what he meant by dominion home rule, and he refused to reply to my question. I do not think that that was quite fair or worthy of his great parliamentary reputation.

"It is all very well for an opposition to play with those terms. They can talk in phrases. I have to talk in acts of Parliament. They can speak at large about self-determination and dominion home rule, but I have to put all these things into the clauses of a bill."

"What is your difficulty about dominion home rule?" was asked. The Premier replied: "There is the difficulty about the army and navy. Do they intend to give Ireland, as it stands at present, full control of her own military and naval affairs? Otherwise their proposal ceases to be dominion home rule in the sense in which that phrase is accepted through-

President Wires That He Will Let People of Missouri Decide Who Is Telling Truth.

REED BACKS UP COLLEAGUE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—President Wilson, who yesterday denied by telegraph to Senator Spencer of Missouri that while in Paris he had promised American military aid to Rumania and Serbia, received today a request from the Senator, asking whether at the Peace Conference he said to Premier Brattiano of Rumania that "if the world is again troubled the United States will send to this side of the water their army and their fleet." To this the President sent this reply:

The White House,
Washington, 6 October, 1920.

Hon. Selden P. Spencer, St. Louis, Mo.

I am perfectly content to leave it to the voters of Missouri to determine which of us is telling the truth.

WOODROW WILSON.

The controversy over the matter of the President alleged statements took a wider range today. Senator Spencer, according to Western advices, is sending the President another message, asking whether any such "agreement," as was reported, was made by the President at the Peace Conference, and urging that the official records ought to show.

Senator Reed, in a message from Kansas City to Senator Spencer, who asked him for information, repeated his original charge, made in the Senate last Febrary, that President Wilson had pledged military aid to Rumania and Serbia.

The Republican National Committee also jumped into the fray with a statement aiming to show that other correspondents and authorities had reported the same statement by the President.

In his telegram yesterday to the President, Senator Spencer said that he had based his charge on the speech made in the Senate by Senator Reed.

Paris Session Was Secret.

The statement by the President is alleged to have been made at the eighth plenary session of the peace conference on May 31, 1919. It was at this session that the representatives of Rumania and other smaller nationalities protested against the large measure of control in the League of Nations assumed under the peace treaty by the five great powers.

The session was one of two that were held behind closed doors, the other having been secret because General Smuts, one of the South African delegates, protested against provisions in the peace treaty for the punishment of the Kaiser and German officials, and it was feared that if Smuts made his complaint in a session open to the press, a bad impression would be created. The session of May 31 was held in secret because of the dissatisfaction of the smaller nationalities with some of the terms of peace.

No official account of this session has ever been made public and no information concerning it was given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by President Wilson in response to requests for Peace Conference documents relating to the League of Nations. Inquiry at the State Department failed to show whether a report of the session was in the department's possession. It was said in one quarter that many documents relating to the Peace Conference were supposed to be at the White House.

The records of the Foreign Relations Committee show that on Aug. 6, 1919, President Wilson wrote to Senator Lodge, as Chairman, in response to the committee's request for copies of drafts of a League covenant presented by the American Commissioners and other documents relating to a League of Nations and the Peace Treaty:

"No stenographic reports were taken of the debates on the League of Nations, and such memoranda as were taken of the debates on the League of Nations, it was agreed, should be confidential. The reason for regarding as confidential intimate exchanges of opinion with regard to many delicate matters will, of course, occur to you, and I beg to say that I am following the example of the other Governments in making this explanation."

As to Official Reports.

In stating that no stenographic reports were taken of the debates on the League of Nations, the President evidently referred to the discussions of the League of Nations Commission, appointed by the Peace Conference of which President Wilson and Colonel House were the American members, and the proceedings of the so-called Council of Four which dominated the drafting of the peace treaty. In its later sessions the Council of Four excluded all stenographers and clerks and held sessions alone. When Premier Orlando of Italy was absent, the proceedings were conducted without the aid of an interpreter, as Premier Clemenceau spoke and understood the language of his associates, President Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George.

Most of the plenary sessions of the Peace Conference were reported officially. It is supposed that the secret sessions were also reported stenographically. It was known when the session of May 31 was held that representatives of smaller nationalities, including Rumania, had protested over some terms of the Peace Treaty and that President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau had made conciliatory speeches, but the texts of the statements, made by Mr. Wilson and M. Clemenceau, were not disclosed.

First Report of Statement.

The original report of the President's alleged statements seem to have been made in a syndicated article by Frank H. Simonds, published Dec. 3, 1919, which purported to give a transcript of a stenographic report of the speech made by the President at the secret session of May 31.

This article, at the instance of Senator Johnson of California, was reprinted in the Congressional Record of Dec. 4. As published there, the President is reported to have given this answer to the protests of Rumania and other small nations:

"I should be very sorry indeed if this session adjourned leaving in the mind of any one the conviction that we have here expressed the idea that the great powers wish to impose their will upon the smaller nations out of any feeling of pride or arrogance. I want to call attention to one aspect of this arrangement which we are working on together. We want to insure the peace of the world and to banish all elements of trouble and danger for the future. One of the essential conditions is an equitable distribution of territory in accordance with the desires and affinities of the populations.

"This distribution made, the allied and associated powers will guarantee the maintenance of the conditions which we shall decide upon, having made those conditions as just as possible. These powers are the nations which will undertake the contract and the burdens; on them will rest the chief responsibility, just as, by force of circumstances, they have made the greatest effort during the war. And it is necessary always to remember that it is force which is the ultimate guaranty of public peace. * * * * * *

"If these States (referring to small States) are solidly established, thanks to the treaty which we are making together, the right belongs to the powers, which will guarantee the execution of the treaty in the last analysis, to see to it that the conditions on which these States will be established are of a sort to insure the public peace. Our desire in this is not to interfere in any fashion which might injure these States in any particular, but to aid them and to help the common cause. We hope that you will not hesitate to accept our point of view, because we cannot see another means of settling the question.

"How could the Government of the United States go before the Congress and people of the United States and pretend that it had assisted in insuring the peace of the world, if it believed that the settlement, agreed upon here, contained unstable or dangerous elements?

"If the world should be troubled again, if the conditions which we all regard as fundamental are challenged, the guarantees, which will be given to you, will pledge that the United States will send its army and fleet across the ocean. Is it surprising under such conditions, that it should desire to reach a solution of the various problems which seems to be satisfactory?"

Reed Recites Alleged Pledge.

In an address in the Senate on Feb. 2 Senator Reed quoted this reported pledge of the President and argued that in stating that "if the world should be troubled again, if the conditions which we all regard as fundamental are challenged, &c., the President had stated an obligation whereby we would be compelled to send our soldiers to Europe every time the fighting cock of the weather vane shall turn in the direction of fields of blood."

The Republican National Committee added a chapter to the controversy tonight by issuing a statement quoting from Senator Reed's speech of Feb. 2 and then citing several persons as confirming the statement attributed to President Wilson. The statement says:

"There are several reliable authors and correspondents and others, who were either in Paris at the time Mr. Wilson is said to have used the language in question, or who had access to the stenographic notes of the reporter. They agree in their quotation from Mr. Wilson's address regarding the Rumanians and Serbians with the quotations used by Senators Spencer and Reed.

"One of these, Lee Merriwether, a Democrat, who held a diplomatic post and acted as the personal representative of President Wilson in foreign matters during the war, in a statement issued in St. Louis on Oct. 3 upholds Senator Spencer in the controversy. Mr. Merriwether reproduced what he said were President Wilson's exact words to Premier Bratiano of Rumania as reported by the official stenographer at the eighth plenary session of the council; they were the same as used by the two Senators.

"The same language is quoted verbatim by the eminent publisher, Herbert Adams Gibbons, in an article published in the Century Magazine for May, 1920.

"In an authoritative work, The Inside Story of the Peace Conference, by Dr. E. J. Dillon (Harper Bros., 1920), on Page 501, will be found this quotation from President Wilson's rejoinder to Premier Bratiano's comparison of the Allies' proposed intervention with Russia's protection to the Christians of Turkey:

"'We guarantee your frontiers and your territories. That means that we will send over arms, ships and men in case of necessity. Therefore, we possess the right and recognize the duty to hinder the survival of a set of deplorable conditions which would render this intervention unavoidable.'

"Dr. Dillon says that President Wilson's rejoinder was lengthy and 'was delivered with more than ordinary sweetness.'"

SPENCER INQUIRES AGAIN.

Asks If There Was an Agreement as Reported.

SALISBURY, Mo., Oct. 6.—Senator Spencer, when informed today of President Wilson's telegram to him, prepared this message for transmission to the President:

"There must be no misunderstanding about a matter of such great national importance as to whether you stated to Premier Bratiano of Rumania that the American army and navy would be sent across the sea in case the world was again troubled.

"It has for months been publicly stated that such an agreement on your part is incorporated in the stenographic report of the eighth plenary session of the Peace Conference. I again beg of you to let me know whether you made such an agreement."

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Senator Johnson telegraphed tonight to Senator Spencer that the version of President Wilson's alleged promise of military aid to Rumania, which the California man had reprinted in The Congressional Record, was that of Frank H. Simonds.

REED CALLS FOR RECORDS.

Wants Wilson to Present the Stenographic Report.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 6.—Senator Reed, in a telegram late today to Senator Spencer, asserted that President Wilson made a statement, pledging military aid to Rumania and Serbia, in an address at the Peace Conference on May 31, 1919.

Senator Reed's message, which was sent in response to a query from Senator Spencer, stated that the text of the address did not pass the censor until Dec. 3, 1919, when it was brought to this country, and an article, embodying the alleged Wilson statements and written by Frank H. Simonds, was published in the newspapers. It was the Simonds version that Senator Reed used in the Senate, he said.

"On several occasions I challenged the attention of the Senate to this speech," Reed's telegram continued. "My speeches by scores of thousands were circulated through the country. Numerous publicists and speakers have repeatedly referred to and commented upon this declaration of the President. Its authenticity was never disputed on the floor of the Senate or elsewhere to my knowledge until Mr. Tumulty recently denounced it as false.

"The speech bears upon its face evidence of its authenticity, as it is couched in the well-known phraseology of the President. In view of these facts a discerning public will not be inclined to accept Mr. Tumulty's denial.

"There is one way this dispute can be settled. Let the President produce the stenographic records of the Peace Conference, showing just what was said. These official reports have been studiously suppressed and kept secret, although the Senate Foreign Relations Committee asked expressly for them. It was stated by Clemenceau's private secretary that the reasons why the sessions were held in secret was because the President of the United States insisted upon it as against Clemenceau's own judgment.

Following the dispatch of the telegram to Senator Spencer, Senator Reed gave out a statement in which he said:

"What now do we understand? That President Wilson now means we are not to be under obligations to send our armies to protect Rumania and other members of the League against attack?

"If so, what becomes of Article X., which he declares is the heart of the covenant?"

"After all," Senator Reed continued, "this controversy is immaterial. Article X. of the League of Nations explicitly provides that we undertake to preserve against external aggression the territorial integrity and independence of other members of the League. That means we join the League, therefore to defend Rumania and Serbia against attack and preserve their existing political independence. That obligation may at any time call upon us to send our armies and navies across the ocean. This is just what the President in his speech is alleged to have promised. The statements are as alike as two eggs laid by the same chicken."

NEW CALLS IT PECULIAR.

Says Alleged Wilson Pledge Has Often Been Quoted.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Senator New, chief of the Speakers' Bureau of the Republican National Committee, took a hand today in the controversy between President Wilson and Senator Spencer over the alleged statement of the latter at Paris pledging our military and naval aid to Serbia and Rumania. He said in part:

"President Wilson's position is very peculiar. When Senator Spencer said that Mr. Wilson had promised at the Peace Conference the assistance of American soldiers and sailors overseas he had as his authority the stenographer's notes of the Peace Conference.

"The quotation used by Senator Spencer has been used in the Senate repeatedly. The very words which Mr. Wilson now denies have been attributed to him in many public speeches. They never before have been denied.

"Of course, the whole discussion revolves around the question of whether the League of Nations means war or peace. This question has been argued so many times that one can hardly understand Mr. Wilson's coming out with his present assault on Senator Spencer."

CALLS PLEDGE AUTOMATIC.

Paul Cravath Argues That We Would Be Forced to Enter War.

Taking up the cudgels for Senator Spencer, Paul D. Cravath, who spent the Fall of 1918 in Paris as Advisory Counsel to the United States Treasury Mission, asserted yesterday that the obligation upon Congress to declare war under the League Covenant, if the "territorial integrity and political independence" of any of the States, who are parties to the League, were threatened, would be automatic.

He added that the American member of the League Council who refused to vote for war would be a "welcher," and if Congress should refuse to declare war it would "be guilty of national dishonor." Mr. Cravath's statement, made public through the Republican National Committee, reads:

President Wilson admitted to the Senate Committee that Article X. would impose 'an absolutely compelling moral obligation, which he said was superior to a legal obligation * * * and has a greater binding force.' I am sure the President would be the last person to contend that Congress would be free to refrain from declaring war if the result would be a clear violation of the 'absolutely compelling moral obligation' thus assumed. It is instructive in this connection to consider what the President himself has said regarding the obligation to go to war to vindicate Article X. At Versailles on Feb. 14, 1919, when first submitting the draft plan to the Peace Conference, President Wilson said:

"'Armed force is in the background in this program, but it is in the background, and if moral force of the world will not suffice, the physical force of the world shall.'

"Upon the same occasion Leon Bourgeois, a distinguished French jurist and a member of the committee that drafted the covenant, after pointing out, in President Wilson's presence and without evoking any dissent, that the proposed covenant provided that 'All the States * * * take * * * definite pledge to guarantee to each other the integrity of their territories as established by the settlement of the present treaty, and also guarantee their political independence against future aggression,' said:

"'If one State (it may be the smallest and most remote of all the States) is attacked without justification, then the whole of the League of Nations is being attacked, and will resist.'

"Later the President defended the treaty whereby the United States and Great Britain agreed 'to come immediately to the assistance of France in case of an unprovoked attack by Germany,' which clearly contemplated war, as 'merely hastening the action to which we should be bound by the League of Nations.' On May 31, 1919, the President, in explaining the treaty, and the League to the representatives of Rumania and Serbia, made the following statements, which are recorded in the minutes of that session:

"'If the world is again perturbed, if the conditions that we consider as fundamental are again put into question, the guarantee which is given to you means that the United States will send their armies and their fleet from one side of the ocean to the other.'

"The language last above quoted is the basis of the recent colloquy between the President and Mr. Tumulty and Senator Spencer.

"It is difficult to see how upon this record the President can now seriously contend that 'there is nothing in the covenant which in the least interferes with or impairs the right of Congress to declare war or not declare war, according to its own independent judgment,' or that it is not 'possible for other nations to lead us into war, whether we will by our own independent judgment or not.' There can be no escape from the conclusion that in case 'external aggression' threatened the 'territorial integrity and political independence' of any of the States that are parties to the League the obligation of the United States to go to war, if necessary, to make its guarantee effective would be automatic. If, in such cases, the American member of the League Council refused to vote for war simply to keep this country out of trouble he would be a 'welcher,' and if for the same reason Congress refused to declare war it would be guilty of 'national dishonor.'"

BORAH SAYS TREATY PLEDGES CONGRESS

Would Be Forced to Declare War Under Article X., He Holds, for Nation's Honor.

ANSWERS WILSON APPEAL

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 6.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, in an address here tonight, made a vigorous attack on President Wilson's recent statement on Article X. of the League of Nations covenant. He declared that if this Government entered the League and refused to take up arms to aid a country in the League which was invaded by an enemy, "the United States steps out discredited and dishonored, and the seeds of war are scattered broadcast."

"The President's last letter to the public informs us that Article X. does not interfere with the right of Congress to declare war or not to declare war," said Senator Borah. "I can conceive of but one way by which Congress could get out of declaring war in case of the invasion of territory of a member of the League, and that would be to violate and wholly disregard the plain terms of the treaty, and to rend in pieces the League covenant itself.

"The President has said heretofore, upon a very solemn occasion, that Article X. constitutes a supreme moral obligation upon the part of our nation, which moral obligation he declared to be more binding than an obligation of law or contract. Congress is but an agent of the nation, and in refusing to carry out a solemn promise would brand our whole people with dishonor and moral turpitude.

"Are we about to enter into some kind of a monstrous combination in which supreme moral obligations are to be disregarded when the exigency arises? Are we about to enter into a scheme which we are to carry out at great and untold sacrifice to our people, or refuse to carry out at the cost of national honor and national decency.

"Have we already reached the point in international debauchery where we are plainly promising one thing, and plainly intending to do another thing, if our own interests suggest it? Are we going into a worldwide scheme for peace, behind which is the honor of the nation, or are we going into a European scheme to be executed as usual under the dictation of treachery and duplicity.

"If we go into this schemes and the hour comes when the United States must choose between the faithful execution of its treaty or its shameless violation, our people will choose the path of honor, and execute it even at the cost of treasure and blood. We have not yet accepted in this country the creed of Machiavelli—we still adhere to the creed of Washington, to observe in good faith all international obligations.

"I would not, of course, presume to ask the President a question, or seek to engage him in debate, but I would like to know from his associates who helped him write this creed that if we accept Article X. as written and Russia invades the territory of Japan, and Japan, through the Council of the League, calls upon us to furnish money and men to help to preserve her territorial integrity and we refuse—what will be the standing of this proud republic among the other nations of the world, and what will become of the League?

"If we exercise the discretion not to assist, of course every other nation will do the same, and this supreme moral obligation is turned at once into a supremely moral pretense. The United States steps out discredited and dishonored, and the seeds of wars are scattered broadcast."

VETERANS FOR LEAGUE.

Many Indorse Work of Pro-League Independents for Cox.

Indorsements of the stand taken by Dr. Irving Fisher of Yale, ex-President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard and other prominent Republican and independent voters who have organized the Pro-League Independents for the support of Cox and Roosevelt on the League of Nations issue are being received from ex-service men all over the country, it was declared yesterday at the headquarters of the organization, 17 East Forty-first Street.

Associated with Dr. Fisher and ex-President Eliot are Dr. Frank Crane, Theodore Marburg, former Ambassador to Belgium; Miss Caroline Hazard, ex-President of Wellesley; Moorfield Story, M. A. and Mrs. Henry Cabot of Boston, Colonel H. M. Waite, former City Manager of Dayton, Ohio; Ellis Parker Butler and John T. Shaw of Oberlin College.

"The peace idea is the great, moving, spiritual world force of today. America in this movement, as it has been in all past great progressive movements, is its standard bearer and champion. Should we fail to fully recognize our responsibilities, duties and mission America would not be true to the spirit of its Constitution and its history, and American leadership and influence in the world would wane."

EXPLAINS ABOUT COVENANT.

Republican Committee Printed Text in Pamphlet, Says Bone.

The Republican National Committee had no intention of misleading the voters by omitting the Covenant of the League of Nations from the Republican campaign text book, it was explained yesterday by Scott C. Bone, Director of Publicity of the committee.

"Concurrently with the issuance of the Republican campaign textbook a pamphlet was issued containing the full text of the League of Nations Covenant with analysis and comment," said Mr. Bone. "This pamphlet has had a much wider circulation than the textbook. President Wilson's League of Nations Covenant has been printed and reprinted by all the larger newspapers of the country.

"I urge every Republican newspaper to carry the text of Article X. on the first page until Election Day. I hope this will be done."

Senator Lodge will speak in the Jersey City Armory on Oct. 19 instead of at Newark, it was announced last night by Colonel T. W. Miller, in charge of the Republican National Committee's Speakers' Bureau.

JOHNSON PLANS TOUR.

Report That He Will Make Speeches Against Any Form of League.

Special to The New York Times.

DELMONTE, Cal., Oct. 6.—It was said here tonight that Hiram Johnson will leave San Francisco on Saturday for an Eastern speech-making tour. He says he will speak directly and forcibly against any form of a League of Nations.

Johnson is to be accompanied by Harry Cosgriff, State Harbor Commissioner. His itinerary will not be made public until he reaches Chicago. He expects to speak in the Northwest till the end of this month and return to San Francisco on the eve of election.

HARDWICK PROBABLY WINS.

Ex-Senator Apparently Named for Governor of Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 6.—Incomplete unofficial returns, received tonight from the run-off primary in Georgia today for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, indicate that Thomas W. Hardwick, former United States Senator, has been nominated over Clifford Walker, former Attorney General.

HARDING ON TOUR CALLS FOR A CHANGE

RENEWS PLEA ON TARIFF

Special to The New York Times.

ON BOARD THE HARDING TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO DES MOINES, Oct. 6.—Uniting his own candidacy with State and Senatorial contests, Senator Harding left Marion this morning on the longest speaking tour of his campaign, a five-days' trip taking in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

He made five rear platform speeches today in western Ohio and Indiana and stopped over in Chicago for a four-hours' rest and a conference with western party managers. The Harding party left Chicago at 10 o'clock tonight and will arrive tomorrow morning in Des Moines, where Senator Harding will speak at the Coliseum, before leaving for a night meeting in Omaha.

In addition to discussing the League of Nations at Des Moines it is expected that the candidate will urge the re-election of his close friend, Senator Albert B. Cummins, who, since the passage of the Cummins-Esch railroad law, has met particularly strong opposition in his State.

Accompanying Senator and Mrs. Harding are former Senator George Sutherland of Utah, who had been at Marion several weeks advising the candidate on the campaign, Richard Washburn Child, and Dr. C. E. Sawyer of Marion, the Harding physician. The three private cars occupied by the Senator and his staff and newspaper correspondents will be attached to regular trains throughout the trip.

Speaks in Behalf of Watson.

Large crowds turned out with bands when Senator Harding's train stopped in Indiana and western Ohio. In his rear platform speeches the Senator emphasized his belief that the country most of all desired a change of party administration.

At Huntington, Ind., he urged the re-election of Senator James Watson, who is having a hard fight to hold his seat against Thomas Taggart.

"I have a notion, as I see you this morning, that you are interested in bringing about a change in your Government," Senator Harding said. "You are interested in bringing it about by putting the Republican Party in power, because you believe that the Republican Party has the capacity to rescue this Government from the very unfortunate rut in which it is running. And if you are going to put the Republican Party in power in the executive branch, I want to ask you as neighbors and friends to make sure that you put it in power also in the legislative branch, and send my friend Jim Watson back to the United States Senate."

Senator Harding denounced "pork barrel politics" and spoke for a business administration. This part of his speech was heartily applauded.

It was his second visit to Huntington in the campaign. Early last month, on his way to Minnesota, he spoke to about 500 people there. Today there were over 5,000 at the station.

"The reason you are thinking of turning out the Administration now in power," the Senator said, "lies in your common-sense understanding that the Administration failed you in the first place in not preparing to defend our rights in the war, and in the second place in failing as to peace. These things have left us in a state of turmoil."

Addresses Factory Workers.

At Lima, Ohio, Senator Harding made a speech to a crowd of factory workers.

"I know what is in your hearts," he told them. "You rejoice in the new standard of compensation, and I rejoice with you. But you are grieved about the high cost of living, and you have a right to be grieved about it. While men may talk to you about reducing the high cost of living, it can be done effectively only in one way, and that is by your giving the best efficiency that is in you to reduce the cost of production."

The Senator touched on the league in a rear platform talk to 1,000 people, including several hundred schoolchildren, at Decatur, Ind.

"Government," he said, "is a very simple thing, after all. I have been thinking while riding along through your country what you and I would do in this community under certain circumstances. Suppose we had been visited by a great conflagration or some great scourge that enlisted strenuous endeavor and awakened anxiety. You would give all that you had to stem the tide of disaster and then get things normal once more.

"That is precisely what has happened in the United States. We turned all our energies to warfare, to productivity for destructivity. After the war was ended the big practical thing for the Government to have done would have been to get on the normal forward track again. And one fault with the present Administration is that, instead of putting our own American house in order, so that everybody could go forward, it went to dreaming about American influence in the Old World.

"I don't mean, my countrymen, that I want to live in American selfishness. But it is not selfish, my friends, to think of our own security and good fortune first."

Urges Protective Tariff.

A large crowd turned out at Hammond, Ind., the last train stop before Chicago, and there the Senator made the longest speech of the day. He declared there was necessity for a protective tariff if the present high wages were to remain.

"You cannot continue demand for workers and high wages in any other way," he said. "If you allow foreign nations to dump their products in the United States in the aftermath of war you paralyze American productivity and destroy our own good fortunes.

"I want an administration in the United States that will do something to bring down the cost of Government and help in that way to reduce the high cost of living. More than that, I want an administration during the next four years that will hold to the good old doctrine that the United States is big enough and confident enough and brave enough to determine according to our own conscience in dealing with our relationship with the rest of the world.

"America went into the war in response to American conscience, and America is going to go on in the forwarding of civilization and the advancement of our own interests in accordance with the conscience of our own United States. But no doubt a lot of men in this company were service men during the war. Am I right?"

"What a wonderful tribute that is to the readiness of the people to defend American right!" Senator Harding exclaimed.

"Those men did not go because they were concerned about the democracy of the world. If that had been their impelling cause, they would have gone two years earlier than they did. They went out when American rights were challenged on the seas, and when American lives were destroyed while on lawful missions. They went in defense of American national rights, and they rendered a fine service. A service that brought us a new pride and established a new respect for America in the world.

"And I want to say to you service men in this audience that I want the Government to show to you the gratitude of the American people. I believe it ought to be done. I am sure in due time it will be done."

Leaving Omaha tomorrow night, Senator Harding will speak in St. Joseph, Mo., Friday afternoon and in Kansas City Friday night. Crossing Kansas the next day, he will speak in Oklahoma City Saturday night, returning to Marion afterward.

SAN FRANCISCO LID OFF FOR CONVENTION WEEK

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—With city and Federal officials admitting they connived to supply Democratic National Convention delegates with forty barrels of whisky and gin, in violation of the prohibition law, the Federal prohibition situation in San Francisco has today reached sensational proportions.

An unnamed Democratic politician, high in the councils of the Government at Washington, gave orders for the "lifting of the lid" during the Democratic Convention here and caused large quantities of liquor illegally withdrawn from bonded warehouses to be distributed to the delegates and their friends, according to a statement made by John S. Dunnigan, clerk of the Board of Supervisors, who supervised the liquor distribution.

In explaining his part in the transaction today Dunnigan declined to name the "high official" who had approached him before or during the convention and told him it would be "all right" to remove liquor from the bonded warehouses for use by the delegates.

Dunnigan said he did not himself obtain the permit for the withdrawal of the liquor. The requisition for it, signed by Dr. William C. Hassler, City Health Officer, as purchasing agent for the San Francisco Hospital, was for an unnamed amount. From time to time Dunnigan withdrew liquor in various amounts in presentation of the certificate and saw that it was properly delivered.

Acting Mayor Ralph McLeran, commenting on the disclosures of the distribution of liquor to the delegates, today said the story amused him.

"Everybody knew it," he said. "The roof of the house was off, and San Francisco was entertaining in the San Francisco-knows-how way. There was no prohibition officer in town. Mrs. Annette Adams, who was then United States District Attorney, was away. The lid was off, and, as a result, newspapers all over the country praised San Francisco's hospitality. Attorney General Palmer was here. I don't know whether or not he got any of the booze, but there was plenty if he had wanted it."

Dr. Hassler readily admitted signing the permit for the withdrawal of the liquor, saying:

"If there is any explaining to do in this matter let the others do it. I am not explaining."

The forty barrels were distributed among the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee, Cox, Palmer, McAdoo, Tammany and the lesser candidates, according to reports.

SAYS HARDING WAS IN PANIC.

"Got Down on His Knees" to Borah, Roosevelt Declares.

LIMON, Col., Oct. 6.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, opening a two days' campaign in Colorado today, charged Senator Harding with maintaining a vacillating policy on the League of Nations in order to hold opposing factions of the Republican Party in line.

"Senator Harding, apparently yielding to Mr. Taft, Mr. Root and other Republicans favoring a league," he said, "had come out for some sort of a world association when Senator Borah threatened to bolt. This threat looked so serious to Republican managers that Senator Harding figuratively got down on his knees to Senator Borah. In his panic he issued a statement saying he approved all of Senator Borah's speeches.

"This statement by Mr. Harding undoubtedly will upset Mr. Taft and Mr. Root just as much as the former attitude had upset Mr. Borah. It was promptly followed by a speech in Danbury, Conn., by Mr. Borah, in which he voiced definite and final opposition not merely to the League, but to any league, any concert of powers, any alliance, any association.

"All of this proves the contention I have repeatedly made that the voters have no choice this year between a policy of going into the League of Nations with all other civilized nations or of approving, on the other hand, some different definite policy, but they must choose between going into the League or accepting leaders so widely split apart in their views that they have no policy. They are riding a blow to which four horses are attached, none pulling together."

Coolidge May Speak at Marion.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The invasion of the "solid South" by Governor Coolidge, scheduled for Oct. 17, may be delayed to permit him to appear with Senator Harding at a front porch meeting at Marion, Ohio, on "Young America Day," Oct. 18, according to announcement made today by Senator Harry S. New, Chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Republican National Committee.

JERSEY RUM RAID BEGUN.

Hudson County Saloon Keepers Selling Without Licenses to be Arrested.

Prosecutor Pierre P. Garven of Hudson County, New Jersey, yesterday began a round up of saloonkeepers of that county who are charged with doing business without a State license. Before the day was over 15 had been arrested and arraigned at the County Court House. The prosecutor's detectives under Lieutenant Alexander Ross were looking for additional defendants last night, a total of about 100 warrants having been issued, it was officially stated.

"I am determined to close up every grogshop in Hudson County," the prosecutor said. "The vile quality of the stuff being sold in flagrant violation of the law is the cause of much of the crime that now menaces the community."

The arrests were made on warrants issued by Judge James A. McCarthy and the charge is selling liquor without a license. While there is no liquor license, the law makes the selling without a license a misdemeanor for which the maximum penalty is three years in the State's prison and $1,000 fine. The defendants furnished $1,000 bail to answer to the Grand Jury.

The arrests were made on evidence obtained by a private detective agency of Newark, it was reported at the County Court House.

The activities of the Federal prohibition enforcement agents yesterday included the seizure of 180 cases of whisky valued at $9,000 and the arrest of ten persons, according to Frank L. Boyd, Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent. He said that a restaurant in Forty-second Street was raided for the third time since the Volstead act became effective. The seizure of two cases of whisky in Wall Street was also reported. An ex-soldier was found on the Bowery with two satchels of liquor, which, he said, he was taking to a place selected for the celebration of the "smashing of the Hindenburg line."

In the Federal Court in Brooklyn yesterday Judge Thomas had before him more than a hundred defendants charged with violations of the Volstead act. Nearly all of them pleaded not guilty. Paul Konigsberg, bartender in the saloon of the late Henry Bamberger, at Kings Highway and East Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn, pleaded guilty to selling liquor and was fined $75. Bamberger died after the case was brought.

"Izzy" Einstein, prohibition agent, obtained the evidence with the use of a violin box, which he took into the cafe and represented himself as a transient violinist.

HOLD HARDING SAFE IN ILLINOIS SPLIT

NOMINEE ALOOF IN VISIT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—There are two Republican State Committees in Illinois today. In each of the 102 counties of the State are two Republican County Committees.

This perplexing state of affairs is not directly due to the factional row between followers of Governor Frank O. Lowden and those of Mayor William Hale Thompson of this city, which for months has created a wide rift in the Republican State organization, but to a Supreme Court decision declaring illegal the election of committeemen at the Spring primaries. It illustrates, however, conditions within the Republican organization of a State upon which the Republican leaders depend to help elect their national ticket.

Another demonstration of the troubled situation, bordering on an armed truce, which prevails among the Republicans in Illinois was afforded when Senator Harding arrived here tonight. There was an air of "incognito" about the coming in and going out of the Republican standard bearer in the national fight.

This was said to be in keeping with the wishes of the candidate, who came to Chicago in these troubled times merely because it was the only avenue of travel by which he could reach the Western and Southwestern cities in which he is scheduled to speak within the next few days.

Harding Avoids Hughes's "Mistake."

Ordinarily there would have been a brass band at the station to offer melodious welcome and a crush of Republican notables to wring his hand and wish him well. Instead there was a ragged cheer by a small and largely non-political crowd in the lobby of the Congress Hotel and an informal dinner. When Senator Harding had left after a stay of four hours in Chicago there was much laudatory comment on the wisdom he had displayed in not repeating the "mistake of Hughes," who four years ago paid a visit to California in July, headless of factional differences not unlike the differences that now prevail here and paid for it in November, when he was ground between the upper and nether millstones of the same enduring factional contention.

With Election Day drawing near the Republican leaders in Illinois have their hands full trying to compose, temporarily at least, the differences within their own party. For all that they declare that Illinois is safe for Harding and Coolidge and that the majority for the Republican candidates on the national ticket this year may be in excess of the 200,000 majority polled by Hughes four years ago. The Democrats, however, warmly dispute the statement.

The Republican leaders in the national fight base their hope that the factional row will not affect the fate of the national ticket on the frequently proclaimed opposition of Mayor Thompson to the League of Nations, which they believe will be sufficient to make his followers support the national candidates of the party. In the meantime the leaders are striving hard to bring the factions together under a flag of truce until after the election, for no one believes that peace can last much longer. To these efforts Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, devoted much of his time when he was here last week.

Some profess to see in the action of the State Canvassing Board, of which Governor Lowden is the head, when it met at Springfield today, an indication that the labors of Chairman Hays were bearing fruit. The board pronounced ex-Senator Len Small of Kankakee, Mayor Thompson's candidate for Governor, duly nominated in the primaries over Lieut. Gov. Oglesby, who was Governor Lowden's choice. According to reports which reached Chicago tonight, Governor Lowden sought to have the decision held up by the board, and to have that body go behind the certified returns on the strength of charges that there had been fraudulent voting at the primaries in a large number of districts in this city, where the Thompson organization is in control of the election machinery. The other members of the board, however, overruled the Governor.

The result of this decision will be that a Thompson man will be the candidate for Governor and a Lowden man, Congressman William B. McKinley, the candidate for United States Senator. The board pronounced Congressman McKinley the winner over Colonel Frank L. Smith, Chairman of both the "old" and the "new" Republican State Committees, who ran in the primaries as Mayor Thompson's candidate for the nomination. The leaders here regarded this situation as ideally "safe," because in their opinion it would militate against knifing by either faction.

In a further effort to bring about at least surface harmony, Chairman Smith, as a result of a decision reached at a joint meeting of the State committees under a flag of truce a week ago, has appointed a "coalition" executive committee with equal representation for both factions to run the campaign. It is also planned to give a dinner at Springfield on Saturday for the members of the "old" and "new" State committees, the chairmen and secretaries of the "old" and "new" county committees throughout the State and the editors of all Republican newspapers in Illinois.

TRY TO INTIMIDATE NEGRO POLITICIAN

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 6.—B. J. Jones, the negro Chairman of the Columbia County Republican Club of Lake City, Fla., who has been active in urging negro women to vote, was taken out of his bed on Tuesday night by unknown parties and with a noose about his neck was bundled into an automobile in his night clothes.

He was carried several miles and after being allowed to think he would be lynched, was allowed to escape. After wandering about, he found a telephone and called up the Sheriff of Columbia County, to obtain an escort so that he might return home in safety.

Besides urging negro women to vote, Jones was reported to have been organizing churches, lodges, and night schools and carrying on a propaganda to have negro women expelled if they failed to exercise the franchise. He also organized meetings to instruct negro women how to vote.

The situation caused by the incident is thought to be serious. The feeling created by the extension of the franchise to negro women is tense in other parts of the State, and State troops will probably be called to Baker County to guard the election there in November.

Harding to Speak at Elks' Home.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 6.—Senator Warren G. Harding has accepted an invitation to make an address at the Elks National Home at Bedford, Va., Dec. 5, according to a telegram received from Marion by Mayor Harmon of this city. The occasion will be the annual memorial services to dead members of the order.

COX STARTS AGAIN, INVADING SOUTH

Two Days' Rest Makes Him Fit for Another Speaking Tour, Beginning in Kentucky.

FAVORS POSTAL REFORMS

He Receives a Delegation of Department Employes and Indorses Their Proposals.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 6.—After spending today at the Executive Office, attending to State affairs and conferring with State political leaders, Governor Cox left tonight for Kentucky, where tomorrow he will begin his second extensive speaking campaign. His first speech tomorrow will be at Elizabethtown, and he will conclude the day with a night address at Memphis, Tenn. On Friday he will speak in the morning at Paducah, Ky., and in the evening at Louisville. His two days' rest has served to put him in good shape for his coming tour.

Johnson Camden, committeeman for Kentucky and Representative Campbell Cantrill, head of the organization bureau of the National Committee, will accompany the Governor through Kentucky.

Governor Cox today indorsed a program for betterment of employes of the postal service as presented by heads of their various organizations.

The program presented was for adequate postal facilities, just and equitable compensation, right to confer with post office officials through representatives of their own organizations and a court of review to which appeal may be taken in case of demotion or dismissal.

In the delegation which presented the program to the Governor were Gilbert E. Hyatt, President of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks; Edward U. Gauner, President of the National Association of Letter Carriers; W. M. Collins, Secretary of the Railway Mail Association, all of Washington, and John T. Mugavin of Cincinnati. They stated after the conference that the Governor's position on their program was "eminently satisfactory."

The Governor also received a delegation of Girl Scouts from Cincinnati, who obtained his promise to issue a proclamation naming the week of Nov. 6 as Girl Scout Week.

Another visitor during the day was Senator Pomerene, member of the subcommittee investigating campaign expenditures. He was on his way to Dayton, where the subcommittee is to take evidence this week.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Governor Cox stopped here two hours tonight while making train connections for his campaign tomorrow in Kentucky and Tennessee. On his way here the Governor had a talk with Glenn E. Plumb, author of the Plumb railroad plan, but it was said that the Esch-Cummins law and not the Plumb plan was the subject of their discussion.

The possibility of the Governor's making a rear platform address next week at Marion, Ohio, the home of Senator Harding, was discussed by members of his party tonight.

PLAY HOAX ON COX IN NOTE SIGNED REED

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—Some Democratic workers here are said to have deceived Governor Cox on Saturday night when a note, purporting to be signed by Senator James A. Reed, was handed to the Democratic candidate's companions. The note, which expressed the Senator's "regrets" that he could not greet Governor Cox, was given out for publication in apparent good faith by Cox's personal publicity man. Today Democratic leaders here announced that they knew nothing of the note's origin.

Senator Reed now denies writing the note or any other note to Governor Cox and says that if his name was signed to any communication to the Democratic Presidential candidate it was a forgery.

Before Governor Cox began his speech the personal publicity man for the Democratic nominee stepped to the front of the stage, leaned over to the newspaper men sitting in front, and handed the note to a representative of The Associated Press. The Associated Press correspondent, who accompanied Governor Cox throughout the tour, as well as local newspaper men, accepted the note in good faith. The note was typewritten, and signed "Jas. A. Reed." It said:

"I regret very much that I am tonight called from Kansas City on account of a previous engagement. I would like to greet you on the occasion of your visit."

Persons who saw the note remarked that it seemed unusual that the date was Oct. 2, the day Governor Cox visited Kansas City, and that Senator Reed left the city late in the day on Oct. 1. The paper on which the note was written was plain white, without letterhead.

Senator Reed has asserted further in regard to the note: "If I can find out who wrote it there'll be something doing around here."

DEMOCRATIC FUND RAISED TO $44,000

Several More Contributors 'Match the President's' Gift of $500.

The "Match the President" fund established by the Democratic National Committee to help along the League of Nations issue got a boost of $5,000 yesterday when contributions to that amount were received by Treasurer Wilbur W. Marsh. The total received to date is $44,000.

One of yesterday's contributors, Mary Vanderpool Pennington of Lincolnville, Me., doubled the $500 contribution of the President. Those who gave $500 each were Charles V. Duffy of Paterson, N. J., Frederick Pleasants of New York City, F. S. Carr of Boston, Edward L. Mooney of New York City and Mr. and Mrs. David Hunter Miller of New York City.

Mrs. Frank Hunter Potter, who has contributed her quota to the fund, suggested to Treasurer Marsh that an appeal be made to persons wishing to contribute but who may not have the cash to send Liberty Bonds in amounts from $50 upward.

Chairman George White of the Democratic National Committee sent a letter yesterday to Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican Committee, urging him "in the interest of truth" to do his utmost to obtain wide publicity for the text of the covenant of the League of Nations.

"Mr. Harding, Mr. Hays and all the Republican leaders deny that their campaign is based on misrepresentation of the League," said Mr. White, "and they insist that they have no purpose but to present the truth. That is certainly the purpose of the Democratic National Committee. Since the text of the covenant was unfortunately omitted from the Republican campaign handbook, I have taken the liberty of making a suggestion to Mr. Hays."

Chairman White's letter to Chairman Hays said:

"In the interest of truth, which the righteous certainly have no reason to fear, I venture to ask you to do all in your power to acquaint the voters with the text of the covenant of the League of Nations. By some circumstance of which I am not advised it was not printed in the Republican text book. The Democratic text book contains this text, and the committee has furnished it to all newspapers which desired to use it.

"Will you, in the interest of truth, use your influence and unite with me—or, if you prefer, act separately—and urge all newspapers to print the text of the covenant in full within the next few days? There are so many more Republican than Democratic newspapers in the United States that your request would secure the wide publicity which is desirable."

MACSWINEY'S 55TH DAY.

His Brother from New York Arrives —Marvels at His State.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—"I hurried over here, hoping I would arrive in England in time to attend my brother's funeral, and I marvel at the fact that he is still living, though there is no doubt that the end is near," said Peter MacSwiney, recently arrived from New York, who visited his brother, Lord Mayor MacSwiney, in Brixton prison this morning.

Peter MacSwiney vehemently denounced the reports that the prisoner was secretly receiving nourishment, declaring that these reports were mainly due to "cleverly laid Government plans," designed through innuendos to encourage the public's suspicion of the hunger strikers' sincerity.

"Even the Government doctors say my brother is dying," said Peter. "He himself is reconciled to that fate. He expects death before many days. His faith would not permit him to face death with a lie on his lips."

The Lord Mayor passed rather a bad night at Brixton prison, according to a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League this morning. A physician is quoted as saying that MacSwiney's pulse rose a little, which might be due to some little excitement, and adds that, generally speaking, the condition of the Lord Mayor was unchanged today. This is the fifty-fifth day of his hunger strike.

The night bulletin issued by the League said the condition of the Lord Mayor was unchanged.

The Gaelic League announces that Mayor MacSwiney today sent a message to his fellow hunger strikers in Cork jail asking them to join him in prayer "for the intercession of God in behalf of suffering and martyred Ireland."

Mr. MacSwiney adds: "Comrades, if we twelve go in glorious succession to the grave, the name of Ireland will flash in the tongue and flame through the world and be a sign of hope through all time to every people struggling to be free. Let that thought inspire us."

PORTLAND BANDIT GUILTY.

Marro Convicted in Ten Minutes—Gets 20-Year Sentence.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Oct. 6.—Thomas Marro, alias Morro, ringleader of the New York bandits who robbed the Portland National Bank of $12,556 on Aug. 21, was sentenced to not less than twenty and not more than twenty-eight years in State prison by Judge Burpee at Middletown this afternoon.

Marro was found guilty in less than ten minutes. Mrs. Thomas Barbour of Portland testified that she saw the bandits in the bank and that one of them had opened the door to let her out. She said that Marro's appearance to her resembled that of Caruso.

Marro was the first of the gang arrested, being captured in West 110th Street, New York City. Soon afterward his four accomplices were caught in New York and they will be arraigned next week.

LLOYD GEORGE SURE WE WILL JOIN LEAGUE

The interviewer asked: "Putting aside the naval and military side of the argument upon which, apparently, the independent liberals in their hearts readily agree with you, what about dominion control of taxation? What is your opinion as to the feasibility of giving Ireland complete control of her own taxation?"

Mr. Lloyd George replied:

"Well, in regard to that I ask, are business men in Glasgow and Manchester going to be willing to pay 6 shillings in the pound income tax while the business men in Belfast pay only 2 shillings? Is the working man in England going to pay 8 shillings on a pound of tobacco while the working man in Ireland pays only 6 pence? Because, if Ireland is going to be let off her share in the war debt, that is what it amounts to, and if you give her control of her own taxation you must face the almost certainty of her doing so.

"Do they really take up this position, that because Ireland refused in 1916 to take her full share in the fighting for the liberties of a little Catholic country in Europe, while Irishmen throughout the world took their share, are the Irishmen in Ireland to have special privilege in regard to taxation resulting from that war? It seems to me difficult to answer that question with a hearty affirmative, and I doubt whether the British people will do so when they are right up against it."

"But suppose that Ireland were willing to make a fair financial bargain, such as Parnell contemplated with Gladstone, always recognizing the past and present history and placing, shall I say, the war debt on one side and the admitted over-taxation of Ireland on the other, would you contemplate such a bargain," he was asked. Mr. Lloyd George replied:

"If some one entitled to speak for Ireland said 'very well, we are prepared to take our fair share of obligations incurred by these islands—supposing we were asked to accept a fair, firm bargain with men whose word could be trusted, then it would be a different matter, but if we are to be told 'give us the customs excise on the income tax,' and we are to receive no guarantee of any kind in return, then you place Great Britain in an impossible financial position. Ireland becomes a privileged country. We still remain responsible for her defense to posterity, and yet she no longer pays scot and lot."

The interviewer suggested that the "British financial position would be better if we cut the painter altogether."

"As," said Mr. George, "we cannot cut the painter, a dominion policy as now put forward would leave us in a terrible position. But my point at the present moment is this: Whatever the merits or demerits of a dominion Irish policy, could the Liberal Party carry such a policy by party methods alone? What could they carry? United Ireland?

"But they are more deeply pledged against that than we are, because Mr. Asquith was the first Liberal Prime Minister to pledge himself against coercing Ulster, and Ulster would now have to be very seriously coerced to effect dominion home rule. Do they say that I do not believe that in their hearts they have the smallest assurance that they could carry dominion home rule, even if they had a majority in the House of Commons?"

Asked if he believed that the coalition policy still meets the needs of the day, the Prime Minister said:

"Yes, I do. I see no alternative for the present. For the moment the sole question we have all to ask ourselves is this: What really is the interest of the nation as a whole? Directing minds are required in modern industry. Russia has got rid of these minds, and now I see her floundering about to find an alternative. She starts to solve it by appointing commissaries, who are now in Russia the substitutes of the bourgeois captains of industry. What is the result? Why, already those Russian commissaries have far greater power and greater privileges than industrial leaders in Great Britain. The whole thing is a perfect fraud and farce. After all her bloodshed and horror Russia is coming back to the same system of industrial guidance, but in a far more arbitrary and despotic form.

"Let us strive to combine our British system with justice and equity that will preserve it, and don't let us plunge into destruction. I tested our directing minds in the war and I found they did wonders. I believe we still require their guidance in peace."

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Lieutenant Lamie of the infantry was shot dead by unknown persons at the Collinstown airdrome, County Dublin, on Wednesday, says a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Dublin.

PREMIER TO OPPOSE AN IRISH DOMINION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Premier Lloyd George's Llandudno speech on Friday, says The Pall Mall Gazette's political correspondent tonight, will be a vigorous defence of the Government's Home Rule bill as the one plan before the country which gives the faintest hope of success.

The Premier has studied with extreme care Mr. Asquith's proposal of a grant to Ireland of an unconditional dominion status, and has taken particular objection to the suggestion that the Irish might raise their own military force.

"On that point," the newspaper says, "Lloyd George is believed to be adamant. No such concession can or will be made."

Lord Robert Cecil is the latest contributor to the Irish discussion. In The Evening Standard tonight he compares the Grey and Asquith plans to the advantage of the former. Mr. Asquith's suggestion, he finds, has three main defects. In the first place, Lord Robert believes, the nation would never agree to a separate Irish army and navy, and he points out that Mr. Asquith has not dealt with the possibility of a foreign power financing such armaments.

Secondly, Mr. Asquith apparently contemplates a single Irish government, with rather nebular safeguards for Ulster. Lord Robert does not think that if the British troops withdrew, according to the Grey idea, Ulster would be in much danger, but he asks what would become of minorities in other parts of Ireland.

The fundamental difference, however, between the two plans, Lord Robert thinks, lies in the fact that Grey would leave the Irish parties to reach their own settlement, while Asquith would impose an arrangement here. He declares that the Grey suggestion is far superior.

"I am satisfied," he says, "that the great vice of our dealing with Ireland in the last century has been that we have failed to create any sense of political responsibility in the Irish people. It is ridiculously untrue to say that we have acted with any want of generosity to Ireland, but we have done all these things, as it were, from above. We have throughout treated the Irish as political children. We have been most well intentioned, and, according to our lights, most kind and generous, but it has been in the British way, and not in the Irish way."

Consequently, Lord Robert urges that whether Grey's particular device is the best possible or not, his principle of calling on the Irish to assume the responsibility of settling their own affairs should be adopted.

The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent says that before the reassembling of Parliament a sub-committee of the Labor Party's National Executive Committee will confer with representatives of the Irish labor movement, and that the Labor Party will seek at the earliest opportunity for a debate on the Irish question in the House of Commons.

WOUND AMERICAN IN CORK.

Steamer Engineer Struck by Expanding Bullet—Strike in Dublin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CORK, Oct. 6.—There was more shooting during the curfew hours in Cork streets last night and an engineer from the American steamer West Kader was wounded during one of the incidents.

He was returning to his vessel at the south jetties with a comrade when they were fired on from the direction of the city. When he and his friends reached the gangway another shot was fired and entered his left shoulder. It was found that the wound was caused by a soft-nosed expanding bullet.

Strike Ties Up Dublin Shipping.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Oct. 6.—A grave situation is threatened at the Port of Dublin by the unofficial strike of firemen and seamen employed by the different shipping companies, which has resulted in the complete cessation of cattle and freight traffic between Dublin and England.

Members of the Irish Transport Union employed by the principal firms have received a week's notice, which expires on Saturday. Unless, therefore, the dispute ends by Monday all sections of the ship and quay workers will be involved.

There is great congestion of foodstuffs and merchandise, and the port may have to be closed.

At first the trouble, which was purely a wage dispute, was confined to the British and Irish Steam Packet Company, but it has now extended to others, and today practically the only shipping services unaffected are the Glasgow steamers. Only one boat on the regular cross-channel services left the Liffey last night. Two thousand cattle, 10,000 sheep and vast quantities of food and merchandise lie at the north and south walls, and shipping companies have warned exporters not to send further consignments for the present. Ten thousand men may be idle on Monday and nobody can prophesy where the dispute will end.

Arrest Mayor of Wexford.

WEXFORD, Ireland, Oct. 6.—Richard Corish, Mayor of this city, and Edward Foley a merchant, who were acting as Judges at the Wexford Borough Arbitration Court in the Town Hall here yesterday, were arrested by the police after military forces had surrounded the building. Both were escorted to the military barracks.

Litigants and witnesses in the court were searched, but were released. The incident recalls the arrest of Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, which was made early in August under similar circumstances.

them to believe five of the suspects had participated in the holdup, at 4 o'clock the next morning, of a restaurant kept by a man named Bevino, at 255 Bank Street, that city, in which twenty-two patrons were robbed of $4,000 in money and jewelry while playing cards.

When Carusso first was brought before him Detective Sergeant Gegan communicated with Detective Lieutenant Thomas Colasanto of Waterbury and shortly after Fasulo, Abato, Ferro and the other men found in Fasulo's barber shop arrived at Police Headquarters the Connecticut detective appeared with five of the victims of the holdup.

All of the men found in Fasulo's place were questioned, however, before the Connecticut detective and the victims of the holdup were permitted to see them. Ten of the prisoners were released two hours later.

Carusso thereupon was locked up on were shown to the victims of the Waterbury holdup and, according to Detective Sergeant Gegan, Carusso, Abato and Ferro were identified as three of the bandits.

Carusso thereupon was locked up on charges of violating the Sullivan law and of participating in the Connecticut holdup. Abato and Ferro were charged with taking part in the holdup, and Fasulo with having explosives illegally in his possession.

Last night Chief Flynn said his agents had learned that Carusso was affiliated with the Bresci group of anarchists, and that he had served a term in the reformatory at Rahway, N. J., in 1907, in connection with the finding of a bomb in the building in which Carusso lived in Jersey City.

"I shall question Carusso, Abato, Ferro and Fasulo to learn what they know about the Wall Street explosion," said Chief Flynn, "as well as the sending of the bombs through the mail and the explosion in front of Judge Nott's home. The Wall Street explosion may have been the work of the Bresci or Galliani group of anarchists, or a combination of members of both groups."

BOMB CARD UNDER SCRUTINY.

Pittsburgh Police Investigating Message Sent to Zalenska.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—A cryptic message on a post card to Florion Zalenska, Brooklyn tailor, who when arrested after a struggle in a downtown hotel Tuesday night, was found to have a suit case containing dynamite, has caused the local police and Government officials to renew their efforts to learn more about the prisoner and some of his companions. Part of the message, according to the officials agrees with their first theory that a series of bombing outrages is in the making throughout the country. The second part has not been deciphered.

The post card was mailed at 1:30 o'clock Oct. 5 at the central post office in Baltimore. It was addressed "F. Zalenska, Police Headquarters, Pittsburgh, Pa." On the opposite side of the card was penciled "Hello, Flor. Everything will be all right. Arrived on time. City Hall, Court House, Custom House, Post Office. Watch papers." It was signed with the two capital letters "R. B."

Beneath the signature was written what the authorities believe is a message which will bear on the suspected plans of radicals throughout the country. This was written in what first appeared to be short hand. Officials differ, however, some believing it was written in Russian or Hebrew. The post card will be turned over to expert translators tomorrow.

Unable to Raise It, He Goes to Jail for Transporting Dynamite.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—Florian Zelenko of Brooklyn, arrested here last Sunday with dynamite in his possession, was held in $2,000 bail by a United States Commissioner here today on a charge of having transported explosives in interstate travel.

In default of bail, he was committed to jail and will be held for trial at the November term of the United States District Court.

DELAY BALL INQUIRY, SEEKING WITNESSES

SWEAR TO GAMBLERS' PLOT

Affidavits Are Said to Show Interest of Men Here — Deny "Moneyed" Circles Are Involved.

District Attorney Swann's inquiry into the baseball fixing has been delayed because of his failure to find the witnesses he wants to question with regard to the gamblers' part in the deal.

Process servers from Mr. Swann's office, armed with Grand Jury subpoenas, were looking last night for several men in this city who were said to have played various rôles in the affair. Chief among them is Abe Attell, former pugilist, whose name was brought out conspicuously at the Chicago investigation. Attell is declared to be in the city and Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who is in charge of the investigation for Mr. Swann's office, said yesterday that he expected to reach Attell before tonight.

Information in the possession of Val O'Farrell, head of a detective agency, will be turned over to Mr. Smith, it was learned yesterday. Mr. O'Farrell had told reporters that he was willing to give Mr. Swann's office all the facts he had about the case. Yesterday Mr. Smith communicated with Mr. O'Farrell and it is understood that the information, which includes in part affidavits by several persons who have knowledge of the gamblers' plot, will be placed at Mr. Smith's disposal within a day or two. Some of this information has already been given by Mr. O'Farrell to Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney for Cook County, Illinois.

Mr. Smith yesterday denied rumors that a public official and a broker were being sought as the head of the plot to "fix" the White Sox players. "There is no public official, business man or broker involved, to the best of my information and belief," he said. "I haven't even head of any such man being mentioned heretofore. It seems to have been a gamblers' pool, clear and simple."

Mr. Smith also said that he did not believe there was any foundation for the story that a $500,000 pool had been raised in this city with the backing of "big moneyed men" to "fix" the series.

Gamblers convicted in this State of having taken part in the "fixing" may be punished for a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty of three years' imprisonment, Mr. Smith declared. He said that the action might be brought under Section 968 of the Penal Law, which says: "Any person who by fraud or false pretenses, while playing at any game, or having a share in any wager, or while betting on the side of such a play, acquires to himself or any others a sum of money or any other valuable thing, is guilty of a misdemeanor." It was said that proceedings might also be brought under Section 43 of the Penal Law, which makes it a misdemeanor to "outrage public decency."

Nicholas Dandalos, known as "Nick the Greek," denied in Chicago yesterday that he won money on the 1919 world's series, as Mr. Swann's office has been told. He said he bet $6,000 on the White Sox and lost, but bet $2,000 on the game Cicotte won, making his net loss $4,000. Dandalos said that he was willing to come to New York and testify.

Edward E. Smathers, race horse owner, who is said to have been one of the biggest losers in the world's series last year, was questioned yesterday by District Attorney Charles A. Weeks of Nassau County, with regard to the activities of Arnold Rothstein. The chief object of Mr. Weeks's talk with Mr. Smathers is understood to have been in connection with the Nassau County gambling investigation, in which Rothstein's name had been prominent, but it is said that the baseball plot also was discussed. District Attorney Swann's office has been in communication with Mr. Smathers and others who, according to reports, lost large sums on the series.

Cincinnati Council Praises Reds.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Confidence in the Cincinnati National League baseball team, which won the 1919 world's championship, was expressed by the Cincinnati City Council yesterday in a resolution unanimously adopted.

The resolution declares that the Reds proved to be of championship calibre despite efforts made to "throw" the games to them in last year's series. The revelations before the Chicago Grand Jury did not involve the Reds, the resolution recites, and the investigation in no manner reflected upon the integrity of the champions.

The purpose of the resolution, it was stated, was to encourage the youth of the country not to lose confidence in the national game because of the Chicago disclosures.

$19,328 FOR ELWELL GOODS.

First Sale of Slain Sportsman's Effects Attracts Little Attention.

Household effects of the late Joseph B. Elwell, card expert and sportsman, whose murder in June last added another to the city's great crime mysteries, had a first day's sale at the auction house of Darling & Co., 242 Fifth Avenue, yesterday, before what apparently was little more than an ordinary auction crowd. The sale seems to be exciting but slight sensational interest.

Furniture, porcelain, bedroom suites, &c., of the Elwell bungalow at Long Beach, L. I., made up the offering, with the exception of a Wilton rug said to be from the room in the Seventieth Street house in which Elwell was slain and which was said to have a blood stain upon it. It went to a dealer for $27. John R. Green, son of the late President of the National Biscuit Company, was the largest buyer of the day, making purchases to the extent of some $6,000.

ADMITS KILLING McCROHAN.

Luttrell, Newspaper Handlers' President, Pleads Self-Defense.

John J. Luttrell of Brooklyn, who was arrested Tuesday night, confessed yesterday to shooting Thomas McCrohan, a stevedore of 17 Pike Street, on Sunday morning in the clubrooms of the Downtown Newspaper Handlers' Association at 14 Duane Street, of which Luttrell is President.

He also admitted assisting in the removal of the body to West Broadway and Park Place, where it was found by Policeman Gallagher of the Beach Street Station. He will be arraigned today on a charge of murder.

"Luttrell confessed to the slaying after five hours of cross-examination at the Homicide Bureau concerning the stories he first told denying any complicity in the killing of McCrohan and the wounding of his friend, Thomas Burns," said Assistant District Attorney John R. Hennis. "Although there appears to have been some drinking of liquor in the clubrooms my investigation does not indicate that the tragedy had any connection with a rum-running plot. It grew out of a personal feud, the nature of which I do not care to mention at this time because it is a matter of evidence in the prosecution.

"Self-defense is the claim of Luttrell," continued Hennis. "He told me he had fired when the thought McCrohan was drawing a revolver from his pocket. He denied shooting Burns and gave me the name of a man he said had done it. We also know the identity of the men who assisted Luttrell in removing the body in an auto and have the names of the men who took Burns to the Broad Street Hospital."

At the request of Mr. Hennis Judge Wadhams in General Sessions held Joseph K. Kafuro of 45 Washington Street and James Lenehan, 22 Rector Street, in bail of $10,000 each as material witnesses.

COLVER ATTACKS WATSON.

Asks Indiana Senator to Back Charges About Radicals in Office.

ELKHART, Ind., Oct. 6.—William B. Colver, former member of the Federal Trade Commission, spoke here tonight in opposition to the re-election of Senator James E. Watson, and called on him to make good his charges of about a year ago in the Senate that Government departments, including the Federal Trade Commission, had become filled with radicals.

Mr. Colver asserted that although Senator Watson had succeeded in having a Senate investigation authorized nine months ago, "not a single witness has been heard, not a thing has been done." Mr. Colver went on:

"I ask Senator Watson to tell the people of Indiana whether or not the speech (in which Mr. Watson made his charges) in substantially the form in which he delivered it, did not come into his hands typewritten. If so, who gave it to him? I want to ask Senator Watson who employed Martin before the Senate sub-committee did? I ask him to tell the people of Indiana and of the country, who paid Martin's railroad fare? Who paid his hotel bills? I want him to tell what Martin has been doing since he got on the Senate payroll and what he is doing now, and why he has not tried his case, if he has one?"

TORCH-LIT PLANE LANDS AT NIGHT

Ablaze with Flares Reflected by Mirrors, Aviator Glides Down 5,000 Feet.

FIREPROOF TEST SUCCEEDS

Paul Collins Demonstrates That Terrors of Burning Planes Have Been Overcome.

Winging his way to earth from a height of 5,000 feet in an airplane ablaze with flaming torches, which, reflecting on a series of mirrors attached to the under wing, illuminated the landing field with a daylight refulgence, Paul Collins, an aviator, thrilled a crowd of spectators at Hazelhurst Field, near Mineola, L. I., last night when he demonstrated the practicability of landing in the darkness and of fireproofing aircraft. In the glide to the ground the swiftly moving plane resembled a comet with its long-drawn-out tail of fire. So fascinating was the sight that none of the spectators spoke a word until the plane touched the earth and taxied up to the landing mark, when they broke into cheers.

Representatives of the British and United States Army and Naval air services who witnessed the demonstration congratulated Pilot Collins on his exploit. Lieutenant C. N. Liqued of the technical section of the naval air service remarked that the development of fireproofing and system of illumination for night landing was one of the most progressive steps since the armistice.

"No longer will aviators be killed in accidents caused by their planes catching fire," he said. "With the possibilities of night landing shown so conclusively we may expect greater developments in commercial and military aeronautics in the future."

The demonstration was arranged by Parker H. Bradley of the Aircraft Fireproofing Corporation, of which Francis Mayer, the steamship magnate, is President. The plane used in the test was a Curtiss, to which had been attached more than a dozen reflecting mirrors underneath the lower wing. On the tips of the wings magnesium flares had been placed connected to the pilot's seat by electric wire by which they were set off. On other parts of the airplane torches such as are used on Fourth of July were tied.

No better night for such a demonstration could have been asked. The field was in total darkness when Collins "took off," with only his green and red head and tail lights showing. Ascending to a height of about a thousand feet, when the sight of the plane was lost to the spectators in the darkness, Collins touched off the torches on either side of the fuselage. In an instant the whole plane was bathed in a flood of fire, and residents of Garden City, who during the war had frequently seen ill-fated aviators falling in a mass of flames when the wings took fire, must have thought that a recurrence of that type of accident had happened. Around and around the field the plane sped at a rate of eighty miles an hour, ascending until a height of 5,000 feet was reached. In the upward and onward flight the flaming tail seemed to be at least a hundred feet long.

Before commencing his downward glide Collins thrilled those on the ground with some aerial acrobatics. All during the time the plane was in the air the outline was plainly seen from below, which made it possible to follow the manoeuvres as in the daytime. Shutting off his motor, Collins commenced his long spiral glide, encircling the field as he negotiated his distance for a landing. When at a height of about 1,000 feet he touched off the magnesium torches which reflected on the mirrors. The whole field, hitherto dark, became as broad daylight.

Although the scene of the demonstration was more than a mile from Hazelhurst, the outline of the buildings and the soldiers who were watching the performance were as visible as at high noon. One feature which impressed the spectators was the fact that the mirrors did not cast the eye-racking glare that searchlights do. The light was evenly distributed over the field and disclosed the luminocky spots even more than in the day time.

The actual landing of the plane was accomplished so easily that Collins had taxied up to where the spectators were lined before some of them realized he had returned to the ground. An examination of the wing fabric and woodwork of the airplane showed that it was none the worse for having been subjected to the fire from the flares.

As a further demonstration of the fireproofing qualities of the preparation he had invented, Mr. Parker poured several gallons of gasoline over the airplane and set a match to it. The flames quickly ate up the inflammable liquid and died out, leaving the surface in the same condition as before.

HYLAN LAYS CLAIM TO WELL-KEPT CITY

AGAIN ASSAILS REPORTERS

Swann Urges Magistrates to Settle More Cases and Says Mayor Could Be Re-elected.

Under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee on Public Welfare, of which Rodman Wanamaker is Chairman, the Mayor and the directing heads of law enforcement agencies, met at a dinner last night in the Astor Gallery, Waldorf-Astoria, to discuss ways and means of preventing, checking and punishing crime. Special Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Harriss, just back with figures on continental crime waves, presided.

Mayor Hylan, after setting forth the necessity for keeping the city clean, a feat which he attributed to the present administration, launched into a recrudescence of his attack on the Committee of Fourteen and "dishonest" newspaper reporters.

"It was the custom," he read, "in years past to allow the freest possible latitude to all comers at Police Headquarters. The reputable newspaper men had to mingle with the space writers and free lancers. Some of these individuals were very friendly with high police officials and with the gamblers and disorderly house keepers, as well as the criminal elements generally. Right here I wish to say that the newspaper men generally are reputable men, but there are those who call themselves newspaper men who are very close to the gambling and vice elements in the city."

Chief City Magistrate William G. McAdoo told of the work of the Magistrates' Court, which he reported as doing their full duty, while Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan spoke of the relations existing between the police and Special Sessions. District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings said that the release of criminals should not be charged entirely to the police, adding that sometimes the judges were wrong.

District Attorney Swann offered the only practical suggestion that came out of the dinner conference. He suggested that the Magistrates take more authority to themselves and, instead of holding so many cases for Special Sessions, make final disposition of the cases in their own courts. In a digression from the object of the conference, Judge Swann expressed his belief that if Mayor Hylan was renominated for the Mayoralty "today, he would sweep the city by 200,000." This provoked considerable enthusiasm.

As its guests the committee had virtually all of the higher officials of the Police Department, the City Magistrates and many of the Justices of Special Sessions and the Judges of General Sessions.

WARSHIP GUIDED BY PILOT CABLE

ship. The conditions were the same as a ship's captain would encounter. The fog, of course, was absent. The first indication that the destroyer was approaching the cable was a faint clicking of the code word and this grew louder as she approached. The sound was louder on the port side and that indicated the cable was to the left of the ship. The sound increased until it indicated that the Semmes was following the line indicated by the invisible pilot.

The Morse code word grew louder or fainter as the destroyer moved away or came close to the cable. A little switch threw the sound first into one amplifier and then into the other so that the operator could determine on which side it was strongest, as so on which side of the vessel the cable was located.

View Ahead of Ship Screened.

The real test came, however, when the Semmes had swung around and was headed back toward the city. A heavy strip of canvas was fastened so as to shut out the entire view ahead. Facing this screen stood the wheelman. Back of him, facing toward the stern of the vessel, Commander Norton took a position before the table containing the amplifiers. He "picked up" the cable and then set a course parallel with it and at first directly over it as was indicated by the maximum and equal signal in each cable. When approaching it the sounds were faint and it was not until he approached nearer that he could determine on just which side the pilot line was. As he came nearer the Morse code clicked the word "Navy" loud and clear. After satisfying himself of the location of the cable he set a course so that the maximum sound was carried by the port coil and this left half of the channel clear for vessels going in the opposite direction.

As many of the guests as could listened to the signals. As the sound came too clear or faded Commander Norton called to the man at the wheel and corrected his position. Straight ahead the destroyer moved, just as though her pilot was watching the buoys that mark the channel's edge.

"To the left," the commander would call. The man at the wheel repeated the command as he twisted the wheel.

A few yards and the volume of sound would indicate that the vessel was edging away from the pilot cable.

"To the left," he would sing out, or more often it was a set of numerals that were instantly repeated and interpreted by the man with the shifting wheel. So the orders came, left or right as the sound in the receivers indicated the position. Some of those in the party turned amateur skippers and to the commander suggestions were frequently made that the sound was rather to port or to starboard.

The Semmes was keeping to her course when an officer who had been leaning over the charts and watching the course ahead around the canvas screen, called to the commander that he had reached the turn in the channel.

In yesterday's experiment the electromagnetic field extended about 1,200 feet on each side of the cable and the greatest depth encountered was 116 feet. The lightship end of the cable was grounded and anchored with concrete anchors. Difficulty was encountered in laying the cable because at the Narrows it had to under run the police, Western Union and army cables.

Saves Expense of Fog Delay.

One of the radio men said that the cost of equipping a vessel with the receiving coils and other apparatus was probably $1,200, and he pointed out that it probably cost $500 for each hour that a liner was forced to anchor off this port in a fog.

Announcing The Croft Hat A Personality in Millinery

Designed for the woman of discrimination—the woman who insists upon conservative style together with faultless taste in every item of her wardrobe—Croft Hats occupy an enviable position of security in the ever changing realm of Millinery.

Never conspicuous, except for their quiet refinement of line and color, and at the same time always in good taste, they are hats that appeal to Matrons for their unobtrusive modishness.

Every season the Croft Hat emphasizes some smart new style notes, but always in a restrained and dignified way, significant of the quality and position it represents.

POLICE AGAIN GUARD B. R. T. STATIONS

PICKETS ARE INCREASED

Company Says Service Is Normal, but Public Service Commission Will Hear Complaints.

Threats made by the striking employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company that they would continue picketing the company's lines and urging the employes to quit until the lines were again tied up resulted yesterday in the stationing of policemen at some of the more important stations of the rapid transit roads and at the various car barns and terminals.

At a meeting held by the strikers in Schwaben Hall, Brooklyn, on Tuesday night it was resolved to appoint pickets to patrol the lines and induce employes to quit. Men were appointed to undertake this work, with instructions to report at a meeting yesterday afternoon. Their report was to the effect that 105 shop and maintenance men, 205 surface men and 100 elevated railroad guards had been induced to join the strikers. It was also reported that a hundred or more additional employes had promised to go out within a day or two. This news so encouraged the men that the number of pickets, it was said, was greatly increased by volunteers. The B. R. T. Company later reported that there appeared to be no truth in the statements of the strikers.

From the publicity department of the company came the statement that the present working force numbers 10,735, only about 1,265 less than normal, that more new men were being hired every day and that within a short time all of the lines would be operated on complete schedules.

Leaders of the strikers, who represent the Amalgamated Association, ridiculed these statements. They intimated that the trouble between the association and the company would never be composed as long as there was a disposition on the company's part to foster the creation of a Brotherhood among its employes similar to that of the Interborough employes.

Max Brody, a member of the Strikers' Executive Committee, said last evening that the efforts to tie up the lines of the company again was progressing so rapidly that the company would be badly crippled within twenty-four hours. When this statement reached the company's offices a quick inquiry was made without discovering anything tending to justify Brody's prediction. Service on the rapid transit lines was described as normal by the company at nightfall, and the hope was expressed that all of the surface lines would be in normal operation early next week.

There is to be a hearing tomorrow before the Public Service Commission on complaints that many of the company's surface lines are not operating. The commission, in its order for a hearing, stated that the lines out of the commission are the Greenpoint, Metropolitan, Wyckoff and Gravesend Avenue lines, the Ralph Avenue, Holy Cross and Broadway shuttles, and part of the Reid Avenue and Grand Street lines.

Louis Fridiger, counsel for the Amalgamated Association, at the meeting of the strikers on Tuesday night dealt severely with the police, whom he accused of being mainly instrumental in breaking the strike. When he appeared in Police Headquarters yesterday as council for an accused patrolman First Deputy Police Commissioner John H. Leach took him to task for his attack on the force.

"I understand, Mr. Fridiger," said Mr. Leach, "that you said last night that you would never defend a policeman again and called the members of the Police Department mutts, curs and cowards. I am going to call the attention of the Police Commissioner to these remarks and also that of the Bar Association. Have you suffered a change of heart?"

"I have not replied Mr. Fridiger." "I want to reiterate what I said last night. Go as far as you like."

It developed that a stenographic report made of Mr. Fridiger's speech to the strikers is in the possession of the police officials.

WARNS OF NEW AUTOCRACY.

Francis H. Sisson Says Bolshevist Peril Is a Grim Reality.

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—Danger of an autocracy of the proletariat is a real and not an imaginary danger, Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, said in an address today before the Detroit Chapter of the American Institute of Banking. This brand of autocracy, like others, came from overseas, "where it is applying the torch to the incendiary spots of Europe, and which is seeking here to undermine the very foundations of our system of Government and free institutions."

Touching upon industrial problems, Mr. Sisson declared that American laws gave labor a square deal. In this connection he pointed to workmen's compensation provisions and the model act of the Federal Government for its million employes. Co-operation between labor and capital, the speaker added, was the only solution for the economic problem besetting the United States. He condemned such manufacturers and dealers as endeavor to sustain prices by artificial means.

Tax burdens, Mr. Sisson declared, were bearing too heavily upon business and were curtailing essential enterprise. There was no question, he said, about the need for the repealing of the excess profits tax. Referring to his warning, Mr. Sisson said:

"All that we and our allies accomplished in the World War was to protect democracy from one form, and only one, of autocracy—the autocracy of the mailed fist and the junker class. We are confronted now with a third world challenge, and we must meet it as courageously and energetically as we met the other two. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom and of safety.

"This menace is not a menace of the imagination. It is a grim hydra-headed reality that seeks to terrorize where its socialistic sophistry and political or economic heresy fail of their insidious purpose.

"Let us hope that the masses, which include all our so-called classes, will respond to that challenge as the people of Great Britain during the war answered the aerial raids in violation of the laws of civilized warfare."

services contemplated by the contract. A separate letter was signed, dated June 19, 1920, which also has not been published, whereby the American Ship and Commerce Corporation is permitted to organize a company in a foreign country and operate foreign flag steamers under this contract if American steamers are too costly to operate.

"Section 10—More window dressing—the spirit of equity is absent from the whole undertaking. The second paragraph of this section states that should there be inequities a revision of such agreements will be made"—nothing obligatory—no vehicle in a twenty-year contract for arriving at a desired conclusion—no penalty. What may be looked for in five or ten years when, at the pioneer work having been done, the contract is getting a little irksome to one of the parties?

Operating Agreement Criticised.

Concerning the operating agreement, Mr. Clegg said:

"On studying this agreement it should be borne in mind that Germany will probably have no shipping for five years; therefore, American tonnage will have to act as a crutch for Germany during this period, and it is during this period of five years, when the maritime nations are striving to obtain a large share of ocean-carrying trade, that there will be keen competition and consequent losses to bear. The history of steamship operating is a succession of gains and losses—one or the other, depending upon fluctuating world markets and movements—consequently we must look beyond the mere establishing of trades and follow their probable up and down course when a twenty-year undertaking is being considered.

"Section 3. If American passenger ships after building up a trade have assisted German ships into such trade, it follows that some of the pioneering American tonnage will be withdrawn immediately a lull is experienced in the trade. Such American tonnage, having served the German purpose, is to be used 'if practicable' in some other service.

"Section 5. Confirms that the Germans are to fix the rates on American steamers.

"Section 6. Takes from the American ship owner the right to trade additional steamers in the services he has made profitable, and clearly obliges him to dedicate his steamers for one purpose, viz.: the upbuilding of Germany's overseas trade.

"Section 11. Takes from Americans the right to withdraw from a service which they alone have entered, unless such service is being operated at a loss, and then only after they have given notice of three months, plus six months for contracts. In the second paragraph the American Company would have to give one year's notice of withdrawal, and would never have the right to participate in that service again. During the first four years America has at considerable cost built up a trade with five steamers, and during the fifth year one German vessel is entered. Soon after the German entry the American Company, for business reasons, desires to temporarily withdraw—it must give one year's notice and after that has no right at any time to re-enter the trade which it had established under possibly great difficulties during the period of the first four or five years. The Germans, through their one steamer, entered in prosperous times, have secured the exclusive rights to the trade, and proceed to add tonnage as it becomes available to them.

Seed Danger in War Clause.

"Section 16 (War Clause)—The American Company is heavily penalized by this clause. If its steamers are requisitioned by the American Government the company loses a portion of its earned participation on being ready to re-enter trades. The act of requisitioning in itself is the signal for Americans losing a part of their trade, as if they procure other tonnage immediately they can, under this clause, claim only 50 per cent. of the trade, even if up to that time they had had 100 per cent.

"If Germany goes to war with any nation other than the United States the American steamers must continue to serve Germany and cannot withdraw except subject to a year or more notice. (This would place America in sorry position if Germany and a country friendly to the United States came into hostilities.) If there is war between nations other than the United States or Germany American steamers could not withdraw, but would have to continue operating in Germany's export and import trades with neutrals for a minimum of one year and probably longer."

APPROVAL NOT NECESSARY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—It is not necessary for the Shipping Board to give its approval to the contract made between the Hamburg-American Line and the American Ship and Commerce Corporation, unless ships belonging to the board are operated by the combination. This was learned this afternoon from Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board.

Admiral Benson has given his personal sanction to the contract, and repeated today that he believed the agreement was a splendid thing for the development of the American interests in the North Atlantic. The board has not yet approved the contract although an official statement issued some time ago unwittingly stated that this was the case.

Chairman Benson stated that the Harriman-Hamburg American combination would probably seek the approval of the board as while it proposed at this time to operate its own fleet, it might in future ask the Shipping Board to allocate vessels to it. This was only a contingency, the Admiral indicated.

While the board's official sanction is not mandatory for the contract, it is necessary for the North German Lloyd-U. S. Mail Steamship Company contract to receive it.

This company is operating vessels belonging to the Shipping Board.

PASSAIC HAS $100,000 FIRE.

Entire Plant of Large Lumber Company Wiped Out.

Fire which swept through the yards of the Passaic-Bergen Lumber Company, at Main and Chestnut Streets, Passaic, yesterday morning, assumed such a threatening aspect that all of the available firefighting force was called out. Carried by the high wind the flames destroyed the plant of the company, which occupied an entire block.

In addition to the buildings and stock within the lumber yard, a one-story frame dwelling occupied by William H. Smith as a home and upholstery shop was destroyed. A shed used by the Passaic Plumbers' Supply Company was burned and the loss in supplies was estimated at about $7,500.

Several firemen were overcome by smoke, but returned to duty after receiving medical attention. The total loss was estimated at about $100,000.

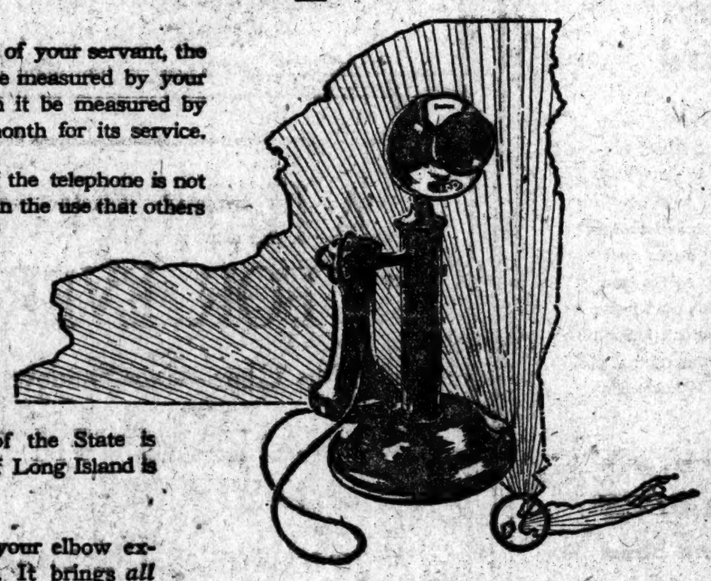
Your Telephone

THE VALUE TO YOU of your servant, the telephone, may never be measured by your individual use of it. Nor can it be measured by the amount you pay each month for its service.

Perhaps the greatest value of the telephone is not in the use you make of it but in the use that others make of it with resulting benefit to you.



Out across the vastness of the Empire State on Lake Erie is Dunkirk. Up on our side of the St. Lawrence River is Louisville. Way down in the extreme southwest corner of the State is Clymer. At the eastern tip of Long Island is Montauk Point.

THE TELEPHONE at your elbow extends to each of them. It brings all points in this great State within the reach of your voice.

We use the telephone so frequently and for so many trivial things that we forget sometimes the bigger things it can do and does.

We forget that there are times when business or personal affairs of great importance make the service of the telephone more valuable than all our money. We forget that today, tomorrow, next week, next year we might be willing to pay any amount to get someone in Dunkirk, Louisville, Clymer or Montauk Point on the telephone.

We forget sometimes that this entire city is fed, and clothed, and housed, and kept warm and supplied with its necessities, comforts and luxuries by a modern system of quick supply and distribution that is largely made possible by the comprehensive state-wide service of the telephone.

This service is not a matter of a few long distance terminals in the communities outside the city. Every single telephone in these localities is part of the system and ready to receive your message or send one to you. Only by such universally adequate service can the people of this city and state serve each other commercially and socially in the manner required by their interdependence.

THE GREATEST VALUE of the telephone is in the use we all make of it. It is the voice to voice communication of this great city locally and with all the other communities in the State that is of the greatest benefit to each individual served by the system. And each of us must pay our fair share of the cost of this city-wide, state-wide service that has done and is doing so much to make New York City big.

HOUSTON BELIEVES PRICE PEAK PASSED

But He Thinks That Process of Recession Will Take Several Years.

REJECTS CROP CREDIT PLAN

Says Treasury, Already a Borrower, Can't Make Emergency Deposits to Move Harvest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—In two letters made public tonight, David F. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, announces his belief that the crest of high prices has been passed. He says that prices may never recede to the pre-war level, but he does believe they will reach a stable condition in a few years.

The letters which the Secretary wrote relate to credits in connection with the problems of agricultural finance and marketing. He says in one of the communications that he cannot recommend that the Treasury deposit money in banks in certain sections of the country in order to ease up credit, for the reason that the Treasury is even now a borrower.

In the first of the letters, which, like the second, omits the name of the recipient from the copy given to the press, Mr. Houston says:

"The problems confronting the banks of the nation are complex and difficult. They will not be solved to the satisfaction of everybody, but I think to those who knew the facts and think fairly it will appear that the banks of the country as a whole are functioning very effectively in handling the problems confronting them and in extending accommodations to meet the needs of industry and agriculture.

"I am sure that you have in mind the extent to which credits have been extended. You know it became necessary to take steps to see that the banks were in position to meet the seasonal demands resulting especially from the marketing of our large crops. As a result of these steps I believe that the banks of the country will succeed in assisting in financing the crop movements and in taking care of industrial needs, although, of course, not without difficulty.

No Contraction of Credits.

"It is not true that there has been a contraction of credits. On the contrary, there was an expansion of credits during the twelve months from the end of August, 1919, to the end of August, 1920, and there has been an upward tendency since the crop movement began. Between the end of August, 1919, and the end of August, 1920, the loans and investments of about 800 reporting member banks increased approximately $1,750,000,000. As these reporting banks represent about 40 per cent. of the resources of all the banks, it is estimated that the total increase in loans and investments for the twelve months indicated was over $4,250,000,000. Even from Jan. 24, 1920, when the increase in discount rates went into effect, to Aug. 27, 1920, the loans of about 800 reporting member banks, exclusive of loans secured by Government obligations and other stocks and bonds, increased about $1,250,000,000. This would reflect a total increase of commercial loans in all banks, it is estimated, of perhaps $3,000,000,000.

"Since the crop-moving demands came on the bills discounted and purchased by the Federal Reserve banks have increased at the average rate of nearly twenty-two millions a week, and the Federal Reserve notes at the average rate of twenty millions a week. The increase in the volume of Federal Reserve notes from Jan. 23, 1920, to Aug. 27, 1920, was $360,000,000.

"I need scarcely say to you that I am in favor of every legitimate effort to promote the orderly marketing of all commodities. I have labored many years to stimulate legitimate co-operative enterprise on the part of farmers, not only for better production, but also for better marketing of crops and for the more satisfactory financing of them. In such co-operation lies much of the future prosperity of agriculture. Farming must pay, and rural life must be made comfortable and attractive. Only through the attainment of these objectives can we hope to have a sufficient number of efficient and contented farmers.

"I sincerely hope that co-operative movements of a legitimate and lawful kind will make even more rapid and satisfactory headway in the future. During the entire time I was Secretary of Agriculture one of my chief concerns was the matter of better marketing and better rural finance; and to this end I labored earnestly to promote the development of the Bureau of Markets and the farm loan system. These agencies have rendered vast service to the farmers and will render increasing service if their activities are not crippled.

Treasury Deposits Not Feasible.

"Referring to the suggestion that the Treasury at this time deposit money in banks in certain sections of the country in order to ease the credit situation, I can only say that this is not feasible. The Treasury has no money to deposit for such a purpose and could in no event make deposits in the circumstances except to meet Government requirements. As a matter of fact, the Treasury is itself borrowing money at a cost somewhat in excess of 6 per cent. to meet current bills. The Treasury has no control over appropriations and must meet the bills that are paid under the law.

"It is true that the tax receipts for the twelve months will meet the ordinary expenditures of the Government, including the sinking fund charges and interest on the public debt, and make possible a net reduction in considerable volume of floating indebtedness, but much of the taxes is received in quarterly installments, and bills come in regularly, and, therefore, the Treasury is under the necessity of borrowing temporarily to tide over the intervals. The Treasury should not be in the banking business. The banks of the country, under existing law, can, and will, I believe, meet the situation as far as it can be met, to the satisfaction of the mass of the people.

"The other suggestion, that the activities of the War Finance Corporation, which were suspended last Spring, be resumed, and that it indicate its willingness to lend money to corporations or persons desiring to finance exports, is likewise unacceptable. The Finance Corporation was a war agency. So far as the financing of exports is concerned, the provision authorizing it was passed at a time when there was apprehension caused by the chaotic condition after the armistice, that exports might not go forward. As a matter of fact, exports have gone forward in unprecedented volume. While in 1918, the last year of the war, the exports aggregated $6,000,000,000, in 1919 they were valued at $7,000,000,000, and in this year, 1920, on the basis of the first seven months, they are going forward at the rate of $8,400,000,000. Clearly, exports are being financed. They are being financed by private business agents, as they should be. I think it will be clearly recognized that the condition contemplated by Congress does not exist and that there is no need for the Government through the War Finance Corporation to intervene to stimulate exports.

"We are still in the midst of abnormal conditions. The sad thing about war is not only that it is horrible while it lasts, but that it is not over when the fighting ceases. It leaves behind it conditions which in the nature of things cause hardships and sufferings for many years. It is gratifying that we have been able to proceed under the exceptionally difficult conditions as well as we have. Our people must face the fact that conditions will be difficult for some time to come. But with steadiness of purpose and intelligence we can meet the problems as they arise and in time bring the nation back to an orderly and sound basis. This nation does not live to itself. The whole world is in an abnormal state, but it seems obvious that things are beginning to right themselves, and I believe that there is light immediately ahead.

Believes Crest of Prices Passed.

"We have doubtless passed the crest of high prices. I am no prophet, but I imagine prices will recede, and that the process will take several years. No one will wish to have the prices of what he produces lowered, but the consumer has evidently made up his mind not to continue to pay high prices, and much trouble which is attributed to the banks of the country and credit conditions unquestionably arise from fundamental conditions over which the banks have no control.

"Matters are further complicated for this nation by reason of the fact that it has not yet concluded peace with its enemies and has not yet joined the other great nations of the world in a co-operative effort to hasten the return of sound conditions and to allay the fears of the world, as to the recurrence of other wars."

In his second letter Secretary Houston deals with certain requests that the Treasury either deposit money in crop-moving sections or lend money to producers.

"In connection with some of the requests," he writes, "it was distinctly stated that the producers intended to hold their commodities until they could get substantially the prices prevailing during the war. I stated very specifically that the Treasury had no money to deposit or lend, that the Treasury itself was borrowing money to meet current bills, and that it could not be in the banking business. My statement had no reference to the operations of the Federal Reserve system or to the banks of the country, whether member or non-member banks.

"I stated distinctly that, so far as I was concerned, I was very definitely in favor of the orderly marketing of all commodities, but that obviously the Government, that is, the Treasury, could not be a party to an undertaking on the part of any sort of producers to hold their commodities artificially for speculative purposes, to secure war prices or higher than war prices. This statement seems to me to contain such an obvious truth that there is no room for debate.

"I did not, of course, say that individuals who own commodities would not keep them as long as they please and as long as they were able to keep them if they desired to keep them. What I said was that the Treasury could not assist in any speculative movement of any sort, and that it had no money in any event to deposit or to lose.

"For many years I have been working to promote the orderly and gradual marketing of agricultural crops especially. I labored for many years to build up the Bureau of Markets to assist the farmers with information and guidance. I labored many years to promote co-operation among farmers, not only for better production, but for better marketing and for better financing of their activities. This movement has made considerable headway, but not the headway it should have made, and the imperfection of existing methods and machinery for such purposes, through the failure of the farmers to take the necessary action, is in part responsible for the difficulties in which they find themselves."

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

Seal Pup in a Blizzard

This Bay seal pup was born in an ice storm which has matted his coat with frosty particles but will not harm him in any other way. For about six weeks he will stay on the ice, after which he will crawl to the nearest creek and take his first swim under the instruction of his mother. At the same time he will learn to pick up his own living from the fish and shell fish which abound near land. This unusual photograph was taken near a Revillon Post in Hudson Bay.

SAYS CITY TRAFFIC NEEDS MORE POLICE

Sufficient re-enforcement of the traffic detachment to enable the Police Department to station a traffic policeman by day at hundreds of points which need a ruler of vehicles was suggested by Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo yesterday at a conference of experts regarding the city's traffic problem and suitable motor vehicle legislation for the State. A number of concrete suggestions for more comprehensive motor vehicle legislation grew out of the conference.

The conferees, who met informally at luncheon at the Hotel Wolcott, under the auspices of the National Highways Protective Society, included, besides Magistrate McAdoo, Col. Edward S. Cornell, chairman of the society; E. C. Mead of the Merchants' Association committee which has been studying the traffic problem; Lawson Purdy, President of the Charity Organization Society; Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb of the Traffic Court; Assistant District Attorney Moses L. Ryttenberg; R. B. Stoeckel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles of Connecticut; Benjamin G. Eynon, Registrar of Motor Vehicles of Pennsylvania; A. K. Wing and George P. Lebrun, assistant to Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner.

"Commissioner Enright should take 1,000 or more men from his present police force and put them on traffic duty, where they could do more effective all-around police work in the daytime," Magistrate McAdoo declared. "The submarine in wartime was not more dangerous than are the gunmen of today—the 'auto bandit.' If these auto robbers had to cross the path of a sharp-eyed traffic policeman at each corner they would think twice before they committed crime.

"I would like to see the Motor Vehicle License Bureau consolidated at City Hall with the Police Department branches concerned with motor vehicles. Each automobile operator before being permitted to run a car should prove that he is a sober and good citizen, and taxicab drivers should prove their knowledge of the city's geography, their mental fitness and general ability, and a way should be found to indemnify victims of the recklessness of impecunious taxicab drivers and other autoists."

Magistrate McAdoo added that he was urging a special Magistrate's Court to hear cases of accidental death after the fashion of the old Coroner's Court system.

Magistrate Cobb pointed out that the finger printing of all operators of automobiles at the time of licensing would aid the cause of justice.

"The public should not object to finger printing—it is a great protection and aid in identifications," he said. Autoists who object to this procedure should remember that filed away in Washington are the finger prints of some 4,000,000 men of the United States who served the country during the war."

Assistant District Attorney Ryttenberg, who aided the August Grand Jury in its investigation of motor vehicle regulation, declared the Grand Jury in its report would probably recommend that more than 1,000 traffic policemen be added to the existing squads.

New York autoists may find themselves barred from the neighboring States of New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts, Colonel Cornell said, if suitable legislation governing the licenses is not passed in this State this year. He asserted that there was a movement in those States to bar auto drivers from New York because of licensing laxity here.

4 GO TO JAIL FOR SPEEDING.

Two automobilists received straight jail sentences from Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in Traffic Court yesterday. In all 187 speeders appeared before Magistrates Cobb and Frederick E. House in two parts of the Traffic Court, and fines aggregating about $3,000 were collected.

George Costildi, 20 years old, of 321 West Sixty-seventh Street, convicted as a second offender of driving at thirty-six miles an hour in Riverside Drive between Ninety-fifth and Ninety-eighth Streets, was sentenced to serve twenty days in the Workhouse. Joseph Kaylauskas, a chauffeur of 429 Grand Street, convicted of driving at thirty-six miles an hour in Lafayette Street, between Houston and Bond Street, received a sentence of five days in the City Prison.

Magistrate House meted out two prison sentences and levied heavy fines against the second offenders brought before him. Max Rubin, 19 years old, a chauffeur of 2[illegible] South Second Street, Brooklyn, convicted of speeding at Second Avenue and First Street, was sentenced to ten days in the City Prison. Solomon Rosenzweig of 1,150 Second Avenue received five days in the City Prison for speeding in Seventh Avenu at Eighteenth Street.

Julius Horowitz of 205 Second Avenue, a manufacturer of furs, found guilty of speeding in Second Avenue, was fined $100 when it was found he was a second offender. Herbert Callman, a silk manufacturer of 706 Riverside Drive, received a like fine for speeding at Amsterdam Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street.

Robert Pastor, 6 years old, was taken to Fordham Hospital yesterday after he was struck at Sherman Avenue, near Dyckman Street, by an auto truck driven by Henry Weinberger of 1,847 Southern Boulevard. The boy was on his way to school. Weinberger carried Robert to the hospital in his truck.

Mrs. Margaret Bolle of 586 Sixth Avenue, Astoria, L. I., was crossing Third Avenue at Fifty-ninth Street yesterday when struck by an automobile. She was taken to Flower Hospital.

Five others suffered minor injuries in auto accidents in Manhattan yesterday.

A small runabout traveling north in Second Avenue collided at Twenty-fifth Street last night with Fire Truck 16, trailing its engine to a fire at the Twenty-third Street station of the Second Avenue elevated line. Robert Rassinelli of 1,422 Sixty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, a passenger on the running board of the runabout, was crushed between the two machines. At Bellevue Hospital late last night it was said he would die. Gus Piccirillo of 1,617 Twelfth Avenue, Brooklyn, owner of the runabout, was held at the East Twenty-second Street Station on a charge of felonious assault.

DEPUTY SHERIFF KILLED IN FIGHT WITH MINERS

Other Officers and Unionists Are Wounded in Quarrel Over West Virginia Meeting.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 6.—One Deputy Sheriff was killed, three others were wounded seriously and two miners were shot in a fight early tonight at Blair, Logan County, W. Va., on Little Coal River, according to information received here by Fred Mooney, Secretary of District 17, United Mine Workers of America.

Mooney announced that his report on the fight, received by telephone, indicated that the trouble started when the Deputy Sheriffs interrupted a meeting of Blair Local Union 2,887, United Mine Workers.

He added that, according to information received by him, Joseph Gore, a Logan County Deputy Sheriff, was killed and that one miner was wounded, probably fatally.

The shooting occurred, Mooney said, he was informed, when Gore and a miner got into an argument during the meeting.

The three men with Gore who were wounded were Holly Smith, "Butch" Mullen and Elmer Smith, while the two miners who were shot are Oscar Pepper and Seymour Kinder.

Announcing Packard "Single Six"

The 10-Year Car

WE have always made large cars designed for maximum speed, great power, and all the roominess that goes with a long wheelbase. The ultimate development has been the Twin Six, which has firmly established itself in the regard of the public, and which we have been producing and marketing for a number of years.

Packard reputation for motor cars rests solidly upon the Twin Six, and it always will!

Packard

But there has for years been an insistent demand for another car to supplement the Twin Six: a car of shorter wheelbase and lighter weight, a general-purpose car of great maneuverability in traffic, one that would park in a short space at the curb.

And the demand was that this light car should give unusual gasoline mileage and tire mileage, and finally, that it should be designed and built Packard-wise, and therefore be able to keep out of the repair shop longest and to require least attention from its owner or driver.

We thought it over and studied the problem for a good many years, during all of which we were accumulating experience in the design and production of the highest possible grade of car.

We have at various times during the past ten years designed a lightweight companion to our larger cars, but were never entirely satisfied with our efforts.

Then the war broke out in 1914, and believing that America would inevitably become involved, we turned our attention to designing airplane engines, and from then to the close of the war, had a thoroughly successful experience in designing and manufacturing airplane motors, which, as you know, must give the greatest power with the least possible weight.

We learned a great deal through this experience that was applicable to the automobile, and towards the close of the war we felt we were finally well equipped by experience to design the light-weight car.

Meanwhile, with a constantly growing talk of congestion in traffic, and increasing cost of gasoline, tires and other supplies, the demand for the light car became more and more insistent.

We have taken several years for the development and perfection of this new Packard, but we believe we have accomplished what we set out to do, and take now a pride in announcing that the Packard Single Six will soon be ready. It will be manufactured alongside the Twin Six and by the same matured and experienced organization.

The new car is of five-passenger capacity and will be offered in Touring, Runabout, Coupé and Brougham or Sedan.

The motor has six cylinders, 3⅜" bore by 4½" stroke. It is therefore of medium size, and despite its light weight is very sturdily built.

It is equipped with the Fuelizer.

The Single Six motor is new throughout, but it is not experimental.

It includes every principle of good engineering that our experience has shown to make for maximum power, coupled with silent operation and freedom from annoying troubles. We have failed of our intentions if we have not produced a motor that will run longer and require less attention than any other.

Our chassis design is very simple and clean. Its light weight, together with its unusually efficient motor, result in a very economical car.

As an instance of this, in our test driving in cross-country runs, we have made over twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline. Of course, in congested city driving, the mileage will not be so high.

Average tire mileage can be expected to exceed 15,000 miles. In our extensive experimental driving of this new car, we have had some tires in fair condition at the end of 25,000 miles.

It is an agreeable car to operate, having the easiest possible steering, the lightest clutch action, the shortest turning radius, and, we believe, all those qualities that you would like to have in a light-weight car for general purposes.

The workmanship and finish are Packard throughout.

Packard

The greatest obtainable luxury, the maximum power, and the ultimate in road-ability, must always be found in the large car. That is the field in which the Packard Twin Six will always be dominant.

In this new car we have not attempted to compete in that field, but rather to produce an active, easily-operated, high-grade, light car, with all the elements of efficiency, economy of operation and, above all, long life.

There are Packard cars today, designed years ago, that are nearing the half-million mark in miles traveled.

The new Single Six is also, we confidently believe, a TEN-YEAR CAR.

BROOKLYN IS HAPPY OVER TURN IN TIDE

FANS AVOID ALL PARTIALITY

Muster a Cheer for Good Plays or Lusty Wallops Whether Made by the Robins or Indians.

The sun set last evening in a roseate glow wherever the western horizon line of Flatbush lies. The roofs and chimneys and window panes of the Summer and Winter colony glowed in diluted crimson. Cheeks were pink and curling tendrils or bald-pates were ruddy under its rays. The eyes of the happy villagers gleamed joyously under ruby lashes and even noses were aflare with a hue that caused sedate citizens, fathers of families and pillars of churches, to be trailed homeward by suspicious revenue agents.

There was, in other and a trifle truer words, lots of joy abaft and abeam Ebbets Field because mighty Casey had not struck out. Casey Robinson and all his little Caseys—anybody can be little when compared with Robbie; it's no trick at all—had delivered the goods. Joy bulged the walls of the dwellings occupied by Squire Ebbets's neighbors and its waves radiated westward, subsiding into happiness in Brooklyn proper—Brooklyn is always proper—serenity in Manhattan, indifference in Syracuse and acute grief in Cleveland.

Now, this joy just mentioned as having drenched Flatbush last evening was not extravagantly manifested at the scene of hostilities in the second world's series game. At the ball park one was left a little in doubt as to whether the proceedings and their outcome were highly pleasing to the crowd or the reverse. Nobody kicked out any rafters in ecstatic approval of the success achieved by Robinson Hood's merry men in trimming the allied Sheriffs of Nottingham from the lake shore and squaring accounts with them. No, if the game really provided keen pleasure for the onlookers then the onlookers took their pleasure sadly or, at least, imperturbably.

Peering Into the Unknown.

Accounting for this mildness of enthusiasm over the triumph of the Robins may appear difficult. It would be if we didn't have our ouija board here on the desk and a little book containing ninety different accurate solutions of the riddle of the Sphinx. Thus equipped, we delve confidently into the abstruse calculations involved.

Aha, what have we here? Ouija says it wasn't a Brooklyn crowd at all. Come on, you ouija! Give us the complete solution. What! The Brooklyn fans ran out on Squire Ebbets? Say not so, ouija; you are breaking our hearts.

Well, anyhow, this gang at Ebbets Field yesterday wasn't a partisan gathering at all. Applause—but not tostentorian—was to be had for the plucking by any member of either team who qualified by a nifty play or a crashing hit. The clinging tendrils of Speaker's hands, which, guilty of no trickery, made the welkin ring just as lustily as did the goody clouting of Griffith and Gardner or the effective swinging of the arm of Grimes.

By the way, old Grimes is not dead—not any whatever. There's been a grave mistake somewhere. The good old soul is about the livest thing you ever watched.

But, to revert for a moment, it became evident quite early in yesterday's jamboree that the fine old vatted enthusiasm commonly attendant on world's series victories on home grounds was not effervescing around the pleasure grounds in Flatbush. Whether recent disclosures of past discoveries of rich veins under pillows are partially responsible is a moot question. Unquestionably the throng that saw the second game of the interleague series was largely an alien crowd. Either Brooklyn wouldn't fill Ebbets Field at the prices asked or fans from foreign points like Manhattan and other outlets made such large demands on the supply that local fans fared poorly. Whatever the cause, if Brooklyn was there it didn't cheer on its team very heartily; if it wasn't there, then the Robins got all the noise to be expected.

Ah, Yes, He Was There Again.

It seems essential at this point to hang one more wreath on Cleveland's mysterious man with the megaphone. He was there again—he was all there. His voice, uncalculated to rouse envy in John McCormack, but tuned, doubtless, to the music of the harsher spheres, had been resuscitated, filed and whetted over night, and, once more, his bellowed words summoned the Indians to the warpath throughout the game. Weaker than his voice, however, they had cracked under the strain of listening to him. One felt like handing it to this loyal fan at that. What's it? Oh, anything hard and handy available for a missile. With two men gone in Cleveland's half of the ninth, he was exhorting his fellow citizens, with as much fervor as ever, to arise and smite the foe.

The fans who eventually thronged the baseball coliseum of Brooklyn to capacity yesterday were much slower in arriving than on the preceding day. Only about one hundred were there at the breakfast hour, and when, shortly before noon, the gates to the temporary stands were thrown open, possibly a couple thousand swirled inward. The grand stand, too, was slow in filling. Fifteen minutes before game time the big structure seemed hardly two-thirds full. Yet when Umpire Connolly launched the fray at 2 o'clock practically every seat had been filled by a final belated rush. The crowd was well handled throughout by a patient body of police officers.

Manager Robinson, beloved man that he is, yet failed yesterday to draw from the onlookers more than a fraction of the applause that greeted Manager Speaker. Cause why? 'Cause Mr. Speaker was out there cavorting around as per usual and, as per always, snaring balls designed to cave in the face of the clock in the Meriden City Hall. Provided an expert on Meriden bobs up and says the clock in Meriden's City Hall hasn't got a face because Meriden has no City Hall, the above is all off and bettors may receive their money back at this desk.

A Grave Disappointment.

On the other hand, Mr. Robinson didn't cavort once during the festivities. Well blanketed and freshly currycombed, he jogged gently up and down the coaching line at first base once or twice, but he absolutely declined to cavort. Persons who had come from as far as Galveston and Tulsa in the hope of seeing Robbie cavort went sadly away feeling that a great spectacle had been denied them.

Still the efficient Brooklyn manager appeared in action once. That was in the third inning when Umpire Connolly called Griffith out at the plate and the decision didn't make much of a hit with the rotund leader of the Robins. So he put on his genial face into what passes with him for a frown, and made a pilgrimage to the plate to call Connolly to account.

"Fine, Robbie," answered the arbiter.

"Don't you think you was just a leetle mite wrong that time, Tommie?"

"I been watchin' myself for forty-two years, Robbie, and I ain't ever known me to be wrong."

ROBINS SHUT OUT INDIANS IN SECOND

Zip, went the ball over again and Johnston's bat just clipped the top of the ball as the tantalizing spitball was breaking into a deceptive tangent. The ball rolled straight for the waiting hands of Pete Kilduff, who tossed to Ivy Olson, and Gardner was forced at second for the final out of Cleveland's most promising inning.

Crowd Slow to Arrive.

There was no wild rush for the bleacher and pavilion seats yesterday, and the grand stand spectators, remembering the cold blasts which wafted through the park on the opening day, were slow in arriving. Half an hour after the gates were thrown open the bleachers and pavilion were not half filled.

While the teams were warming up there was a constant stream of visitors to the Cleveland bench to congratulate Manager Speaker on his victory of the day before. "Spoke," as Tris is commonly known, is a popular man. He is the kind who mixes with his men and his friends, and there is none of that high-toned pose about him which many baseball managers consider necessary to go with their jobs.

While it wasn't so uncomfortable at Ebbets Field yesterday as on Tuesday, there was a real Autumn nip in the air, although the wind was not bothersome. It wasn't until game time that the park was filled up. When the game started the crowd taxed the capacity of the park, but there was none of the picturesque atmosphere which usually attends world's series games. For some reason or other the Brooklyn fan hasn't become as excited about Brooklyn's chances of becoming the champions of the world as was expected. The victory yesterday, however, should cheer him up to a point where he can churn up a lot of excitement in the game today.

The Brooklyn fans are a peculiar species, anyway. They are either red hot or stone cold. Usually, when Brooklyn is winning, they forget home, mother and all the children in the wild abandon of exhaltion. When the Dodgers are losing they drop into the depths of despair. It wasn't until toward the end of the game, when the Brooklyn fans were certain that the Dodgers would win, that the fans broke forth in their accustomed manner. Speaker went up on dead-head hill, where the fans get a long-distance slant at the game for nothing, there was a lot of commotion when the Dodgers won.

Bagby Is Speaker's Choice.

Speaker pinned his faith yesterday on Sergeant Jim Bagby, who has been a whale of a pitcher in the American League during this past season. The Sarge is one of those big, slow, lazy individuals, who takes his own sweet time about tossing the ball. Jim looked as if he wouldn't bat an eye even if the grand stand was burning up. The Dodgers spanked him for a run in the first inning, and from that time on they had him completely worried. He found himself in many deep holes, and he contributed the only error of the game. His playmates gave him excellent support, Speaker again roaming all over the outfield to help him out of difficulties.

One of these catches by Tris sparkled like a diamond tiara. In the fourth inning Pete Kilduff cracked a fly between left and center fields and it looked as if it was going safe. Jamieson and Speaker both rushed for it, coming from opposite directions. The crowd held its breath as the two outfielders approached each other going at top speed. It looked as if there was going to be a serious head-on collision. Just as the men approached the soaring pill, Jamieson swerved to the side and Speaker came tearing along and just nabbed the ball. It was a fine catch for Speaker, but was pretty tough for Peterkin. Previous to this, in the second inning, Kilduff hammered a terrific liner to third and it was so swift that it sent Larry Gardner to his knees to stop it.

The first inning showed that the Indians were not quite as alert as they were in the opening game. After Olson lofted to Wambsy, Jimmy Johnston drove a grounder to deep short and although Sewell made a long throw, the runner beat it out for a hit, Sewell's throw being low and bounding over brother Doc's roof. Doc recovered the ball in time to prevent his brother gaining any benefit from the weird toss.

Wheat Drives in First Run.

The Johnston boys didn't hobnob much at first and Jummy's visit was short, for on the first pitched ball he stole second. The brothers evidently are not fond of each other's company. Griffith rolled to Johnston and Bagby covered first and completed the demise of Tommy, Jimmy Johnston going to third. Zach Wheat pumped a double to center field. The ball was thrown to Sewell in time to cut down Wheat, if the Cleveland player had been alert. His back was to Wheat and he didn't see him coming, so Zach whistled right past him and made second, Johnston scoring with the Dodgers' first run.

The Dodgers picked on Bagby again in the third. Grimes struck a blow in his own cause when he laced a single to centre. Olson rolled an innocent looking grounder to Bagby and Sarge turned nowhere and made a throw to second to force Grimes. The ball hit Grimes as he collided with Sewell, the Brooklyn pitcher doing a somersault over the infielder. The ball hopped out into the field and all hands were safe. Grimes injured his leg in the melee and Uncle Robbie, Doc Hart, the Dodger trainer, and a dozen players rushed out and held a clinic at second base. When they got the kink out of Burleigh's leg, hostilities were resumed, with Grimes limping. Bagby figured that he ought to catch Grimes and his limp napping off second, but when he chucked the ball back, Burleigh forgot the limp and got back nicely.

Johnston popped to O'Neill and Griffith pounded a two bagger to right, scoring Grimes. Bagby didn't like the looks of Zack Wheat one bit, and passed him intentionally, filling the bases. Myers rolled to Gardner, who threw into O'Neill and forced Olson, while O'Neill chucked to Doc Johnston in an effort to make a double play on Myers but he was to late. Griffith tried to sneak home during the excitement but Johnston whipped the ball back to O'Neill and Griff was out at the plate.

Manager Robinson and the Brooklyn players took violent exception to Umpire Connelly's version of this play and Robbie said he was willing to take an oath on a stack of bibles that Tommy was safe. Robbie talked fast, but Connelly talked faster and louder and won the argument easily.

Score Again in Fifth.

Waltzing over to the fifth inning, it can readily be noticed that the Dodgers made their third and final run of the soiree. After Sewell had crushed Grimes with a nice toss to first, Olson singled to centre. Again the brotherly relations of the Johnston boys came into the game. Jimmy, who wears the Brooklyn colors, rolled a grounder to Doc, who flies the flag of Cleveland. Doc was going to throw to second and force Olson and then he thought of his own brother coming up the first base line, so he deserted his deadly intentions on Olson and fired the ball to Bagby and retired his brother Jimmy. Doc isn't going to have it said back home in West Virginia that his young brother Jimmy got the better of him in this world's series, if he can help it. Tom Griffith was again on the job with a timely hit. He shot a grounder down through second which flirted shyly with Sewell and gave him no encouragement and Olson romped over with another run.

Indians Stage Short Rally.

Bagby was taken out of the game in the seventh when Jack Graney was sent in to try his hand at pinch-hitting. This seventh was the only inning wherein the Clevelands were able to bunch two hits on Grimes and it didn't do them a bit of good. Larry Gardner opened the session with a single to centre and Doc Johnston forced him. Sewell drove Griffith back against the concrete wall to capture his long drive and Steve O'Neill soaked a single to left, which perched Johnston on third. Speaker went up to hit in place of Bagby and a rumble of real applause swept through the crowd when Grimes showed no pity and fanned him.

That the Indians were not wide awake to their opportunities was shown far back in the second inning when an old experienced player like Larry Gardner was guilty of an unwarranted nap at second. Larry opened up on Grimes with a double to left and Johnston rolled a grounder to Grimes. Grimes faked a throw to first to get Johnston and this by-play fooled Gardner just enough to coax him off second. Burleigh whipped the ball to second and Larry was caught flat-footed. Shame on him.

George Uhle, the lad who was recruited from the sandlots in Cleveland, succeeded Bagby and nary a hit did the Dodgers get during the two innings he was pitching. He fanned three of the six Robins who faced him.

The Indians made a last desperate effort to get a run in the ninth. After Sewell had rolled to Konetchy and O'Neill sked to Griffith no less a person than Leslie Nunamaker, who used to catch for the Yankees, went up to hit in place of Uhle. Leslie was greeted with several cries of "three out," but he fooled everybody by smacking a single to centre field. Jamieson was now the hope of the quaking Indians and to give him encouragement Joe Wood rushed up and told him to bunch a pinch hit. But Joe Wood never got a chance to bat, as Jamieson hoisted a fly to short left and Zach Wheat, the Brooklyn idol, came in on the dead run, grabbed the ball and cut for the clubhouse as the crowd swarmed out on to the field.

NIMBLE FAN SCALES FENCE.

The most industrious of all the fans at the second game of the world's series appeared just at the beginning of the eighth inning. And "appeared" is the word, for he came, first his head, then his shoulders, and after that the rest of him, over the top of the high fence abaft of right field. Whether he was a strayed tightrope walker or a lost steeplejack, or merely an animated receptacle of homemade hootch, it was impossible to say. But, mincing precariously along the narrow rail, he divided attention with the struggling teams and got more than a leonic share. Finally, on acrobatic toes, he gained a place of safety beside a flagstaff, which he embraced lovingly, and the cops did not oust him, probably because such industry deserved the reward.

Steve O'Neill's Brother Present.

Jack O'Neill, the receiving end of the famous O'Neill-O'Neill battery of the St. Louis Cardinals almost twenty years ago, saw his first world's series game yesterday. Jack was attracted to this series by the fact that Steve O'Neill, the third member of the family to play in the majors, is with the Indians. Having played in the National League, Jack is naturally pulling for the Robins—to get second money.

Nunamaker's First Series Hit.

Les Nunamaker, one-time Yankee, delivered on his first opportunity to get a world's series hit. He batted for Lunte in the ninth and smacked a single over second base. Nunny was with the Boston Red Sox during the 1912 series, but he had no opportunity to swing a bat in that series.

GRIMES AN ENIGMA TO SPEAKER'S MEN

Burleigh in Difficulty Only in Eighth Inning, When Passes Fill the Bases.

GRIFFITH'S HITTING TIMELY

Tommy Drives Two Runners Over Plate and Zach Wheat Chases Another Home.

The selection of Grimes as Brooklyn's pitcher and Bagby for Cleveland left no doubt as to how the teams would take the field. It meant that Johnston, Jamieson and Smith would play the positions occupied at the start of the opening game by Burns, Evans and Wood. Manager Robinson employed the same line-up in his infield and outfield, but used Miller behind the bat, as the veteran usually works well with Grimes and other Brooklyn spitball pitchers.

The umpires started the rotation which will prevail throughout the series. Tommy Connolly, who was at first base in the opening game, called balls and strikes yesterday, O'Day moved from second to first base, Dinneen from third to second and Klem from the plate to third. Grimes drew a noisy reception as he walked to the mound, as the crowd seemed to feel that his baffling spitball would be enough to carry the Robins back on even terms with the American League champions.

First Inning.

CLEVELAND—Grimes had pitched a ball and a strike to Gardner when Larry slapped a wicked bounder off Jimmy Johnston's bare hand, the ball rolling to foul ground near the left field bleachers for a double. Doc Johnston's two efforts to sacrifice were failures and he finally bounded to Grimes, who drove Gardner back toward second, finally throwing to Olson for the putout on Larry. Grimes pitched two balls to Sewell before he got one over and Sewell popped it to Olson in short left field. With O'Neill at the plate, Doc Johnston tried to emulate brother Jimmy by stealing second. He failed in his attempt, Miller making a good throw to Kilduff for the putout. No runs, one hit, no errors.

BROOKLYN—Konetchy, first batter up for the Robins, started the second pitched ball for his favorite home run section in the left field bleachers but the ball didn't not carry enough and Jamieson pulled it down. Kilduff followed by smacking one on the nose, but the ball smoked a trail directly into the waiting hands of Larry Gardner. The inning closed when Miller sent up a foul which O'Neill coughed close to the Cleveland dugout. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

CLEVELAND—The count was two balls and one strike on O'Neill when Steve hit on top of a spitter and it bounded weakly to Grimes for an easy out at first base. Bagby hit hard, but straight at Grimes, who made a clean stop and got Jim at first base. Jamieson, after failing in his attempt to lay down a bunt, drove a single over second base; but it did no good, as Wheat ran in from deep left field and captured Wamby's short fly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

BROOKLYN—Grimes, one of the best hitters among the major league pitchers, hit the first world's series ball pitched to him and drove it over second base for a single. Olson bunted and Bagby threw a trifle wide to Sewell at second base, both runners being safe. Grimes fell over Sewell while the latter was bending down for the ball and he injured his leg. The game was held up until Grimes was ready to continue, players of both teams gathering around second base. Johnston tried to advance the runners with a sacrifice and popped a little foul for O'Neill. A pop foul from Griffith's bat eluded Gardner, Sewell and Jamieson, and then Tommy slapped a double off Wamby's glove, the ball caroming almost to the right field foul line, Grimes scored on the hit and Olson pulled up at third. Wheat was too dangerous, so he got an intentional pass, which filled the corners. Myers bounded to Gardner, who threw to O'Neill, forcing Olson at the plate. O'Neill's throw to first base for a double play hit Myers in the back, but Johnston recovered the ball and threw to O'Neill in time to get Griffith, who tried to score on the play. One run, two hits, one error.

Fourth Inning.

CLEVELAND—Speaker worked Grimes down to a count of three and two before drawing a pass. Smith's effort resulted in a slow roller along the first base line which Koney fielded for an easy out, while Speaker moved along to second. Gardner had a strike against him when he lofted to centre for an easy catch by Myers. Grimes had two balls and two strikes against Johnston when Doc hit a long fly to left centre, Wheat running back to make the catch. No runs, no hits, no errors.

BROOKLYN—Konetchy was easy with a pop fly over the infield, Wamby making the catch. Then came another exhibition of the wonderful fly chasing ability of Speaker, who ran over far into left field and picked off a hard smash by Kilduff. Miller hit to Bagby on a single bound for an easy out at first. Speaker got an ovation as he came in from the field. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

CLEVELAND—Joe Sewell gave Grimes no great trouble when he led off for the Indians in the fifth. He bounded to the Brooklyn pitcher and the ball was over to Koney long before the speedy shortstop reached the bag. O'Neill hit the ball a little further, but not much. It was a high bounder which Olson corralled and Steve lost the decision on a close play at Koney's station. Bagby hit hard to centre field, but too high for success and Myers was under the ball. No runs, no hits, no errors.

BROOKLYN—Sewell made a nice pickup in deep short and followed with a perfect throw to Johnston, retiring Grimes. Olson warmed up his bat with a flock of fouls before he smacked a single past second base. Doc Johnston took brother Jimmy's weak roller, saw that he could not get Olson at second, and tossed to Bagby for the out at first base, while Ivy camped at second. Griffith hit hard past Bagby, the ball eluded Sewell near second base and went for a hit, Olson hurrying home with another run. Ivy halted at third, but got down on orders from Cadore, who was coaching there, and made the plate easily. Malis and Uhle resumed their warming up in the bull pen. With the count two and two on Wheat Zach called for an examination of the ball and Umpire Connolly looked it over, then threw it back to the Cleveland pitcher. The next was a pitchout and Griffith was an easy out on his attempted steal O'Neill to Wamby. One run, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

CLEVELAND—Jamieson got a good hold on a ball served up to him and started it toward right field, but Kilduff ran over, made a fancy stop, and Jimmy had his run for exercise only. Wamby's effort was a fly to right centre, for which Kilduff, Myers and Griffith all raced. The first two gave way to Tommy and stood beside him as he caught the ball. Speaker drove a ball on a line over Olson's head, and pulled up at second on the clout. He got no further, however, as Koney took care of Smith's high bounder, and beat Elmer in the run to the bag. No runs, one hit, no errors.

BROOKLYN—Smith gave way to Speaker when Wheat hit to deep right centre, and the ball nestled in the glove of the Cleveland hawk. Myers laid down a bunt, on which Gardner came in fast, but not fast enough, and Hy made first base safely. Koney hoisted far into the outfield, and Speaker was giving encouraging words at Smith's side when the Cleveland right fielder took the ball. Again Kilduff made a strong bid for a hit, but Speaker was watchful, Smith backing to the right field wall to make the catch. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

CLEVELAND—Gardner opened the Indians' half of the inning with a hard smash past the box for a hit. Kilduff checked the ball behind second with his bare hand, but could not make a play for Gardner at first base. The speed of Doc Johnston then prevented a double play. The Indians' first sacker forced Gardner at second, Olson to Kilduff, but he was over first base before Pete's throw reached Konetchy. The crowd let out a groan when Sewell started what looked like a home run over the right field wall, but there was no occasion for it, as Griffith backed into the cement barricade and caught the ball. O'Neill added another hit to his world's series collection with a Texas Leaguer to left field, the ball being too far out for Olson and too far in for Wheat. Johnston could make only one base on the hit, halting at second. Speaker sent Jack Graney up to help the cause along as pinch hitter for Bagby, but Grimes's spitter was too much for the veteran, and he was retired on strikes. He went out on a called strike, a foul and a hard swing at a spitter. No runs, two hits, no errors.

BROOKLYN—Uhle went to the box for Cleveland while the home crowd took its seventh inning stretch much more joyfully than the stretch at this period of the opening game. The new pitcher made an auspicious start by getting over a third strike on Miller, a feat which Bagby had failed to accomplish against any of the Robins in his six innings. Grimes caught a curve on the end of his bat and raised an easy fly to Elmer Smith. With the count two and two against Olson, Ivy tipped one which settled in O'Neill's mit for the third out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

CLEVELAND — Jamieson worked Grimes down to three balls and two strikes before he strolled to first. George Burns went in to hit for Wambsgans and he also walked, after having two strikes against him. The fans groaned as Speaker toed the plate and Jimmy Johnston went to the box to steady Grimes. Pfeffer was warming up in the bull pen for Brooklyn, and Morrison was taking similar exercise for Cleveland. Speaker hit hard but straight at Kilduff, who fumbled slightly, then got the ball and retired Speaker at first while Jamieson went to third and Burns to second. The fans cut loose with a great cheer when Smith raised an easy pop foul for Miller. Four straight balls sent Gardner on his way to first base and crowded the corners. Here was the tying run on first base and the Indians were developing into real rooters. When Johnston, with two strikes against him, grounded to Kilduff for a force play at second base on Gardner the crowd let out with a whoop that must have resounded in every section of Brooklyn. No runs, no hits, no errors.

BROOKLYN—When the Indians took their places in the field Lunte was at second base for Cleveland. Jimmy Johnston's fly did not carry over the infield and Sewell was under it. Groans exuded fro mthe stands when Umpire Connolly called a third strike on Griffith and Tommy stuck around the plate to argue with the umpire over the decision. Wheat's fly to left field might have been handled by either Sewell or Jamieson, but the latter took it. No runs, no hits, no errrs.

Ninth Inning.

CLEVELAND—Grimes pitched two balls, then two strikes, before Sewell gave Konetchy an easy grounder for an unassisted play. O'Neill's drive wafted straight into the waiting hands of Griffith. Nunamaker batted for Uhle and carried the count down to two and two before he drove a single to centre field. The count was three and two against Jamieson and Nunamaker was on his way to second base when the batter lifted a fly to Wheat in short left field. Zach had to dodge several fans as he carried the precious souvenir across the field, to disappear in the Brooklyn dugout. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Jack Coombs on the Fence.

"I have a number of friends on both clubs and would like to see both win," remarked Jack Coombs when asked which team he liked in the blue ribbon event. Jack was with the Robins when they figured in the 1916 world's series, but at the present time he is in the American League.

Smith or Mamaux Will Oppose Mails at Ebbets Field Today

Brooklyn's pitching choice for the third game of the world's series, to be played this afternoon at Ebbets Field, remains in doubt, and the Cleveland lineup naturally remains the same way until Manager Robinson selects his pitcher. The boss of the Robins announced last night that he would call either Sherrod Smith, a southpaw, or Al Mamaux, a right-hander, for today's game. If Smith is Robbie's final choice Burns, Evans and Wood will be in the Cleveland lineup. Against Mamaux it will be Johnston, Jamieson and Smith. Mails is the probable pitcher for the Indians, and if he gets the call Bernie Neis will play right field for Brooklyn. The batting order:

Evans or Jamieson, lf.	Olson, ss.
Wambsgans, 2b.	Johnston, 3b.
Speaker, cf.	Neis, rf.
Wood or Smith, rf.	Wheat, lf.
Gardner, 3b.	Myers, cf.
Burns or Johnston, 1b.	Konetchy, 1b.
Sewell, ss.	Kilduff, 2b.
O'Neill, c.	Miller, c.

Umpires—Henry O'Day (N. L.), at plate; William Dinneen (A. L.), at first base; William Klem (N. L.), at second base; Thomas Connolly (A. L.), at third base. Time of game—2 o'clock.

STRONG COMEBACK IS HABIT OF ROBINS

So Says Manager Robinson After Victory—Is Satisfied His Pitching Will Win.

"The boys did just what I expected they would do after what they have been showing me all season," remarked Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn team last night in discussing the victory of his team over the Cleveland Indians in the second game of the world's series. "It has been their habit all year to come back strongly after defeat, and naturally I could see no reason why they would not do the same thing in the world's series.

"I said before the series opened that I had as game a ball club as ever trod the diamond, and I think their performance in the second game will satisfy everybody that I estimated the players properly. Some of the fans thought after the fine work of the Indians in the first game that the Brooklyn team would be easy all through the series, but I felt differently about it. Now, that we have come back and evened the series, our confidence in ultimate victory is even greater than before, and we never felt that we would not win.

"The first two games have satisfied me that the two teams are about as closely matched as two teams could be. Each plays the same sort of game, relying on hard hitting for its runs, with little effort to do much base stealing. Of course, Speaker stands out above all the other players as a fielder and as a hitter, but even with Tris in the lineup I cannot concede that Cleveland has a better team than Brooklyn.

"I was satisfied before the series that my pitchers would be able to hold the Indians in check, even though Speaker's team hit above .300 for the season. I am more convinced now on this score. They got only five hits against the three pitchers who worked against them in the first game, and, while they got seven off Grimes in the second game, Burleigh shut them out, which is the final analysis after all. I expect that my other pitchers will be as successful. And don't overlook the fact, either, that my boys batted in three runs against the leading pitcher of the American League for the 1920 season."

FANS CROWD TIMES SQUARE.

Thousands Gather Before Scoreboard to Cheer Winning Robins.

The fact that Cleveland had the advantage entering the second game of the world's series at Ebbets Field didn't affect the attendance at THE NEW YORK TIMES scoreboard yesterday, when the second game was reproduced. The crowd of 10,000 which witnessed the opening game, via the scoreboard installed on the northern end of The Times Building, was duplicated at yesterday's session. Shortly after noon the gathering began to assemble, and as the progress of the game was recorded in the metallic indicator overhead the ranks of spectators swelled steadily until Times Square was again choked with serried rows of fans who derived all the sensations of actual attendance from the scoreboard's graphic reproduction.

The board experienced an improvement in manipulation, which struck favor with the large crowd. Instead of the small numerals used in the opening game, to depict balls, strikes, runs and outs, the operators had installed facilities on both sides of the board which enabled them to use large numbers which could easily be seen from the rear of the packed crowd at Forty-fourth Street. On the eastern end of the board were squares of more than a foot in width, in which the strikes and balls were chronicled, and on the western end were similar squares, where the outs and runs were posted distinctly. Then, too, the runs and hits columns on either side of the board were utilized, numerals being placed in squares opposite each player's name as he made a hit or scored a run, so that everybody knew at a glance just who did the hitting and scoring. This improvement made the reproduction even more realistic and found particular favor with the crowd.

It was a day of celebration for the supporters of the Brooklyn team, who predominated. Traffic Policeman Thompson, a veteran of years on Times Square duty, admitted after the game that he had seldom before witnessed such voluminous outbursts of cheers as those which greeted every favorable play for Brooklyn. The cheering started when the Dodgers scored their first run in the opening inning and grew in volume in the third when the board showed Burleigh Grimes crossing the plate with the second run. In the fifth another resounding cheer was sent up when Ivan Olson, indicated by a little white square which moved quickly about the base paths, raced home with the third Dodger run.

Peculiarly enough the greatest outburst of applause did not come for the Brooklyn scores. The fans entertained ominous thoughts of eventualities right up to the finish of the game, and it was when Cleveland's budding chances of scoring were frustrated that the greatest cheers welled up to echo through the neighborhood.

SPEAKER GIVES ALL CREDIT TO GRIMES

Recognizes Also the Batting of Wheat and Griffith as Factors in Indians' Defeat.

Manager Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians did not have a whole lot to say after yesterday's defeat by Brooklyn. He gave full credit to Grimes's work in the box. In fact, Speaker attributed to Grimes practically the whole blame for the Cleveland defeat, while recognizing the importance of the batting achievements of Zack Wheat and Tommy Griffith.

"We could not hit with men on bases and Brooklyn had two batters who could," said Speaker. "I think that is the best reason I know of in doping out why we lost. Griffith hit safely twice with men in scoring distance and Wheat turned the trick once. We had chances to score more runs than Brooklyn, but Grimes would not let us, although it must be admitted we hit a lot of balls hard.

"Doc Johnston slammed a fierce one to left in the fourth inning that would have scored me had not Wheat made a nice catch. Smith hit two warm grounders to Koney. Jamieson hit at least once in tough luck, and I know that when I grounded to Kilduff in the eighth I hit the ball as hard as ever in my life. And you may remember the one hit by Sewell that Griffith grabbed off the wall. If we could have had some of those go safe we would have been deep in the game.

MRS. GAVIN BEATEN BY MISS CUMMINGS

OTHER STARS TUMBLE

Miss Caverly and Mrs. Letts Lose to Mrs. Hurd and Miss Hollins in Day of Surprises.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Several stars were eliminated in the women's national golf championship at Mayfield today in the second round of match play. The first to fall was Mrs. W. A. Gavin of New York, twice runner-up in the National and contender to Miss Alexa Stirling in 1910. The former English player was opposed by Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, who won by 3 and 2.

She held Mrs Gavin on even terms to the turn and quickly decided the issue on the incomimng nine. Miss Cummings played consistently and deserved the victory, which will send her against Miss Stirling tomorrow morning.

Closely following this match came the champion and Miss Elaine Rosenthal, renewing their duel of war days, when Miss Rosenthal twice won.

Miss Rosenthal held the champion on even terms for the first three holes and then evened the match on the sixth after the Atlanta star had won the fourth with a birdie two on a hole that while short is teeming with difficulties. Miss Stirling won the eighth and came to the turn holding a slender lead.

The champion increased her lead to three by taking the tenth and eleventh, but at the twelfth Miss Rosenthal started a spurt that for a time seriously threatened Miss Stirling's chances. The Chicago player won the twelfth with par golf and took the fourteenth by sinking a good putt.

Miss Rosenthal Threatens.

On the sixteenth Miss Rosenthal won the hole by sinking a brilliant eight-foot putt after taking three to the green and again cut Miss Stirling's lead to one. Then came the most dramatic play of the match and of the championship.

Holding the honor, Miss Rosenthal drove her brassie tee shot dead to the pin, the ball falling seven feet beyond the cup and giving her an easy putt for a birdie two and a chance to even the score, but Miss Stirling was equal to the occasion.

She selected a spoon for her tee shot and played a cut from left to right, the ball soaring beautifully and falling four feet from the cup. Miss Rosenthal studied her putt and played carefully only to have it short by six inches, Miss Stirling brushing the ball away and conceding a three.

On her own putt Miss Stirling lined with care and, taking a bit more time than usual, hit it gently. The ball rolled easily into the cup for a birdie and the match by 2 and 1.

Miss Rosenthal, in talking of the play after the match, paid tribute to Miss Stirling and said: "She is the greatest player in the game and far too good for me."

The abrupt hill that falls away from the right side of the fairway on the fifteenth proved the graveyard for the games of Miss Mildred Caverly of Philadelphia and Mrs. Fred C. Letts of Chicago, Western women's champion. Miss Caverly was paired with Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd and was conceded a good chance to beat this steady playing veteran from Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Hurd was four up at the turn, having a 44 for the outward nine when Miss Caverly attacked savagely and cut the margin to two on the twelfth by sinking a long putt on that hole. Mrs. Hurd won the next and halved the fourteenth. Miss Caverly's drive was of fair length and to the right of the fairway. Shooting her brassie full into the wind, the ball took a slice and fell into the deep rough down the hillside.

The Philadelphian made several futile efforts to play the hill and finally picked up, Mrs. Hurd winning the hole in four, and taking the match 3 and 2 on the sixteenth.

Miss Hollins Wins on Twentieth.

By far the most colorful match was the 20-hole duel of Miss Marion Hollins of New York and Mrs. Letts. Mrs. Letts furnished an early surprise when she took the lead of Miss Hollins and was two up at the fourteenth, but again the hill on the fifteenth caused a change in fortunes. Mrs. Letts on her second shot sliced the ball down the gully and took a five where her opponent needed only four and then Miss Hollins won the sixteenth. The short seventeenth was halved.

Mrs. Letts lay one more stroke than Miss Hollins when they took their putters on the eighteenth. With defeat staring her in the face the Chicago player sank her ball on the first putt while Miss Hollins took two and the round was even.

They halved the nineteenth in 5 and then passed to the second extra hole. Miss Hollins reached the green in 2, her second being a high iron, while Mrs. Letts used 4, her approach being a long running shot that was a marvel. Miss Hollins missed her first putt and Mrs. Letts duplicated. Then with a six-footer before her the Easterner ran the ball into the cup, ending the match.

The results of the second round follow:

Upper Half.

Mrs. Ernest Byfiel, Chicago, defeated Miss Besse Fenn, Portland, Me., 3 and 1; Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia, defeated Miss Dorothy Klotz, Chicago, 5 and 4; Miss Edith Cummings, Chicago, defeated Mrs. W. A. Gavin, New York, 3 and 2; Miss Alexa Stirling, Atlanta, defeated Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Chicago, 2 and 1.

Lower Half.

Mrs. J. V. Hurd, Pittsburgh, defeated Miss Mildred Caverly, Philadelphia, 3 and 2; Miss Marion Hollins, New York, defeated Mrs. F. C. Letts, Jr., Chicago, 1 up (20 holes); Mrs. Quentin Feltner, New York, defeated Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Philadelphia, 7 and 5; Mrs. David C. Gaut, Memphis, defeated Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Philadelphia, 4 and 3.

VASSAR MAY PLAY POLO.

Likely to be First Women's College to Have Team.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Vassar may have a polo team. The project is being considered. A riding field on Sunset Hill has been suggested, where the riders may practice jumping and beginners may learn to ride. This will probably be turned into a polo field next Spring. The Athletic Association Board is in favor of this innovation, and as the college is governed by the students in forum, all that remains to be done is to present it to the Trustees for sanction.

Polo ponies have already been promised for the sport by the manager of the college riding academy. Vassar College, if the project materializes, will be the first women's college in the United States to have a polo team.

Golf Pros Are Closing Their Summer Workshops

Many of the golf professionals are packing up, closing their Summer workshops and buying tickets for the cold weather resorts. Jim Barnes, who played with Jock Hutchison Tuesday against Vardon and Ray at Garden City on his return from the Southern open at Atlanta, will start for California this month, playing at several clubs en route. Leo Diegel plans to join him on the coast, and both will swing around to the Southern courses later in the Winter. Hutchison expects to visit his home in Scotland in December, return in the early Spring and probably go back to Great Britain early next Summer to play in the British open. Alex Smith has closed his shop at the Shenecossett Country Club, New London, and in a few weeks will go to Bellaff as usual. Archie Capper, who has been at Lake Sunapee for the Summer, will again spend the Winter teaching golf at Bermuda. All the professional tournaments for the season have been held and many of the instructors are taking their vacations at this time before leaving for their Winter berths.

WILL MAKE REPORT ON OLYMPIC GAMES

Committee to Meet Wednesday and Reply to Charges Made by Athletes.

The American Olympic Committee of which Gustavus T. Kirby is President, will probably issue a complete report next Wednesday, of its activities, covering every phase of the work involved in organizing, transporting and housing Uncle Sam's athletic team for the recent Olympic Games at Antwerp. President Kirby announced yesterday that a meeting of the entire American Olympic Committee has been called for Wednesday at the New York A. C. The session will convene at three o'clock. A complete financial report will be issued, showing the exact amount of subscriptions received and the expenditures, and in addition each member of the Committee who attended the Olympic Games, will submit reports for discussion and action.

This meeting is expected to produce the committee's answer to the allegations of competing athletes anent conditions which attended their participation in the great international classic. The majority of the athletes, upon their return home, manifested a feeling of hostility against the American Olympic Committee because of the dissatisfaction caused by alleged unfavorable conditions on the trip abroad on the transport Princess Matoika, and during the stay in Antwerp. Some of the athletes complained also of objectionable conditions on ships which brought them back to this country.

To date there has been no official notice of the reported dissatisfaction by the American Olympic Committee as a body. No denial has been forthcoming, nor has there been a defense or explanation of the conditions in an official statement. President Kirby, Justice Bartow S. Weeks and Secretary Frederick W. Rubien have admitted, in personal interviews, that there was reason for some dissatisfaction because of conditions encountered by the athletes. In explaining the conditions the officials have declared the objectionable features were produced through circumstances beyond the control of the committee. Neither President Kirby nor Justice Weeks would go into detail on the reported complaints of the athletes when they arrived Home, both saying they would delay replying to the athletes until a meeting of the American Olympic Committee could be held.

BRITONS BEATEN ON LINKS.

Herron and Travers Take Measure of Ray and Vardon, 2 and 1.

It's getting to be a habit with these Americans to trounce Harry Vardon and Ted Ray. The English professionals of late have been getting more trimmings than they have scored victories, and although some of the results have mystified galleries there was every legitimate reason in the world for the outcome yesterday.

On the links of the Essex County Country Club at Orange a pair of American ex-champions, S. Davidson Herron of Oakmont and Jerome D. Travers of Upper Montclair, turned the trick by the score of 2 and 1 in the thirty-six-hole match. Both had met the Britishers paired with other partners, but never before while teamed together.

Vardon and Ray, it appeared, got going too late, or else underrated the amateurs. The Englishmen had a sensational best ball of 69 in the afternoon, but it wasn't low enough for during the morning Travers and Herron had piled up an advantage of five holes.

With this lead they could afford to play safely. They didn't need to make courageous tries on every putting green, for they were on the defensive and not the attack. Vardon and Ray were able to cut the lead to only three holes by the twenty-seventh and to two holes by winning the twenty-eighth. But then two holes were exchanged, while all the others were being halved, and the match closed officially on the thirty-fifth.

Herron carried the main burden throughout the day and had an approximate individual score of 74. In the morning circuit the amateur pair won seven holes to two for Vardon and Ray and of the seven Herron contributed wins on five of them. Travers' share was a helpful birdie 2 on the ninth and a par 4 on the eighteenth, which was good enough to win. Herron furnished plenty of the spectacular and clicked off a birdie 2 on the eleventh, which was won. Holes in two were sprinkled freely throughout the exhibition, Ray getting one on the third hole in the afternoon and Herron and Ray halving the eleventh.

GARDINER W. WHITE PLAYS GREAT GOLF

Gardiner W. White added another feat yesterday to his long record for 1920, the best season he ever had on the links. When he's at the top of his game it makes no difference whether the weather is frigid or whether a wild wind sweeps the course, and it makes very little difference to him who his partner is.

White, runner-up to Ned Sawyer this year for the local amateur title, losing on the thirty-seventh hole, found himself in the semi-finals of the Piping Rock Invitation Tourney yesterday. He discovered he was pitted against Thomas D. Armour, the tall young Scottie who fought with the famous Black Watch Regiment, and who since demobilization has startled the golfers of two continents with his playing. White knew all this, but went out and upset the dope of the gallery critics with considerable of a splash. He defeated Armour, the champion of France, by the rather wide margin of 5 and 3 and then, to make a really brilliant day of it, won the final by trouncing his clubmate, John N. Stearns, Jr., of Nassau by 3 and 2.

Nassau folk who, by the way, will stage their own invitation event next week, had a glorious laugh on Piping Rock, for in the tournament that to date has attracted the best field, two shotmakers from the club at Glen Cove monopolized the final while the home talent, eliminated in the first and second rounds, stood around awkwardly.

Occasion for Surprises.

Yesterday was an occasion for surprises in more ways than one. White's victory over Armour was only one event of many. It fell to the lot of another golfer from the Nassau Country Club to gather in a large slice of glory. This gentleman is William L. Hicks, known far and wide as the spryest oldtimer on Long Island. He can hold his own with most of the youngsters, he is the pride of Nassau; in fact, they named the ninth hole there "The Hicks" in his honor.

The situation was this: Hicks met J. Simpson Dean, the Princeton University captain and star, in the semi-finals of ten second sixteen and defeated him on the nineteenth hole, a feat that will stand out for many months as one of the sensations of the 1920 season. Hicks holed a putt from the edge of the green to do it.

When Hicks tramped back into the clubhouse buffet he got a reception fit for a king. Every last diner wanted to shake his arm off, and a big moose head on the wall was almost rattled loose by the noise of cheers. Hicks may have won more important matches in his career than in semi-final engagement in a second sixteen, but he never got a noisier reception. In the afternoon Don M. Parker of Garden City had to come along and spoil a better story by defeating the Nassau veteran, 4 and 2.

The Piping Rock tournament is so overrun with high class talent that most every division and beaten eight had players who at one time or another have been headliners. In the first beaten eight, for instance, there was a final match worthy of a championship. F. C. Newton, formerly of Richmond County, where he once won the Staten Island title, but now of Brookline, from which front porch he captains the Massachusetts Lesley Cup team, had a tight contussle with James C. Parrish, Jr., of National. Although blessed at one time with a good lead, Newton had some unfortunate putting, especially late in the match. He explained it afterward that he had missed putts on the seventeenth and eighteenth "as long as this," and then he stretched his finger tips to a span of about seven feet. Some misses. He probably was too ambitious. But after Parrish squared the match on the eighteenth, Newton redeemed all these losses with some fireworks on the extra hole.

Good Drives by Both.

Both had fairly good drives, but Newton's second was a long ball and carried to less than five yards off the green in some medium long grass. With his mashie he played to chip the ball on, and luck was with him. The chip landed, hopped a few times, rolled along and trickled into the cup for a magnificent birdie 3, which gave him the match, since Parrish needed 5.

Armour had no complaint about his match for he was out in 40, the same total taken by White. The latter was next to unbeatable on the last five holes, however, where he uncorked a flashy collection of sensational approach shots which he laid stone dead to the pin.

They were all even at the turn, Armour having won the third hole with a 20-foot putt for a birdie 2 and the eighth and ninth, and White the fourth, sixth and seventh. They were still on even terms at the tenth which was halved in fives. Then White won the next five holes in a row to finish off the match. In each instance victory was by reason of laying approaches dead. On the twelfth, for instance, he chipped to eighteen inches from the cup. On the 400-yard fourteenth, where he got a birdie 3, his win came on a pure and simple fluke. White, all intents and appearances, completely flubbed his second, half topping and half shanking it. But the ball rolled on and on and on, skidded on the green and stopped less than three feet from the hole. On the fifteenth, where the match ended in his favor by 5 and 3, his second was chipped to a yard of the cup.

The cards:

Out—
White	5	5	3	4	4	5	4	3	4	—40
Armour	5	6	2	5	4	6	5	5	3	—40
In—
White	5	3	3	4	3	3
Armour	5	4	4	5	5	4

In the final against Stearns, Gardiner White assumed an early lead and saved most of it right through to the end. By winning the second, third, fifth and seventh in taking advantages of his clubmate's mistakes, White was 4 up and turned 3 to the good after Stearns had won the eighth on a lucky shot played out of a bunker.

Played Like a Rookie.

White went to 2 up when he played the long, uphill tenth like a rookie. He was favored with luck when his second barely escaped going into a trap, but then he flubbed his next, kited his fourth across the green to another trap, landed on with his fifth shot and took two putts. Two holes were halved and then White went back to 3 up by winning the thirteenth with a birdie 3 as the result of a twelve-foot putt. They halved the next and Stearns won the fifteenth with a birdie 3 as the result of a beautifully placed approach dead to the pin.

White made his worst drive of the day on the sixteenth, which he eventually won to close the match. He hooked his ball deep into the woods and only by a break of good luck was he able to play his second out on the fairway. His third carried to the green. Stearns, meanwhile, had made a short drive which dribbled into a rough grass down in front of the tee. His second was short and his third went clear over the green to a trap, where he lost one in getting out. He finally took 6 to White's 5.

Their cards:

Out—
White	4	4	4	4	6	4	5	6	—39
Stearns	4	5	6	4	6	5	6	4	—43
In—
White	7	4	3	5	5	5
Stearns	5	3	4	5	5	6

PROMOTER COCHRAN HERE.

Expects to Have No Part in Proposed Dempsey-Carpentier Bout.

Charles B. Cochran, British boxing and theatrical promoter, will have no part in the promotion of the proposed bout between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Georges Carpentier, European title-holder, from present indications. Promoter Cochran arrived yesterday afternoon on the Olympic, and, in a interview in his suite at the St. Regis last evening, indicated that he was not particularly keen on renewing his contract with Carpentier, which, he said, would expire Dec. 31. After that time Carpentier will be at liberty to negotiate with the promoter offering the most attractive terms for a bout with Dempsey.

Promoter Cochran would not positively deny the prospects of entering into an agreement with Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, and William A. Brady, Cochran's American representative, whereby the proposed Dempsey-Carpentier bout would be conducted under the auspices of the three promoters in this country. The visiting British official, however, refused to predict that anything would come of this proposal and seemed determined to let his Carpentier contract follow its natural course and expire Dec. 31.

The visiting British boxing and theatrical promoter is here on a visit which will extend definitely to Nov. 15 and possibly longer. He plans, at all events, to return to England for the Christmas holidays. While here Mr. Cochran will devote his attention entirely to theatricals and will have absolutely nothing to do with boxing promotion, according to his expressed intentions. The British visitor expects to see both Francois Descamps and Carpentier, with whom he has a warm friendship, but the meeting will be purely social and will not involve pugilistic promotion. When Carpentier enters the ring against Battling Levinsky in Jersey City next Tuesday night, Mr. Cochran will be one of the interested spectators at the ringside.

SECONDS BEAT 'VARSITY.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 6.—As the Allegheny game approaches the Colgate football squad is making strenuous efforts to prevent a repetition of the showing made against the Susquehanna team here last Saturday in the opening game of Colgate's season. The coaching staff, increased by the arrival of Al Woolsey, '14, of Chicago, who was a member of the famous Colgate eleven of 1914, is whipping the men into shape at a pace that has not even been approached in severity since practice started. By the adoption of such tactics the coaches hope to eliminate several 'Varsity men whose positions are shaking from the fierce fight some of the second string men are putting up.

This afternoon's workout, for the most part, was spent in defensive work, and for over two hours six teams were at each other's throats in the hottest scrimmage that has been seen in a practice session this year. In the tustle between the tentative 'Varsity and the second team, the latter soundly thrashed the first string men, holding them scoreless and running up a two touchdown victory before the practice was halted by oncoming darkness. The ability of the Susquehanna team last Saturday to go through the Colgate line at will on several occasions was explained by the scrimmage of this afternoon, for it was only under the very shadow of their goal posts that the 'Varsity could do anything in the way of successful defensive work. The coaches await with anxiety the performance of the line against Allegheny Saturday, but they have done the best the short time has allowed.

Following closely upon Bob Webster's serious illness, which will keep him out of uniform for the rest of the season, Steve Thrall, one of the best fullbacks on the squad, and who made a good record in his first 'Varsity game last Saturday, was hurt in practice this afternoon and will be out of uniform at least ten days, according to Trainer Jack O'Rourke.

LEHIGH SITUATION GLOOMY.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 6.—There was little to choose between the calibre of the two teams that lined up for scrimmage at Lehigh this afternoon. Gloom prevailed around the campus when it was learned that Head Coach J. Thomas Keady is confined to his home, suffering with a severe attack of tonsilitis.

Due to his absence, "Pat" Parzetti, the former All-American quarter back and Keady's chief aid, took charge and sent the players through practically the same program usual for Wednesday afternoons. Today scrimmage was the longest of the week, and will probably be the last before the team faces Rutgers here on Saturday afternoon.

On the scrubs, Coleman, Morgan, W. Henzelman and Bessmer formed the backs, while the Varsity was represented in the backfield by Lingle, Larkin, Savaria and Douglas. Bessmer is the former Iowa University star and, although he is ineligible to play this year, he takes active part in all the scrimmages, and is one of the best backs at Lehigh.

Bernard Fallon, the big freshman guard, who, after spending several days in Pittsburgh, and believed to have deserted the squad, returned and reported for practice. Fallon is in condition, but was unable to take part in the scrimmage due to a badly lacerated hand, sustained in an accident.

Young Girls Astonish Experts By Fine Game on English Links

Young girls as well as the boys are becoming interested in golf in Great Britain this season more than ever before. Championship matches for girls are being held, with the result that more than one infant prodigy has been brought to light. On the St. Andrews links Barbara Griffiths, aged 14, recently did a 92 in one of her rounds. And on the ladies' course at Sunningdale a 13-year-old miss, Ruth Pharazyn, made rounds of 80, 78 and 77.

DALTON WINS IN CLOSE CUE GAME

Defeats Steinbugler by Score of 150 to 141 in Interborough Tourney.

Joseph Dalton and Charley Steinbugler last night engaged in one of the most interesting matches that has yet been staged in the Class C balkline billiard tournament for the interborough championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. A big gallery assembled at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn to see the game, and, after forty-two innings of extremely close playing, Dalton finally emerged the winner by a score of 150 to 141. The winner averaged 3 24-42 and the loser 18-41. Dalton's high run was 21 and Steinbugler's 10.

The winner was in doubt right up to the final innings. From the tenth inning until the close there was never more than 10 points separating the players and both were in such good stroke that victory was within the grasp of either of them until Dalton clicked off seven open table shots that bordered on the sensational and ran out in the forty-second inning. Entering the last inning, Dalton was in the lead by a score of 143 to 141. Steinbugler was confronted with an extremely treacherous lie but elected to play a hard follow shot. He missed by the proverbial bug's whisker. It was then that Dalton ripped off the seven dangerous shots that finally draped his efforts with victory. Had he missed on any one of these shots the chances are that Steinbugler would have won the match. During that closing cluster Dalton was unable to get the balls together. Most of the time they were anywhere from fourteen inches to two feet apart, but his accuracy of execution saved him.

Throughout the clash both players showed great skill at making open table shots. While they were unable to get the ivories together and nurse them for any appreciable length of time, they recorded frequent runs of 7 and 8 points with the balls spread. Steinbugler started the game with a rush, making his high run of 19 points in the opening inning. He maintained his lead until the tenth inning, when Dalton finally passed him. The score then stood 32 to 30 in Dalton's favor and he managed to maintain a scant lead throughout the remainder of the game.

While there was little of the sensational during the game, with the exception of Dalton's last seven shots, the play was so uniformly good for Class C billiardists that the match was very interesting. So evenly matched were the players and so close was the score all the way to the finish that there really was not a dull moment during the session on the green cloth. Both players seem to be within a notch or two of mid-season form. Only at rare intervals did they seem to experience any difficulty with their strokes and then it was of short duration and they quickly regained their normal strides.

Edward McGill, who was defeated by Louis A. Servatius on Tuesday night, will play his second match in the tourney tonight, when he will meet J. Johann.

GARFUNKLE WINS WITH CUE.

Scratch Man Beats Surkein, 35 to 32, in Three-Cushion Tourney.

Three-cushion billiards of exceptional merit for amateurs featured last night's match in the first annual handicap tournament at Joe Thum's Academy between Sam Garfunkle and A. Surkein. Garfunkle who is one of the scratch men playing for 35 points, finally defeated his rival, who has a handicap of 10 points, by a score of 35 to 32. Surkein's 32, of course, included his 10 points handicap. Garfunkle made a high run of 4, while Surkein's best efforts netted him several clusters of 2 each.

While the game lasted eighty-two innings, it was replete with good billiards. Surkein, in particular, was in excellent form. His execution was very good. He was exceptionally accurate in making bank shots. He knocked off no less than eight of these difficult caroms during the match. Garfunkle, on the other hand, made only one. Until the closing innings it was a nip-and-tuck affair. At the conclusion of the fifty-fourth inning Surkein had succeeded in holding Garfunkle even in actual points scored. Each had recorded 17 up to that time. Surkein's handicap of 10, however, placed him in the lead, with the score standing 27 to 17.

It was then that Garfunkle began playing his strongest game. He exercised greater care in the execution of his shots and did not miss as many close ones as he had up to that time. Both players resorted to a great deal of safety play. Surkein made a total of sixteen deliberate safeties and Garfunkle made nine, and there were quite a few that, while not deliberate safeties, were "oil" shots.

RUTGERS MORE CONFIDENT.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Oct. 6.—Stiff practice sessions with no letup in the terrific pace at which Coach Sanford has been driving his men have been the rule this week at Rutgers, but the results are highly encouraging. More confidence is being displayed in the Scarlet camp over the results of Rutgers's first invasion of enemy territory when it meets Lehigh on Saturday.

Weakness in the line, particularly on the defense, has been Sanford's chief obstacle throughout the season, but with Slyker and Scudder in the game now at guards, with Daisley in one of the tackle positions, the Rutgers forwards show 100 per cent more strength than at any time before this season.

Maloney is likely to be put in at quarter back in place of Voorhees, owing to his greater sureness on the defensive, both in catching punts and in tackling. Francisco, who played in 1917 but was in the service, has returned and may get a tackle job.

The physical condition of the men is good with the exception of Captain Gardner, whose knee was badly hurt in the Maryland game. It will require considerable work to get him in shape for Lehigh.

The Rutgers squad has all the physical attributes of a great eleven, but most of the men were new at the game this fall and they did not know how to use their advantages. With two solid weeks of Sanford's personal coaching behind them, however, they will be a far different aggregation in facing Lehigh than in their two previous games this year. University of Virginia, Cornell and Nebraska, however, are all ahead of them on the schedule.

NAVY GETS NEW TACKLE.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—King, regular right tackle of the team last year and the stroke of the Navy's Olympic crew, reported this afternoon, filling out the Naval Academy football squad. He did some kicking and running, but did not get in the scrimmage, and is not expected to start against Lafayette Saturday. Wiedorn is filling the job in fine style, however.

The first team was largely on the defensive during the scrimmage this afternoon and no substantial gains were made by the scrubs. The regulars were particularly successful in stopping forward pass plays, Larson and Wilkie using their height to great advantage in knocking down the ball.

JAMAICA SPRINT IS WON BY GREY LAG

NIGHTSTICK IS A VICTOR

After several disappointments, Sam C. Hildreth has finally realized a return on the investment he made in the two-year-old colt Grey Lag, which he purchased for about $50,000. This son of Star Shoot scored his first victory for his new owner at Jamaica yesterday, when he won the Remsen Handicap at six furlongs and defeated the Quincy Stable's Knobbie, which had twice taken his measure. M. L. Schwartz's Care Free was third among the five which tried for the purse.

Grey Lag's victory over Knobbie was scored under a different weight arrangement from that which existed in their other meetings. The Hildreth colt carried 123 pounds and conceded but a pound to his rival, whereas he had given away twenty and ten pounds on the other occasions. Grey Lag won the race in a driving finish and had but a head to spare at the end, but it was convincing enough to make it appear that the Hildreth youngster is just a little better than Knobbie on a fast track.

Had it not been that Grey Lag was carried wide entering the stretch, and that at the same time Knobbie saved at least two lengths by hugging the rail as the others swerved out, Grey Lag would probably have won with plenty to spare, for Knobbie was in front of him for a few strides through the stretch and had no excuse for his defeat.

Grey Lag Well Supported.

Backed from 6 to 5 to 7 to 10, Grey Lag went to the post a well supported favorite. Ensor gave him an intelligent ride and saved him for the stretch run, though never getting far from the pace. He did not make the mistake again of trying to follow the fast pace of horses which would not be contenders at the finish and went about his business of beating Knobbie.

Care Free got away from the barrier with a rush and, showing excellent speed, drew out to a lead of three lengths going through the back stretch. Grey Lag was rushed along in second position, but did not attempt to close the gap on the leader, for Knobbie had been slow to get started and Ensor kept the latter in mind. Going around the turn into the stretch, Ensor moved up with Grey Lag and was almost abreast of Care Free at the entrance to the stretch. Care Free went wide and carried Grey Lag with him, and this gave Mooney a chance to shoot through on the rail with Knobbie and to make up fully two lengths of the distance lost in the early running.

This put Knobbie on even terms with Grey Lag and the two fought it out in the stretch drive. Grey Lag raced his rival down in the dash for the wire, and, while he had an advantage of only a head, he was going stronger than his rival. Care Free weakened, but ran a good race. Mulciber was well up, but could not improve his position and Our Boots found himself in with entirely too much speed.

A First Disqualification.

The first disqualification of the meeting occurred in the second race, when the verdict was given to P. T. Chinn's Nightstick after Hendrie had got home first by a head in a test at a mile and seventy yards. Hendrie was disqualified for a foul committed in the run through the stretch, when he repeatedly bumped Nightstick as the two fought for the lead. It occurred right under the eyes of the judges and those in the stands.

Nightstick was rushed into a long lead going through the back stretch and appeared to have an easy victory, but he tired badly in the stretch run. At the furlong pole, Hendrie came up on the outside and bumped into Nightstick. The latter had no more than got clear, when Buxton bore over again with Hendrie and bumped the Chinn horse again. Nightstick was almost knocked off his stride and could not last to the finish. Kummer, who rode Nightstick, did not offer to make a protest but was called to the stand, where he verified what had been seen, and the disqualification followed. Mose was moved up to second and Tan 2d was awarded third place, there being but four starters.

Lawrence Waterbury's Squaw Man caused an upset in the first race when he got home in front of a field of two-year-olds at five and a half furlongs and defeated the heavily played favorite, Day Lily. Ballynew, another outsider, was third. Day Lilly raced with Ballynew through the first half mile and tired right at the end. Squaw Man moved up on the outside with a rush in the stretch and, catching the leaders, was drawing away as he went over the line. Day Lilly managed to save second from Ballynew by half a length. Light Fantastic, which had some fanciers, ran a very dull race and was next to last at the end.

Wins in Last Stride.

L. F. Wagner's Osgood, which has been improving steadily, scored his first victory of the season in the third race, a six-furlong dash, in which he got up in the last stride to beat Prince of Como, which was racing for the first time under the new colors of George Odom. Prince of Como got away nicely and rushed into a long lead, but tired badly in the final sixteenth of a mile and could not make another effort when challenged. Osgood was kept in a good position to the head of the stretch, where he closed with a rush, and, catching the tiring favorite, won by a neck in the last few strides. Turf was third. None of the others was a serious contender.

The longest race of the day was the fifth, a test at a mile and a furlong, which was won by C. K. Moore's Great Gull, a 5 to 1 shot, which took the measure of the public choice, Armistice. The latter finished third, tiring so badly in the last sixteenth that Queen Blonde got up to take the place. Armistice went out to a lead of four lengths in the backstretch, but Buxton made no attempt to save his mount and Armistice had nothing left when the last test came. Great Gull closed up rounding the turn, and, catching the leader in the stretch, drew away to win by three lengths.

John Sanford's filly Conine finally gave a sample of her best speed and had little trouble in graduating from the maiden class in the final dash at five and a half furlongs. A 2 to 5 choice, she romped home six lengths in front of Rep, with Ivernian third. Conine was in front all the way, increased her lead with every stride and had the race in hand at all posts.

SWAY FIRST AT LATONIA.

Manages to Defeat Ginger by a Neck Over One-Mile Course.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 6.—C. W. Clark's Sway, which is just now at the top of his form, scored another victory at Latonia this afternoon, when he won a close decision in the mile test, which was the feature of the card. He took the measure of Ginger by a neck after racing the latter into submission in the stretch drive. Minto 2d was third among five which accepted the issue.

Sway met with some interference right after the start and was forced to drop back to third position, but he moved into a contending position in the backstretch, and, catching Ginger in the stretch, drew away in the last few yards. Ginger set a fast pace, but was used up when the last test came. Minto 2d trailed the field for half the distance, but moved up with a rush in the stretch and easily disposed of King Gorin and Clintonville, the other starters.

The six-furlong dash for two-year-old colts and geldings was won by Rangoon, which led all the way and had two lengths to spare at the end over Coyne. Brunswick was third. Rangoon's victory was a surprise, as he was a 10 to 1 shot, Coyne having been made a strong favorite.

Homers and Triples Still Missing.

The first two games have passed on without a home run king and not even a tripling Thomas, but a few "Dublin Kids" have eased their way around to second base or hits. It is hardly likely that the right field wall will escape a home run throughout the series.

CRANK TAKES RACE BY FAST SPRINTING

Wins Capital Handicap in a Spirited Dash Which Carries Him Ahead of the Field.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 6.—Samuel Ross's Crank again proved himself a first class sprinter here this afternoon when he won the Capital Handicap, a six furlong dash, from such crack performers as J. K. L. Ross's Motor Cop, H. P. Whitney's Dr. Clark and Panoply as well as several others. Crank got up in the stretch run to gain the decision by a length and a half from Motor Cop while Mock Orange took third from Panoply. Dr. Clark and Blazes trailed in behind.

Keogh, who had the mount on Crank, had the good fortune to find an opening on the rail at the turn into the stretch and by slipping through saved much ground and was able to make a strong finish against Motor Cop, which had set the pace all the way. Motor Cop, with 125 pounds up, had all his usual speed, but the weight told on him in the final sixteenth and when challenged by Crank he could not hold the winner off. Panoply raced with Motor Cop for five furlongs and tired so badly that she dropped out of the contest and Mock Orange was third by ten lengths. Neither Dr. Clark nor Blazes showed any of the speed expected of them, though the former was up during the first half of the race.

The Gazette Purse at a mile was won by A. L. Austin's Belaria, which got up in a driving finish to win by nearly a length from Siren Maid. Betty J. was third. Siren Maid set a fast pace but weakened at the end and Belaria slipped through on the rail to make a strong finish.

FORDHAM WORKS HARD.

Secret practice was again in order at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon, when Coach Joe Dumoe put the Maroon athletes through one of the most strenuous workouts they have had this season. The session was started with a short signal drill, after which the 'Varsity and scrub elevens engaged in a scrimmage lasting well over an hour. The Fordham players are fast rounding into shape for next Saturdays' tussle with Boston College. The long list of injuries which were such a handicap to the Maroon team a few weeks ago is rapidly disappearing. Banks, the end, is the only man left on the hospital list, and he should be back to uniform before the end of the week.

HURTS GREEN'S CHANCES.

Robertson and Other Gridiron Stars Are Out of Penn State Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 6.—Dartmouth's chances in the big game against Penn State Saturday suffered a severe setback today when it became known that Captain Robertson, Shelburne, Marritt and Threshie would be unable to play on account of injuries sustained in a hard scrimmage with the second team. This robs the Green of its two best backfield bets and of a stellar pair of ends who were to have started against State.

Owners of Local Yachts Are Now Headed Southward

From the various Atlantic seaboard ports between here and Miami, Fla., come reports of the southerly migration of numerous power yachts, houseboats and other craft, most of them bound for Florida waters, but others, and a very fair percentage, to be used for cruising among the West Indies during the Winter months.

The Volstead act is claimed to be responsible for the selection of Nassau, Cuba, Hayti, Jamaica and other offshore islands by many yachtsmen, and has resulted in a demand for yachts with a greater draught than the average power houseboat.

Also, the exodus from northern ports has started earlier than usual, while a greater number of yachts are in commission than usual at this time of the year, their owners intending to start south by the time the snow flies.

CUMBERLAND STAKE TO PRINCESS MARY

Canadian Mare Victorious in Grand Circuit Feature—Macey Twice Winner.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 6.—Cold weather cut down the attendance at the Grand Circuit meeting here today. The stake event, the Cumberland, for 2:08 pacers, went to the Canadian mare, Princess Mary, driven by her owner, Vic Fleming. The principal contender was another Canadian-bred pacer, Calgary Earl, now owned by Robert Burgess of Winona, Ill.

Northern Direct, making his second start in as many days, was the contender in the first heat, landing third money.

One of the features of the day was the driving of the local boy, Reamy Macey, who won the 2:11 trot with Dagaston, giving him a new record of 2:07¾ in the second heat, while at the close of the second heat of the 2:19 trot he stood first with Hobnob, another son of Silliko.

Dagaston made a break in the opening heat, which went to Black Diamond. In the succeeding heats, however, he had little difficulty in winning. Black Diamond, winner of the first heat, was distanced in the second.

The unfinished 2:14 pace was easy for Trampsafe.

The 2:10 pace went to the Pennsylvania mare, Hazel Kuestner, though Ruth Patch, from the Whitehead stable, bested her in the first heat. Loyal W., the favorite, could not connect, second in the second heat being the best he could do.

The feature performance for the day from a time standpoint was that of the green mare Gallcurd, which trotted against time in 2:05¾. She is the property of Fred Cline of Indianapolis, and was driven by Mart Wilson. An offer of $25,000 was refused for her shortly after her performance.

TIGERS ARE COMING FAST.

Princeton 'Varsity Shows Marked Improvement in Teamwork.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 6.—After a long session of signal drills on University Field, Roper sent his squad into the Palmer Stadium and staged the longest and hardest scrimmage of the season between the 'Varsity and the scrubs. Practice was again closed to the public and the concrete walk of the stadium was the sole witness of some excellent football.

The 'Varsity showed an improvement in teamwork and scored four touchdowns, while they held the second team to a brace of first downs. The star of the afternoon was Johnny Gorman, the scrub quarter, who played this position with the freshman team last Fall. He replaced Don Lourie soon after scrimmage began and figured in the last three 'Varsity scores, in addition to running the team in excellent fashion.

Immediately after starting play, the 'Varsity found its way into opposing territory, and netted for itself six points when Gilroy took Lourie's 30-yard pass over the line. Changes in the 'Varsity at this point did not deplete its power, and Hank Garrity intercepted a scrub pass soon after the kickoff. The regulars, under Gorman's careful handling, hammered their way down the field and Garrity shoved the leather over on a long end run. Schoeter paved the way for the third tally when he caught a long pass in scrub territory and an end run again supplied the final punch with Gorman carrying the ball. Princeton's fondness for passing this year was marked all afternoon and the last score was the result of a toss by Gorman to Davis, netting 25 yards.

Roper is priming his men for the Maryland game Oct. 9, and there will probably be no more hard scrimmageing this week. Saturday will be a gala day at Princeton. For, in addition to the game, the Class of 1918 will hold its reunion on that date.

Today's lineup: Raymond and Davis, ends; Heck and Hoerle, tackles; Towers and Speers, guards; centre, Thomas; Lourie, quarterback; Murrey and Garrity, halfbacks; fullback, Gilroy.

CHANGE IN LAFAYETTE TEAM

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 6.—Following today's secret practice Coach "Jock" Sutherland of Lafayette College stated there would be a shakeup in the lineup of the first team which will start against the Naval Academy at Annapolis this Saturday. Just what these changes will be Coach Sutherland did not say, but it is expected that both the line and the backfield will be different from that which took the field against Muhlenburg last week.

N. Y. U. FRESHMAN INJURED IN GAME

Samuel Fletcher, Jr.'s Spine Possibly Fractured—Webb Academy Loses.

While making a tackle in the last quarter of the football game between the New York University freshmen and Webb Academy yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field, Samuel Fletcher, Jr., 18 years old, fullback on the Violet yearling eleven, was thrown to the ground and badly injured. He was unconscious when taken to a nearby fraternity house, where he was attended by Dr. Dezer of Fordham Hospital. Later, the injured player was removed to the hospital, where surgeons said last night that he had a possible fracture of the spine. Until an X-ray photograph is taken this morning it will be impossible to determine the extent of the injury.

Fletcher, whose parents live at 28 Brown Avenue, Rockville Centre, L. I., is President of the freshman class at New York University, and is one of its most prominent members. He is an all-around athlete. The accident came after Webb Academy had successfully made a forward pass in the last period, when the Violet freshmen were leading, 6 to 0. Fletcher, running forward to tackle the man carrying the ball, was crashed into by the opposing interference and sent to the ground, his head striking as he fell. He gained consciousness at the hospital, and the surgeons were optimistic concerning his ultimate recovery. There was no paralysis accompanying the injury to the spine.

The Webb players were exonerated from blame by Walter F. Healy, Jr., manager of the freshman team, who said after the game that there was no intent on the part of the Webb players to cause an injury.

The final score of the game was 6 to 0 in favor of the New York University freshmen. The sole touchdown was made by Rosenberger, who caught a forward pass from Gargan on the 40-yard line in the first period, and planted the ball beneath the goal posts. The game was loosely played, both teams showing ragged form and making many fumbles in the backfield.

N. Y. U. FACES SAILORS.

Receiving Ship Eleven Provides a Hard Scrimmage.

New York University's football team had a hard scrimmage against the eleven from the Naval Receiving Ship yesterday on Ohio Field. It was one of the most valuable workouts the Violet players have had this season and they showed great improvement in every department. The sailors presented a heavy, well drilled aggregation and gave the collegians plenty of opposition. They had a great variety of plays and showed some tricks that kept the New Yorkers guessing. Their attack was powerful and they had a good defense.

This was the third stiff scrimmage session of the week for the N. Y. U. team and Coach Gargan will probably give the men another today against the freshman eleven. They appear to be in the best of physical condition and they have developed fine team play in the last few days.

Today's workout will be secret. The field will be inclosed and no one will be allowed inside. Tomorrow probably will be a day of rest for the players. The finishing touches for the Columbia game will therefore be put on today.

DRILLS COLUMBIA PUNTERS.

O'Neill Stages Kicking Duel Between Burtt and Thornton.

Columbia's punters got their full measure of attention at yesterday's workout on South Field. After a long and arduous drill at signals, Coach Buck O'Neill sent the scrubs against the 'Varsity in an equally long scrimmage, but confined the exercise to punting. Burtt, the newest of the Blue and White backfield stars, did the footwork for the first eleven, and his opponent in the duel was Jack Thornton, last year's kicker, who sent away the punts for the second team. Honors in the duel were slightly in favor of Burtt, who got both distance and direction into his efforts.

The scrimmage covered both the offensive and defensive aspects of punting. The linemen underwent a close inspection by Tom Thorp in the details of blocking on the offensive and breaking through against the opposing punter. On every punt the ends were sent down the field and the backs received an exhaustive drill in catching the spirals and bringing the ball back down the field.

The scrimmage play alternated between the first and second teams. The 'Varsity first took the ball, Burtt sending a long kick soaring down the field and the scrubs running the ball back. When the runner was finally brought to earth, the second 'Varsity lined up and punted, the first team doing the receiving and running. This drill kept up until 6 o'clock had passed, when O'Neill dismissed the squad for the afternoon.

Calloway, the negro guard, was again in the 'Varsity line, taking the place of Hinch, who played with the scrub forwards. Harris and Canapary, the backfield absentees on Tuesday, reappeared in uniform and, with Burtt and Pierczenski, made up the first string backfield. If Burtt continues to flash the same article of ball he has been displaying this week, he will supplant Thornton in the lineup for the N. Y. U. game and may be given the punting assignment. He did the brunt of the kicking for the Freshmen last season, and is dangerous on the attack.

MOUNTAINEERS IMPROVE.

Coach McIntire Pleased with Practices for Pitt Games.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 6.—West Virginia's football team looked better in its workout today than it has any other time this season and Coach McIntire was pleased with the developments. Martin was out today and his presence seemed to help greatly. Quinlin, it was definitely learned, will not be able to play against Pitt Saturday.

YALE WORKS HARD AT FORWARD PASS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—Forward passing was the order of the day at Yale's football practice, head coach Tad Jones keeping the three elevens heaving tosses from start to finish of the drill. Seventeen were tried, but only two completed. The showing bore out the theory that Yale is backward in the development of this method of attack, as was indicated in the Carnegie Tech game last Saturday. The University of North Carolina, which comes here next, is clever in its execution of the pass and the Yale squad will get little else the remainder of the week, it is believed.

The weak end rush play is at the bottom of Yale's trouble. Today Jack Cutler, a star freshman end last year, and Dicky Dilworth, freshman end three years ago, started the play, later being replaced by Eddie Shevlin, the late Tom Shevlin's cousin, and Harry Speedin, a freshman substitute last season. Little of encouragement resulted from their tryout.

Albert Into and O'Brien, third eleven tackles, were used as regulars throughout today's practice, while Cruikshank, the 210-pounder, who stands 6 feet 2 inches tall, was in Acosta's place at guard. Frank Kelly, former Rutgers captain, was in the practice for the 'Varsity and divided playing honors for the day

JENNY LIND'S 100TH BIRTHDAY IS KEPT

LIKE CASTLE GARDEN ONE

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The hundredth birthday anniversary of Jenny Lind, the famous Swedish soprano, was celebrated in Carnegie Hall last evening by a quaint and in every way delightful concert. It was a reproduction, so far as the records aided by a more or less creative imagination could effect it, of the first concert that Jenny Lind gave in this country at Castle Garden on Sept. 11, 1850. The program was repeated, with the exception of one number, the music of which appeared to be at present unobtainable.

The artists who took part in it appeared in costumes of the period, headed by Mme. Frieda Hempel, one of the few sopranos now extant who can represent Jenny Lind's art. She was a golden-haired vision, very like a Swedish nightingale, in white satin crinoline, garlanded with morning glories. Signor Belletti, the baritone, was represented by Arthur Middleton in a colored dress coat, high collar and stock; Julius Benedict, in his capacity as conductor, by Ole Windingstad, and as pianist by Coenraad V. Bos; and Richard Hoffman, pianist by Daniel Wolf. They, as well as all the players of the orchestra, wore similar costumes. Some of them looked uncomfortable.

The hall was decorated with the American and Swedish flags; over the platform was an illuminated inscription, "Welcome, Sweet Warbler." P. T. Barnum, Jenny Lind's manager, appeared at the end of the concert, impersonated by Thomas A. Wise. Several firemen in fire hats and red shirts with brass trumpets moved about the hall, remnant of the force of 700 that escorted the singer from the steamer on her arrival. Young women in crinoline sold facsimiles of the Castle Garden program books.

A couple of old square pianos stood on the stage for the two-piano duet that was played and a still older square piano was provided for Mme. Hempel to play her own accompaniment on in the Swedish "Herdsman's Song." The sight was altogether picturesque and the significant portion of the program was well performed.

The overture to "Oberon," the scena and cavatina, "Casta Diva," from Bellini's "Norma;" the "Largo al Factotum," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," and "The Herdsman's Song" (which Mme. Sembrich used to sing in her folksong concerts) were music that has survived the seventy years. Perhaps some had heard the trio for soprano and two flutes "composed expressly for Jenny Lind" by Meyerbeer, in his opera "The Camp in Silesia" (afterwards recast as "L'Etoile du Nord.")

But who could have identified the baritone air, "Sorgete," from Rossini's "Macmetto Secondo," the duet for soprano and baritone "Pei Placere alla Signora," from his "Il Turco in Italia," as good as anything, at least, in "L'Italiana in Algeri"—the overture to "The Crusaders" by Benedict or the setting by the same composer of the prize poem of Bayard Taylor, "The Greeting to America," composed at Barnum's instigation for this concert?

The program went astray in its mention of the duet for two pianos, which was not by Benedict, as it stated, but was originally Thalberg's Fantasia on airs from Bellini's "Norma." This classic has somehow failed to survive in any obtainable form, apparently, and in its place the two pianists played Carl Reinecke's Improvisation on a gavotte by Gluck, no doubt to the greater edification of the audience.

Mme. Hempel sang brilliantly, with finished art and spontaneous ease in her solos and concerted pieces, and with especial sonority and beauty of tone in the "Herdsman's Song." In Swedish. Mr. Middleton did extremely well in the florid air from "Maometto Secundo," and gave a successful American appraximation to the Italian volubility of the "Largo al Factotum." Praise should also be awarded freely to Messrs. Bos and Wolf for their tussle with the two square pianos. But was the duet played in Castle Garden on square pianos? The grand piano was in 1850 a well established institution, and the American pioneers had already introduced the improvements that made possible the instruments of today.

In the course of the concert a cable dispatch was read from the King of Sweden, conveying his best wishes for the celebration of the memory of the famous daughter of Sweden." The audience was a large one, completely filling the hall, and displayed an unflagging interest in the concert and abundant enthusiasm. The proceeds are to go to the same charitable institutions which Jenny Lind, on the advice of the Mayor of New York, selected as the beneficiaries of her first American concert.

Regina Vicarino Sings Lucia.

Regina Vicarino, a soprano not unknown to the Manhattan stage when Oscar Hammerstein was consul, returned to West Thirty-fourth Street last night with Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Company for a single performance of Donizetti's "Lucia," in which she sang the title role. Giuseppe Corallo, Mario del Valle and others assisted, and Mr. Sodero conducted the famous ensembles. The opera was heard by a large audience, only the standees showing any diminution from the nightly throngs that have marked nearly three weeks of the engagement here.

Struggle Over McMullin Jury.

Nine tentative jurors had been chosen yesterday at the close of the second day of the trial before Federal Judge Mayer of Stewart N. McMullin, charged with killing Harry Carlton, a chauffeur, in a prohibition raid last March. The jury box had been filled and depleted several times by counsel by using peremptory challenges. Hope was expressed that a jury would be obtained in time to begin taking testimony today.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The postponed premiere of "Kissing Time" at the Lyric will take place next Monday night.

Henry Hull is to be seen this season in "Carey's Quest," written by Kate McLaurel. Faire Binney will be Mr. Hull's leading woman.

The Selwyns will soon begin rehearsals of a new play by Roi Cooper Megrue, entitled "Same Old Thing." The piece has hitherto been known as "Pickle Phyllis."

William Harris, Jr., has obtained the rights to "The Bronx Express," produced by the Jewish Art Theatre last season. It is the work of Osslp Dymow and Samuel R. Golding.

Sunday night vaudeville performances will be resumed at the Century this week by the Shuberts. Eddie Cantor will top the first program.

Alan Brooks's play at the Punch and Judy will hereafter be known as "Because of Helen" instead of "Merchants of Venus."

The Jewish Art Theatre will act "God's Vengeance" for the first time tomorrow night. Rudolph Schildkraut and Henrietta Schnitzler will have the leading roles.

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association and the Uniformed Firemen's Association have bought out the Winter Garden for the performance of "Broadway Brevities" on Oct. 15.

The customary midweek matinees of "Tip-Top" and "The Night Boat" will be shifted next week to Tuesday, Columbus Day.

Mary Nash returned yesterday on the Olympic from London, where she has been appearing for some months in "The Man Who Came Back." She is presently to be seen here in "Man and Woman," a play adapted by Benjamin F. Glazer from the French of Carlos Bonhomme.

Never in the history of the world, in this country or any other—in Petrograd or London or Paris or Berlin—has there ever been produced such a superb and glorious theatrical production as that now being presented by F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest at the Century Theatre.

MECCA

Positively the world's most gorgeous and most costly production, fairly stunning spectators with the rict of brilliant coloring, the harmonious blending of pageantry, the costly extravagance of the costuming, the daring and the astonishing Ballet of Michel Fokine.

Critics, first nighters, the public, everyone, applauded this mighty and magnificent musical extravaganza of the Orient, and fairly stood up and cheered to vent their enthusiasm.

Superbly acted by a company of 400 people, a cast of well known and talented players from England and America; with a ballet of 48 American girls fresh, charming and vivacious in their glorious young womanhood, this mighty and mastodonic offering sets a new record for stage achievement.

Every night, promptly at 8 o'clock and TONIGHT; curtain rises on a picture of unparalleled splendor, so that spectators should arrive on time. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday, promptly at 2 o'clock.

RIVOLI B'way at 49th St.

I HAVE booked George Melford's production "BEHOLD MY WIFE" for two weeks beginning Sunday, October 10, at the Rivoli Theatre, because in direction, cast and effect upon the spectator, it approaches my ideal of a really worth-while photo-play; worth-while because it showed me how a motion picture can bring smiles and tears with no other means than the simple beauty of a well told tale—a well acted drama.

Milton Sills, Mabel Julienne Scott and Elliott Dexter have the leading roles in this intensely dramatic story based on Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Translation of a Savage."

CO-ORDINATING ON THE STUMP.

The dispatches from Marion represent Senator HARDING as bubbling over with joy that BORAH and JOHNSON are going to be making stump speeches for him at the same time with TAFT and HOOVER. The fact that these supporters of HARDING radically disagree on the main issue of the campaign does not in the least disturb the candidate. Why bother about logic or principles when votes are to be got? Just one gleam of sensitiveness comes from Marion:

> The political subjects which Mr. TAFT will discuss in his speeches are not known by Republican managers, it is understood. In view of the activities of Senators JOHNSON and BORAH in denouncing a league or association of nations in any form, however, the hope has been expressed in some quarters here that the topics discussed by important Republican speakers will be so co-ordinated that Senator JOHNSON will not be speaking against the League in one part of the country, for instance, while Mr. TAFT is praising the Covenant in another locality. For this reason the indications are that efforts will be made to persuade Mr. TAFT to concentrate his activities on denouncing the Democratic Party's administrative record.

Nothing should be more easy to arrange. Mr. TAFT's abounding good nature has been equal to every strain put upon it, thus far, in this campaign. In his anxiety for Republican success he has even exposed himself to unnecessary personal humiliation. To comply with the Marion suggestion of a division of labor on the stump, all that Mr. TAFT would have to do would be to make skillful use of his article in The Yale Review. He could leave out the parts deploring HARDING'S position on the League and concentrate upon the passages explaining why Mr. WILSON has failed in the Presidency.

JUDGE MILLER'S VAIN PROMISE.

At last Judge NATHAN L. MILLER has discovered the State of New York and admitted that he is the Republican candidate for Governor of New York. At last he admits by inference that the League of Nations has nothing to do with the management of the Barge Canal, and that a man may be a satisfactory Public Service Commissioner even if he doesn't worship the protective tariff that fell from heaven and ought to be kept as high. He condescends to the affairs of this State, and grants that they "have been pretty well managed." He doesn't oppose a budget or the consolidation of State offices and departments. "All overlapping and duplication should be eliminated," but, of course, he has to remember that his Republican friends in the Legislature have fought any real consolidation of the State Government, any effective systematization and control of its expenditures. So he shudders at the shade of CÆSAR. "It is wrong to put "too much power in the hands of one "man and make the heads of departments directly responsible to "him, as would be done under the "Governor's reorganization scheme."

That is to say, the loose and wasteful dispersion of the State Government among 187 commissions, boards, miscellaneous agencies, must not be ended because a Democratic Governor has urged this vital reform. Taxes must be continually swollen and piled up. The State Government must continue to be irresponsible, extravagant, ineffective, run at random and in the dark. There must be no pondered plan, no continuous policy. Judge MILLER, if elected, is to appear as a god out of the Republican machine, bidding the wastrels waste no more: "When I am elected Governor my "rule will be to find out whether we "have the money for a project before "we adopt that project." So honeyed is hope and such small potatoes is experience.

Once there was a Governor of the name of WHITMAN. How he loved, or thought he loved, the Executive Budget! It got lost at Albany. Mr. ELON R. BROWN, that wise old Republican Princeps of the State Senate, confessed publicly in 1918 that the appropriations, the greatest in the history of the State, made by the Legislature of that year, were made "without a single consultation during "the session between the Governor "and the Chairmen of the Finance "Committees of the two houses, or "the Governor and the leader of the "Senate." Last year Senator HENRY M. SAGE of Albany, who knows as much about appropriations and how appropriation bills are passed as any man, after showing that State expenditures out of the general fund had increased by $40,000,000, by 104.89 per cent., between 1910 and 1919, said that "there are not a dozen men in "the Legislature who bother their "heads as to where the money is "coming from." Judge MILLER promises the impossible. His party in the Legislature, continuing the existing haphazard system, would be too much for him or any other Governor.

The Republicans in the Legislature of 1920 defeated plans, such as are in successful operation in many States, for making the State administration effective and lowering its cost. Anybody who wants higher taxes and shambling, ineffective administration should vote for Judge MILLER.

COMMUNISTS AND OFFICES.

Elections of delegates to the coming Congress of German Socialists reveal an unexpectedly strong sentiment against joining the Third International. This is the same thing, of course, as being against LENIN and the Moscow Communists. Perhaps the German Socialists have been influenced by the report on the composition of the Russian Communist Party, made in Die Freiheit by a Deputy in the Reichstag, Herr DITTMAN, who recently visited Moscow. He gives the total membership of the Russian Communist Party as 604,000. It certainly requires a pretty vigorous dictatorship to impose the will of 604,000 upon 130,000,000. But Herr DITTMAN explains that of the whole number of Communists 53 per cent., or 318,000, are office holders, either national or municipal; there are, besides, 162,000 who are soldiers or military functionaries; less than 100,000 are workingmen. A rather small proletariat!

These figures on the real strength of the Bolsheviki, whose fortunes are visibly declining, give point to a saying by KAMENEFF lately reported from Kovno. One of the Lithuanian delegation asked him on what the power of the Bolsheviki rested. He replied: "On the leaders' brains, on "Lettish and Chinese bayonets, and "on the stupidity of the Russian "people." If such contemptuous cynicism is prevalent among the higher Bolshevist officials, it is a sure sign of their coming fall.

GENERAL LEJEUNE'S REPORT.

The most significant passage in Major Gen. JOHN A. LEJEUNE'S report upon conditions in Haiti, concerning which Senator HARDING has heard stories that shocked him, was the following: "We traveled through the "country without a guard and found "no hostility upon the part of the "natives." If it had been true, as the Republican candidate was disposed to believe, that the American marines in doing police duty in Haiti had killed "thousands" of the natives, General LEJEUNE would certainly have encountered hostility in the interior and a vigilant escort would have gone about with him. Haiti is peaceful today, although not all its politicians like the American occupation, and it is safe for law-abiding and industrious people, who are in the very large majority, because on several occasions of disorder, notably the attack upon Port au Prince by the "cocos" early in the year, the marines made examples of the outlaws. It was not pleasant work, but it had to be done. A notoriously vicious element, and not patriotic Haitians, suffered. It would be grotesque to make a parallel with the brave people who resisted the French in the Napoleonic era and won their independence. There has been no "coco" leader during the American occupation who bore the faintest resemblance to TOUSSAINT L'OUVERTURE.

When General LEJEUNE arrived in Haiti order had been restored, and there was scarcely a mountain trail that could not be followed in safety. The report of his predecessor, Major Gen. GEORGE BARNETT, will deal with the period of "pacification." According to Secretary DANIELS, it was a creditable record for the American military government, but not entirely flawless, on which point he says that "orders were given, as soon as in-"formation reached Washington, for "full investigation and punishment "for wrongs done or any crimes com-"mitted by any American officer or "man." What General LEJEUNE calls with warrant "the bandit situation" he saw very little of, for the troublesome survivors were few and rarely encountered. He describes the commander of the marines as "a just and humane officer," who had issued "the "most comprehensive instructions re-"quiring kindly treatment of the in-"habitants by our men." The proof that these instructions were carried out could be seen in the "friendly feeling" that existed "toward persons "wearing the uniform of the United "States Marine Corps." General LEJEUNE found throughout Haiti "a "strong sentiment of gratitude for the "work that the marines were doing "for the welfare of the industrious, "peaceful and law-abiding Haitian "people." In the country districts the natives were "busily at work cultivat-"ing their farms and carrying their "produce to market." Haitian history discloses all too brief periods of such immunity from insurrection and banditry.

Official professions of "appreciation "of the splendid work done by the "marines," which General LEJEUNE reports, might excite skepticism, but the Haitian peasantry at work in their fields, and friendly, tells the story of a humane and honorable occupation.

PUBLIC SINKING FUND ADMINISTRATION.

The administration of public sinking funds is more important than the proportions or the propriety of personal profits made in dealings in such bonds. Without taking any position about the particular facts under inquiry, it may be said that the administration of sinking funds leaves much to be desired and has fallen into disfavor in private practice. It has been said that no public sinking fund has ever been administered according to its terms throughout the life of the bonds. To keep a debt alive for a considerable part of twenty-five or fifty years, for the sake of paying it with interest after that length of time, has manifest disadvantages compared with canceling of the bond when put into the sinking fund, in the manner of the Federal Treasury.

A better method yet is the issue of the bonds in serial form, which amortizes them at an amazing saving of interest. One advantage of that method is that it provides both long-term and short-term bonds, and investors can have their preference. When the Liberty bonds were pending THE ANNALIST published a calculation from a Boston authority to the effect that there might have been a saving of $2,500,000,000 in interest by the serial method. One explanation of the loss of interest is that sinking funds are seldom kept closely invested. Our city and State reports often disclose excessive amounts of cash, and such an absurdity as bonds held by the issuer as a guarantee of the issuer's credit—as though a merchant's credit were strengthened by the amount of his promissory notes in his safe.

As the inquiry proceeding is a State matter, it is useful to recall that in Governor GLYNN'S time it was found that the canal sinking fund held $25,590,000, whereas only $3,429,000 was necessary. The effect of the $22,161,000 excess above the actuarial calculation in raising taxation for interest is apparent, and there are similar excesses in other funds. Experts have calculated that there might be a saving of interest to New York State of from $40,000,000 to $80,000,000 if the lawyers could find a way to substitute serial for sinking fund issues. Nor is this state of facts confined to this State. The disclosure that the sinking fund of the State is not well administered on the sinking fund theory only emphasizes the objections to the method.

THE CITY'S OUTER BOROUGHS.

There is nothing surprising in the decrease of the population of Manhattan. It is a measure of the growth of that borough's business area. Manhattan is and will remain the borough of residential choice for those who pay either very high or low rents. The outer boroughs will always attract those whose rent must be moderate, and who cannot get elsewhere the light and air which command scarcity values in Manhattan. The increase of the population in the other boroughs is interesting rather as prophecy than history, for it is in them that the city must have its growth in future decades. The growth of Brooklyn is the largest in total, 884,005, but the least in percentage, 23.5. The next largest growth is in the Bronx, both in numbers, 301,063, and in percentage, 69.8. Queens shows the second largest in percentage, 65.1, and the third in total of population, 185,999. Richmond, the Cinderella borough, increased its population by 35.6 per cent.

It is now evident that the growth of New York as a whole depends on the degree to which the rivers which surround Manhattan are conquered as obstacles to travel. Until the rivers were bridged and tunneled, New York was suffocated in the overgrowth of Manhattan's population. Until Greater New York came, this was a city without suburbs. The merger gave it suburbs rivaling any others, but differing in being accessible only by routes under or over water. London has access to its suburbs through every street which runs to them. It would not be possible to add London's omnibuses to the street traffic of New York, and they could not carry our traffic if it were done. Here is the explanation of the map in last Sunday's TIMES showing plans for the addition of forty-two river crossings to the thirty-four existing tunnels and bridges. Without them there could be no future comparable to the past for either the suburbs of the eight square miles south of Central Park, which give New York its rank among world capitals.

There are political implications of the city's growth. The voters in the other boroughs now greatly outnumber those in the old New York. Also, the city's population is more than half that of the State. Manhattan cannot permanently control the city's politics, and the State cannot permanently legislate against the city's interests. The city contributes to the State revenues in greater proportion than its population requires, and has a right to ask that the direct taxes shall be collected as rigorously in the country as in the city.

A PARSONAGE AND $1,500.

The program of the Lutheran Synod of Eastern Pennsylvania recalls a great deal of past history and throws considerable light upon history in the making. It is that every pastor should have at least $1,500 a year and a parsonage. "I regret," says the Rev. GEORGE A. GAMSS, newly elected President of the Synod, "that there "are churches which do not appreci-"ate their duty to their pastors." The same could be said of almost any other denomination. Thanks to many a wartime drive, college professors are reasonably well paid; new legislation has largely provided for teachers in the public schools. But the profession which is generally held to be highest of all has been, in comparison, neglected.

The average pay of ministers is said to be less than $1,000 a year—without a parsonage. The most significant comparison is not with the other learned professions, but with manual laborers. Mean annual wages on the railways rose from $721 in 1908 to $810 in 1914 and to $1,505 in 1919. In the Steel Corporation they rose from $729 in 1908 to $905 in 1914 and to $1,950 in 1919. Since the steel strike there has been a considerable further advance. Doubtless a larger number of common laborers than of ministers are living on the margin of subsistence, but, by and large, the difference between the lot of the unskilled worker and the lot of the highly educated and responsible leaders of the spiritual life of the nation is negligible. Yet when the Interchurch World Committee was launching its drive in behalf of the salaries of the clergy it stepped aside to investigate the lives of the steel workers, with the result that it frustrated and probably wrecked its own cause. In its published report it gave sympathetic portraits of the two strike organizers, though W. Z. FOSTER is a proclaimed Syndicalist and borer from within and JOHN FITZPATRICK is a proclaimed Bolshevik; and in its final program for the reorganization of the industry it included that primary doctrine of the Guild Socialist, "industrial democracy."

It is not denied that the committee showed a high degree of courage and self-sacrifice, or that its report contains much that is significant and moving. But all this is beside the present point. The present point is that neglect of the learned professions has synchronized with a rapid growth of radicalism and has, in all probability, been very largely the cause of it. One of the leading arguments for the college drives was that the radicalism which has of late been so pronounced in the universities is in a great measure attributable to unjust salaries and the restriction of opportunity which they involve. Unless the pay of the clergy is adequate there must eventually be a decline in the quality of spiritual leadership. There is scarcely a denomination that does not owe it to itself to adopt this program of $1,500 a year and a parsonage. There is no community that does not owe it to itself and to the nation to see that the program is made possible.

ITALY AND THE LITTLE ENTENTE

Dispatches from Rome report that Italy dislikes the formation of the "Little Entente" of Czechoslovaks, Rumanians and Jugoslavs. This is traceable to the fact that the Jugoslavs have acquired two strong allies while their dispute with Italy is still unsettled, though it is impossible that the Rumanians or the Czechoslovaks should let themselves be drawn into a conflict with Italy on the Adriatic question. Some Italians fear that the Czechoslovaks will acquire a position in Central Europe too strong for the prestige of their neighbors. There is talk of the indignity of Italy's becoming a "satellite" of the Czechoslovak Republic in Danubian affairs.

These are vain imaginings. Italian policy is not yet set definitely against the new alliance. Yet Italian suspicion seems unjustified, and if it continues is likely to produce more of the bad statesmanship that has afflicted Europe in the past year or two. The Little Entente was designed to remove the possibility of a Magyar war of revenge; to prevent the recurrance of Bulgarian aggression against the Serbs or Rumanians; to form a defensive bloc in case the Bolshevist armies should come out of Russia, and to promote the revival of trade along the Danube. It is hard to see how any of these objects menaces Italian interests. As for a Slav preponderance in the Danube area, most of its inhabitants are Slavs. If there is any fear of political pan-Slavism, it should be removed by the inclusion in the new alliance of Rumania, whose national consciousness is dominated by Latin culture, and by the probable inclusion of Greece in the near future.

With the collapse of the Hapsburg monarchy Italy came into a greater opportunity for commercial and political activity in Southeastern Europe than any other nation could command. Much of this has been lost through the prolonged dispute with the Jugoslavs and D'ANNUNZIO'S closing of the port at Fiume; but a great deal can still be done. It cannot be done, however, if Italy loses the confidence of the small nations in Eastern Europe. Russia and Austria began the liberation of the Balkan peoples, but their jealousies prevented them from finishing the work, and for a century Austro-Russian rivalry bedevilled the Balkans. France and Italy have liberated the Danube peoples from German imperialism, but Danube statesmen who know what happened in the Balkans are not likely to allow France and Italy to play off the small States of the Danube against one another for ends in which these States have no interest. The nation which first realizes that the Danube peoples are going to determine their own destiny will have a considerable advantage in dealing with them.

BIRDS IN THEIR LITTLE NESTS.

Mr. ROBERT E. CROWE, Thompson-Republican nominee for State's Attorney of Cook County, "hurls" these tender words at the Lowden Republicans, half or more of the Republican Party of Illinois:

> It is openly charged in many quarters that there is a plot to rob the Republicans of Illinois of the right to vote for the candidate of their choice for Governor [LEN SMALL]. I warn these men, who apparently would commit a crime in their mad efforts to rule or ruin, that, if the conspiracy which is being hatched in this county is carried out, I shall, if elected, perform my full duty regardless of the previous high standing of the malefactors.
>
> Malefactors! Criminals! These are not pretty names for brother to call brother. The Illinois Republican hearthstone is smashed and the members of that sweet family circle—are firing the chunks at one another's heads. Senator HARDING has given them no medicines to make them love him, and they hate each other a good deal more than they love anybody. In vain does WILL HAYS smite the loud timbrel and carry at least forty-nine States in his mind. His paean is drowned by the wild battle cries of the warring brethren. Lake Michigan is a sea of gall. How can even Senator HARDING come to an "understanding" with these sons of choler "when the razzers go flyin' through the air"?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Applying Reason to Ouija.

Writing in the current issue of The Medical Record on "The Psychology of the Ouija Board," Dr. J. ALLEN GILBERT gives aid and comfort to those who have faith in the "communications" obtained through that agile instrument by beginning with the statement that its activities are "based on a thoroughly scientific and defensible principle." But that is all that the believers get from him, for all the rest of his admirably lucid article is devoted to the elaboration and illustration of the statement that "any psychic state proceeds automatically or reflexly to its natural physical equivalent and vice versa."

Dr. GILBERT does not bother with—does not even mention—the fact that a considerable fraction, probably a large majority, of the ouija board's manipulators are, to put it bluntly, conscious swindlers, well aware that nobody and nothing moves the thing except themselves. Instead, he deals wholly with the smaller and quite honest class who deceive themselves before they deceive others.

They all have, he says, "the power to dissociate various groups of experiences" and "a marked tendency for psychic states to go over automatically into their physical correlates." Of the so-called answers to questions received from the ouija board he declares that they "are but the embodiment of subconscious states significant or insignificant in proportion to the intimacy of the relation that can be established between conscious and unconscious states."

The ouija phenomena, the doctor explains, are closely analogous to the pictures seen by certain persons in crystal balls, to automatic writing, to somnambulism, and to presentiments, as well as to "hunches," prophetic dreams, the talk and visions of trance mediums, and clairvoyance. All are but the escape through one or another door of knowledge and concepts buried in the subconscious. About none of them is there anything in the slightest degree "mystical" or "spiritual," and none is any harder to explain than are the most familiar operations of the mind.

Subconscious Miracles Are Numerous.

For people who "know" that the ouija board moves under their hands without any exercise of their own will or muscles, such information as Dr. GILBERT gives produces no change of belief. It cannot. Having no foundation on facts, facts do not affect that belief and logic is wasted on it. For others, who see in such manifestations of unfamiliar powers only something queer and interesting, and who do not leap to the conclusion that the abnormal "must" be the supernatural, Dr. GILBERT'S article is full of enlightenment.

It shows that these mysterious acts and happenings are no more mysterious than are scores of others that excite no wonder at all, simply because they are the every-day operations of the part of mind that lies beneath or behind the usual threshold of consciousness. The near-illiterate who cannot read without moving his lips, the man who walks along the street muttering his day-dreams, the typist who strikes rapidly and correctly keys the arrangement of which she could not reproduce on paper, the musicians in all their varieties whose feats of memory, if considered, seem miraculous or impossible, the bicyclist who performs unconsciously for hours a balancing feat that was extremely difficult while he had to do it consciously—all these and a thousand more illustrate Dr. GILBERT'S principle, and as much and as little require the explanation of disembodied spirits as does the ouija board or the "medium."

A Puzzling Lack of Casualties.

In yesterday's dispatches from Ireland, as so often before, there was an account of an attack on a police barracks, and, again as so often before, the story of the little battle was made incomprehensible by the apparent absence of any fatalities.

In the affair at Schull, in West Cork, fifteen armed policemen fought off for four hours 200 armed assailants, and when, at last, the policemen surrendered, "overwhelmed by the superiority of numbers," none of them had been killed or even wounded, and the besiegers must have been almost or quite as fortunate, for if they had any casualties it seems not to have been known to the sender of the dispatch.

That censorship enforced silence on that subject is conceivable, but not at all probable, and almost certainly, if there had been any such slaughter as was to be expected in a frontal attack on an evidently defensible position, some details of it would have been given.

Yet on both sides there were men with guns in their hands—fighting men, too, the Irish and the British alike. History contains innumerable proofs that the men of both these breeds, when in conflict with each other or with anybody else, are wont to inflict death and wounds whether they win or lose. Men have been killed in Ireland, too, of late, and too many of them, but in the battles around the police barracks mysteriously little blood is shed.

New York Likes Its "Cossacks."

New Jersey is quite as much in need of a State constabulary as is New York, Pennsylvania or any of the other States that have established such a force as auxiliaries of the municipal police. Yet at the Democratic Convention held in Trenton on Tuesday the delegates emphatically declined to follow the examples that have been set for them in this matter.

And, not content with not demanding the formation of a State constabulary, they formally pronounced against it in the platform they adopted.

Apparently the "Cossack" idea or pretense still prevails in New Jersey, though there is nothing at all in the history of these bodies to show or to hint that they are ever used for any other purposes than the maintenance of order, the prevention of crime and the capture of criminals.

In this State the original antagonism to the troopers, if not altogether gone, is so nearly silenced that nobody any longer pays any serious attention to it. Here, indeed, a present proposal to abolish the so-called Cossacks would cause a far more vehement protest than was made when they came into being, and it would be successful instead of a failure.

A Too Literal Reading.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the 22d inst. you published an editorial article, captioned "Hidden Scoundrels," in which you quote Senator Warren G. Harding as having said:

> "You have my consent to inform the English public that, as much as I should like to put British interests above American, I shall never, never do it."

I wanted to know the truth and inquired from Senator Harding if he had made any such statement as attributed to him. I have the following reply:

> "Marion, Ohio, Sept. 24, 1920.
> "Mr. Axel Josephsson, 220 Broadway, New York City:
>
> "Mr. Dear Mr. Josephsson: In reply to your letter of Sept. 22, I desire to say that Senator Harding has never said to any correspondent of any paper, whether American or British, that he would like to put British or any other foreign interest above American interests. * * * Very truly yours.
>
> "GEORGE B. CHRISTIAN, Jr.,
> "Secretary."

As I do not suppose that THE NEW YORK TIMES, even in the heat of a partisan political campaign, would willfully so grossly misquote a candidate for the highest office in the gift of the American people, I am sure that you will print this indirect denial.

The Educated Man.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit a reader to express surprise that a university advertised as having a larger number of students than any other university in the world should leave out of its "signs of an educated man" such signs as desire to contribute to the public welfare; determination to be a social asset rather than a social liability; capacity and desire to understand community problems; ability to participate intelligently in the settlement of public issues? President Butler's list failed even to include open-mindedness or desire to settle the issues of 1920 with the light of 1820 headed toward 1950 instead of the light of 1900 headed toward 1750.

WILLIAM H. ALLEN.

New York, Oct. 1, 1920.

EDGAR ALLAN POE.

(Died Oct. 7, 1849.)

Hear the tolling of the bells—
Death bells!
What a spah of tragedy their harsh insistence knells!
"He is dead!" they seem to say,
"And his poor senseless clay
Is forgotten ere it mingles with the mold;
Is forgotten, is forgotten ere it's cold.
He is dead, dead, dead!
And there's none will shed a tear,
Never fear!
There is none will shed a tear
At his bier."
Oh, the bells, bells, bells!
How each muffled paean swells
With precision.
Every echo and vibration,
With a base calumniation,
Seems to hover in the air,
Seems to hover everywhere,
In derision.
"He is dead, dead, dead!" sing the bells,
Foolish bells, lying bells!
Hear the pealing of the bells—
Joyous bells!
What a tale of ecstasy their jubilation tells!
"Rouse ye!" So they seem to say,
Seem to sing.
"The man we celebrate today
Is a King!
"He is long years dead, ye cry?
Cease your chatter, little people,"
Sing the bells within the steeple.
"It is only fools that die!
Every vile calumniator is forgot!
Let him rot!
The man we celebrate today
Cannot die."
And the poor restless sleeper
Hears the paean ever deeper,
Hears the paean ever deeper, as it penetrates the tomb;
As it filters through the gloom
Of the tomb.
And his spirit wraps the spirit of his bride.
(Ah! his bride!
Young she died!
And his broken heart was buried at her side.)
So, together in the silence of the tomb,
In the silence of that narrow, narrow room,
They listen to the bells,
To the bells, bells, bells—
To the joyous jubilation of the glad, mad bells,
To the rocking, mocking laughter of the bells.

TRIBUTE PAID TO A. H. GREEN

Exercises to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Andrew H. Green, popularly called the father of Greater New York, were held last night at the American Museum of Natural History under the auspices of the Andrew H. Green Memorial Committee appointed by Mayor Hylan.

The constructive part taken by Mr. Green in framing the Charter of Greater New York, and his forefront participation in many municipal projects, among them the city's acquisition of Central Park, were pointed out by speakers as "enduring monuments to Mr. Green." Many letters and telegrams were read by Joseph Haag, the Chairman, among those praising Mr. Green's achievements being Augustus Thomas, Robert W. de Forest, Samuel Untermeyer, Henry E. Gregory, Edward G. Riggs, Miss Mary Pomery Green and Peter F. Sullivan, Mayor of Worcester, Mass., where Mr. Green was born.

W. Bourke Cockran, in the principal address, said:

> "Andrew H. Green was unique among all whom I have met or read about. He had but one pasion. He was a lover of the human race, and had no other love. He could foresee the future, and had, in addition, that rare gift—the capacity to put his dream into execution. He was not only a dreamer, but a doer, and we meet here to honor the architect of the greatness of New York."

Others who addressed the meeting were John P. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel, representing Mayor Hylan; Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, President American Museum Natural History; David A. Boody, former Mayor of Brooklyn; Dr. Elmer E. Brown, Chancellor, New York University; Rev. Leighton Williams, Charles L. Guy, Justice of the Supreme Court; John Ford, Albert E. Henschel and Dr. George F. Kunz.

Lantern slides, showing some of the improvements which Mr. Green's initiative brought about, were shown and explained by Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall.

Among other things Mr. Green was a member of the Board of Education and commemorative exercises were held yesterday in the public schools. They included the reading of a biographical sketch prepared by the memorial committee.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 6. — This city paid tribute to Andrew H. Green, a native of Worcester and father of Greater New York, by decorating his grave in Rural Cemetery and with exercises, during which addresses were made by Mayor Peter F. Sullivan, ex-Mayor James Logan, U. Waldo Cutler, President of Worcester Historical Society; Rufus B. Fowler and Frank F. Dresser.

CAN'T FILL SHIPPING BOARD.

Wilson Unable to Get Good Men to Serve Without Pay.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — President Wilson is still experiencing difficulty in getting competent men to accept positions on the new Shipping Board of seven provided for in the Merchant Marine act passed at the last session of Congress. No appropriation for the salaries of the new board members has yet been provided by Congress, and White House officers explained today that it could be readily understood why those to whom places on the board had been offered were reluctant to accept.

Under the law the board members must devote all of their time to their duties. To accept the position the appointees must give up their present work and then face the possibility that their recess appointments will not be confirmed by the Senate. Even if their appointments are confirmed, they must serve without salary until Congress meets and appropriates funds to pay them.

APPOINT 89 CHAPLAINS.

Army Selections Made to Supply One for Each 1,200 Men.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The appointment of eighty-nine new chaplains for the regular army, in conformity with the reorganization law providing one chaplain for each 1,200 officers and men, was announced today by Adjt. Gen. Harris. The new chaplains, who will hold commissions dating from July 1, were selected from 300 applicants.

Announcement was made that Secretary Baker, after a survey of census reports as well as the religious census of 1916, had fixed tentatively the denominational apportionment at 25 per cent. from the Catholic Church, 70 per cent. from the Protestant churches and 5 per cent. for adjustments that cannot be made on a strictly mathematical basis.

TO TEST "SOAP-BOX" BAN.

Mount Vernon Street Speakers Take Case to Supreme Court.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 6.—To test the right of Mayor Kincaid of Mount Vernon to decline to allow Socialists to speak upon the public streets Mrs. Arthur G. Hays, wife of a prominent lawyer; Thomas F. Doyle and William G. Chambers, who attempted to speak at Socialist meetings last Saturday night, have carried their legal battle to the Supreme Court. Today they surrendered to the Mount Vernon authorities before being arraigned before Acting City Judge Bernstein and then a writ of habeas corpus was served directing Chief of Police Atwell and other complainants to appear immediately before Supreme Court Justice Keogh in New Rochelle. Arthur G. Hays represented his wife, and for the other defendants Joseph Henry Esser, special counsel to the Water Board of Mount Vernon, appeared.

As District Attorney Davis could not be present the hearing was adjourned until Saturday. Lawyer Hays set forth that the city ordinance and the action of Mayor Kincaid were unconstitutional and discriminatory.

Mayor Kincaid has asked the Common Council to remove Mr. Esser as special counsel for the city because he has been advising the Socialists, and the Aldermen will act on his request next Monday.

TO CONFER ON COAL SUPPLY.

Utility Companies Called to Discuss Cold Weather Situation.

Notice was served yesterday on all of the public utility corporations in the city to send representatives to the offices of the Public Service Commission Monday afternoon, when a public hearing will begin to discover how well supplied the various concerns are with coal. The purpose is to avoid a coal shortage when cold weather sets in by aiding the companies to obtain sufficient reserves to carry them over crucial periods. Recent reports from the companies indicate that they are in a safe position concerning the immediate future, but none of them has requisite reserve.

Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon said that if the situation appeared to demand further assistance from the Interstate Commerce Commission he would not hesitate to ask for it. Reports of coal on hand from the various companies show that the average supply on hand was sufficient for approximately six weeks.

POPULATION TOTAL TO BE GIVEN TODAY

About 105,000,000 for the Continental United States Is Predicted.

NEVADA SHOWS DECREASE

Alabama, South Carolina and Wyoming Have Made Substantial Gains.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The population of the United States, exclusive of its outlying possessions, will be announced tomorrow afternoon by the Census Bureau. The count will contain not only the figures of the total population of the Union, but also the population of the individual States, in the order of their rank. The announcement will be made at 4 P. M.

While no statement on the subject has yet been made by the Census Bureau that is in any way authoritative, it is believed from the population figures already announced that the country will show a total of approximately 105,000,000.

In 1910 the population of the country was 91,972,266 and in 1900 it was 75,994,575.

The populations of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, Virginia, Arkansas and Florida will be announced at 10:30 A. M., and those of Minnesota and Nebraska simultaneously with the announcement of the country's total.

According to figures announced today, Alabama, South Carolina and Wyoming made substantial gains in population during the last ten years, while Nevada, the smallest State in the Union in point of population, became the third State to show a decrease. Alabama has a population of 2,345,295, an increase of 200,202, or 9.8 per cent. over 1910. The State thus passed Tennessee in standing.

South Carolina has a population of 1,883,002, which is 188,262, or 11.1 per cent., greater than that of 1910. The State, however, fell short of its relative growth in 1910 by 2 per cent.

Wyoming, next to the least populous State, has a population of 194,402, an increase of 48,437, or 33.2 per cent. The State showed the second largest numerical growth, but its percentage increase was its lowest.

Nevada's population was announced as 77,407, a decrease of 4,468, or 5.5 per cent. It was the State's third population decline, the decade ended with 1890 showing it to have decreased 23.9 per cent. and during the following ten years its loss was 10.6. The State, however, more than made up its first two losses during the decade 1900-1910, when it increased 93.4 per cent.

DECLARES CHURCH LACKING

Dr. Holmes Tells Liberals It Is a Club for the Middle Class.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, President of the National Federation of Religious Liberals, in a paper read at the annual meeting of the federation today, said that the church of the present time had little meaning and no clear messages.

Dr. Holmes, who is professor of the history of religion and philosophy at Swarthmore College, was unable to be present. In his paper, which was read by the Secretary, he said that the church "maintains the phrases of the world idea, but it does not believe them and does not teach men to trust them."

"Its function," he added, "has shrunk to that of a social club for middle-class people of comfortable incomes, in which it teaches mildly a middle-class personal morality and feebly asserts certain mediaeval theological formulas, which it does not understand and is not really interested in.

"Yet, the Christian church, if there can be said to be such a thing, is the only world-nation, and if it can be aroused to its real meaning it is still the hope of the world."

The Rev. Sakusaburo Uchigasaki of Tokio said that "if we do not try to solve the present international tangle, the next generation will suffer."

WILSON OUTING IN VICTORIA.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Finding the weather too cold for motoring, President Wilson went driving today in the White House victoria, a type of vehicle seldom seen nowadays in Washington.

NEARING THE MILLION MARK.

New York University Endowment Fund Steadily Growing.

The New York University Endowment Fund is approaching the million-dollar mark, Vincent Roberts, Chairman of the National Alumni Committee, said yesterday. By the will of Jacob H. Schiff the New York University School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance will receive $50,000. Mr. Schiff gave $50,000 to the university in January, 1917.

"The gift is of particular importance at this time," said Mr. Roberts, "coming as it does from one of the best-known business men and bankers in the city, as it is a direct tribute to the valuable work being done by New York University in scientific training in business lines.

"We believe that Mr. Schiff's recognition of the great public service New York University is rendering will influence many other public-spirited men who are not graduates to assist the university in its present campaign for $6,450,000 with which to increase the salaries of its instructors, and to enlarge its cramped classroom and laboratory facilities, which are being overcrowded with the greatest registration of students the university has ever known."

LEGION TO ACCEPT OFFER.

K. of C. Plan for $5,000,000 Memorial Meets Approval.

The American Legion will formally accept the offer of the Knights of Columbus of $5,000,000 for a national memorial building to be erected in Washington at a meeting to be held in the Hotel Commodore at 11 A. M. Saturday. National Commander Frederick W. Galbraith of the Legion telegraphed yesterday to Supreme Grand Knight James A. Flaherty of the Kn

MISS BARKER WED TO J. HERBERT TODD

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Driggs Barker, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Suydam Barker of Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and J. Herbert Todd, son of William H. Todd, President of the Todd Shipyards Corporation, and Mrs. Todd, took place at 4 o'clock last evening in St. Mark's Methodist Church, Brooklyn. The Rev. Robert Moore, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white satin charmeuse embroidered with silver and pearls, and her tulle veil depended from a coronet of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. A diamond bar pin, gift of the bridegroom, was her only ornament. The maid of honor was Miss Natalie Todd, sister of the bridegroom, who was in a frock of shadow lace over chiffon. Her bouquet was of yellow Ophelia roses. The other bridal attendants were the Misses Mildred M. Jones and Marjorie D. Hornbostle. Mrs. M. B. Hyatt and Mrs. W. O. Sullivan. Two appeared in corn flower blue and pink chiffon and two in corn flower blue and green chiffon. Each carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Janice Barker, sister of the bride, was the flower girl. Her frock was of pale pink chiffon and she carried a basket of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd left last night for California, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will be at home at 48 Rutland Road, Brooklyn, after Nov. 1.

Strobel—Rock.

Miss Mildred N. Rock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montavers Rock of the Asthorp, was married to Frank C. Strobel of this city at 6:30 o'clock last evening in a private suite at the Ritz-Carlton, the Rev. Raymond L. Forman officiating.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a gown of white satin embroidered with beads and her veil was of Duchess lace. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Ernest Stickles of Mount Vernon, N. Y., was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Edith Hooker and Urilla Buckner.

Engelson—Hardingham.

Miss Grace Marie Hardingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. H. Hardingham, and Dr. Joseph E. Engelson of 105 East Fifty-third Street, son of the late Peter A. Engelson of this city, were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents at Dunellen, N. J., by the Rev. George Aldrich. Miss Anne Engelson, a sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Edward C. Hardingham was best man for his brother.

Dr. Engelson is a graduate of Columbia and the College of Physicians and Surgeons, class of '06, and served throughout the war as a Captain with Mobile Hospital No. 2 of the U. S. Medical Corps.

Higgins—Smedley.

Miss Edith Smedley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mason O. Smedley of Elmhurst, L. I., and J. Philip Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Higgins of Waverly, N. Y., were married at noon yesterday in St. Bartholomew's Church, Elmhurst, by the Rev. Father Francis J. Ulesu.

The bride, gowned in white chiffon, trimmed with pearls and ivory satin court train, wore a veil of tulle depending from a coronet of orange blossoms.

Miss Helen Conolly and Miss Mary Donnelly Grace of Scranton, Pa., cousin of the bridegroom, were the bride's attendants.

Weil—Bruckner.

The wedding of Miss Theresa Bruckner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Bruckner of 310 West Eighty-sixth Street, and Stanley L. Weil, son of Mrs. Leopold Weil of this city, took place last evening at the Hotel St. Regis. The Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman performed the ceremony in the marble ballroom, under a bower of chrysanthemums, leading up to which was an aisle marked off with high standards festooned with pink and white roses and white satin ribbon.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a gown of white satin and court train, over which was draped rare old lace, an heirloom in the family.

Mrs. Arthur Marx was matron of honor, and the Misses Helen Brandt, Lucille Frank, Rhea Frank and Ruth Ulman, were the bridesmaids. Little Miss Eleanor Weil was the flower girl.

Breeden—Braden.

The wedding of Miss Winifred Braden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Braden of Helena, Mon., and Henry Clarence Breeden, son of the Metropolitan Club, whose home is in Burlingame, Cal., took place yesterday afternoon in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church. Following the ceremony there was a reception for fifty guests at the Plaza. Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Breeden will make their home at the St. Regis.

Mr. Breeden, who is 46 years old, has been married twice before. One of his wives died and he was divorced from the other in California. When obtaining the marriage license last Thursday, he described himself as a capitalist.

Rosenblatt—Steinhardt.

Miss Theresa A. Steinhardt, daughter of Mrs. Adolph M. Steinhardt of 23 East Ninety-second Street, was married to William Rosenblatt of this city and London at 6 o'clock last evening in the Hotel Gotham, the Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnus officiating.

Sadowsky—Haas.

The marriage of Miss Sarah Harriet Haas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Haas, of this city and Tarrytown, and Carl Robert Sadowsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Sadowsky, of this city and Ivington-on-Hudson, was celebrated last evening at Delmonico's. The Rev. Dr. M. M. Kaplan, professor of the Theological Seminary, performed the ceremony, during which Cantor Rosenblatt and a choir of twenty sang.

Martin—Bainton.

Miss Edith F. Bainton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Bainton, and Walter E. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin, were married yesterday morning in the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, West 118th Street, by the Rev. Father Martin A. Scanlon.

Miss Maria C. Murtha was maid of honor and Frank J. Martin acted as best man for his brother. After the ceremony a breakfast was served at the Hotel Marseilles.

After returning from their honeymoon the couple will reside at 221 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Martin is the assistant Treasurer of the Pere Marquette Railroad Company.

WILL WED AFTER ROMANCE.

Captain Kinzey and Miss Sampson Were Childhood Schoolmates.

A romance which began in early school days and continued through college will culminate tomorrow in the marriage of Miss Gertrude Sargent Sampson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Sampson, and Captain Bertram York Kinzey, son of W. E. Kinzey, which will take place in the First Methodist Church at Mount Vernon, N. Y., where the young couple reside.

They attended the Mount Vernon High School and then Cornell University, where Miss Sampson graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Science, after having served on the editorial staff of the Countryman and Woman's Review. Mr. Kinzey graduated this year from Cornell and is now a field expert of the Agricultural Service Bureau of the university.

He left the university to enter service during the war and was commissioned a Captain of Infantry at the age of 20, being one of the young Captains in the army.

FRENCH FANCY BUSY ON SPIRIT MACHINE

Reports of Edison Invention Seized Upon by Humorists and Philosophers.

SUGGESTS TELEPHONE WOES

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The Cox and Harding campaigns for the Presidency have never roused such interest in the French press as the news from America published here that Thomas Edison is busy experimenting with a machine with which he hopes to get into communication with the spirit world. The man who made a machine talk is considered wizard enough to do anything possible, but the tendency of the comment is that this time he has attempted something that is not possible.

Of course the humorists are busy with the idea. "Hello, Napoleon," Clement Vautel writes, describing his imaginary experiences some years hence. "From the Antral Exchange comes a girl's voice, 'Busy.'"

He imagines conversations with Charlemagne, Ninon de Lenclos, Voltaire and the Empress Josephine. "And when we die," he adds, "our last words are likely to be, 'As soon as I arrive I'll call you on the telephone.'"

Yet, he concludes that perhaps it would be best to leave the great peace of the other side undisturbed by wrong number worries, and when Edison calls he fears that "they" will not deign to reply.

Dr. Galent, Director of the International Metapsychic Institute, is one of those who has been consulted, and has expressed skepticism on Edison's success. Confessing ignorance of the instruments Edison intended to use, he argues against success by the analogy that chemists have never been able to create a living substance. In metapsychic experiments "was the vital force" of the medium which enabled communication, and he doubted the possibility of creating any apparatus capable of taking the place of this vital force.

Abel Hermant, in L'Information, addresses an open letter to Edison, and beseeches him, if there is still time, to break up his diabolic instrument. Do you want to take all our illusions from us?" he asks. "You seek to prove whether or not we are immortal. But that's just what we don't want to know. We want desperately to hope we are and fear that we are not. Don't take from us the uncertainty of this fear and this hope. The day when we no longer doubt, when we can no longer live in this uncertainty, we will have no more interest at all in living."

In the Oeuvre one writer sums up his ideas by recalling that in the Middle Ages Edison would have been burned for black magic, and, being one of the innumerable sufferers from Paris telephones, he adds:

"Perhaps he should have been burned long ago."

ELECTRICAL SHOW AMAZES VISITORS

WIRELESS PHONES IN USE

Thirteenth Annual Exhibition Opens with Everything Electrical for Home, Office or Store.

The thirteenth annual Electrical Show opened last evening in Grand Central Palace, and the sign that once graced a downtown store, "If it's electrical we have it," might well have been hung above the wide entrance to the show. Three floors of the building are devoted to the 151 exhibits, and on each of them there was enough to hold the interest for half a night. It might be said that the present show has developed more candle power than any of the previous twelve shows.

The exhibition showed the development in ways and methods of utilizing electricity in home, office, store and factory, and as the visitors wandered among all this display they marveled at the many ways electricity can be used. In no branch of its service was this better shown than in the many ways that electricity can be made the servant of the household and the friend of housewives.

Of particular interest are the three different exhibits of wireless telephoning. Practical demonstrations of their working was made and many scores of visitors had the opportunity of picking up a few words out of the air.

The entire third floor is given over to working exhibits, where the employment of electricity in a score of industries is demonstrated. The Material Handling Machinery Manufacturers' Association and the Electric Hoist Manufacturers' Association are co-operating in this section.

There is a special exhibit showing factory lighting and how to light properly and retain the element of safety. Another reveals how an electric bakery is operated, and still another how electricity is made to serve in the laundry.

The show will continue until Oct. 16.

Silks in Better Position.

Two factors are said to be working now toward the improvement of the demand for silks at wholesale. One of these is the stabilizing of the price of raw silk and the other is the increased disposition on the part of the retailers to lower their prices in accordance with the reductions made in the wholesale market. Quite a little quiet buying has been going on, but not enough to warrant calling the demand an active one. Mills that are ready to meet buyers' ideas of price are taking some business, but chiefly on goods wanted for immediate or nearby delivery. This, however, is considered to be the first step in developing a larger demand, and prospects for Spring are regarded as fairly good, particularly as the cutters-up are then expected to come forward with satisfactory orders.

Ought Not Cut Goods Carelessly.

One of the most prominent manufacturers in the local cutting-up trade yesterday warned members of that industry not to lose the benefits gained by conservatism in making garments earlier in the season by converting surplus piece goods into clothing now unless orders for the finished goods were actually in hand. The tendency is in that direction, he said, in the hope to see by doing so losses on piece goods bought at higher prices may be recouped. As against this, however, there is the possibility of still greater loss incurred in making up the goods "on speculation" as late in the season as this. Were this done and the garments turned out to be "stickers," not only would loss be incurred on the piece goods, but on the time and effort put into them by the entire organization in making and trying to sell them.

Settled Many Express Claims.

About $26,000 in express claims has been collected for the members of the Associated Dress Industries of America in the last six months, according to an announcement made yesterday by Executive Director David N. Mosessohn at the first Fall luncheon meeting of that organization, which was held at the Hotel McAlpin. The "age" of the claims varied from six months to three years. Among them was a single claim for $6,067, which was said to be the largest package collection ever made. J. J. Goldman, President of the association, made a brief address. The chief speaker was B. C. Forbes, editor of Forbes' Magazine Mr. Forbes touched on the proper treatment of labor, financial and business conditions, &c. He also advocated a prompt reduction of wholesale ready-to-wear prices to probable Spring levels and taking losses now. In the long run, he asserted, the trade would benefit materially.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Dix Brothers, who handle floor coverings, upholsteries, draperies, &c., are now located in new and larger quarters at 235 and 237 Fifth Avenue.

Schwartz & Kananack, resident buyers, 141 West Thirty-third Street, have added to their accounts the Oxford Garment Company of Boston and the Sam Klein store of Racine, Wis.

M. M. Kirschenbaum, for some time ready-to-wear buyer for the American Wholesale Corporation (the Baltimore Bargain House), Baltimore, Md., has resigned to enter business for himself in that city under the firm name of the Kirschenbaum Corporation, which will carry women's coats, suits, dresses and skirts. The local office of the corporation will be located at 29 West Thirty-sixth Street, care of Bernard Epstein.

JAPAN GETS GERMAN DYES.

Imports Worth $1,000,000 in August Despite Business Depression.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Japan imported German dyes worth $1,000,000 during August, according to reports received today by the Department of Commerce. Although their sale has been retarded by the business depression which has prevailed in Japan, importations continue, firms fulfilling contracts made before prices slumped.

The Department also was informed that the Japanese Government had taken steps to halt the transfer back to Japan of funds held in other countries for the purchase of imports. As a result of a decrease in the demand for imported goods, specie to the extent of $16,000,000 which had been reserved in America was returned to Japan during July by exchange banks, the Department was advised.

Forman Library Sale Continues.

The sale of the third part of the library of the late H. Buxton Forman was continued at the Anderson Galleries yesterday. The total for the session was $1,321. The sale will be concluded today.

"BUY IT FROM THE NAVY"

IN WHOLESALE QUANTITIES $250 OR OVER

Further Reduction in Navy Prices (to Oct. 31)

An additional discount of five per cent. is allowed now and until Oct. 31 on all Navy Surplus Goods to which discounts are applicable. And after this flat reduction the price is also subject to the regular discounts allowed on quantity orders. The discounts now are

Oct. 1 to Oct. 31.

On orders over	$250	$2,000	$5,000	$10,000	$20,000	$50,000
Discounts (%)	5	5 and 2	5 and 5	5 and 10	5 and 15	5 and 20

The combined discounts, when compared with the smaller discounts allowed prior to Oct. 1, show that the largest reductions are on the smaller quantities:

Orders over	$250	$2,000	$5,000	$10,000	$20,000	$50,000
Discount was (%) Net		2	5	10	15	20
Discount NOW (%)	5	6.90	9.75	14.50	19.25	24

This is nearly double the former discount on quantities under $10,000. It is over three times the discount on quantities under $5,000.

Buyers for mail order houses, wholesalers, and other distributors are invited to call at the Sample Room, to judge for themselves the value and salability of the great variety of articles offered here—all new and of excellent quality.

Make this test in your filing department

HOLD a watch on your file clerk the next time you ask for a letter. Make several tests—then strike an average.

If the average time required to produce a letter is more than ten seconds, then your filing department needs immediate attention.

Actual time-tests have been made in a number of New York offices equipped with the "Y and E" Direct Name Filing System.

Imported Drugs Easier in Price.

Imported crude drugs continue to decline here, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. The downward movement of prices of medicinal chemicals also continues, with speculation stopped for the time being. In the heavier chemicals sulphuric, nitric and muriatic acids are lower although the break in the first named is not so great as in some of the other heavy acids. Bleaching powder is slightly easier. In essential oils the tendency of prices is toward lower levels.

Gray Goods Still Weak.

The local market for gray goods continued dull yesterday, with prices weak. Among the few transactions worthy of record were some October 39-inch 68-72 printcloths which brought 13 cents, and some 88½-inch 90-48s, for similar delivery, which sold for 10¾ cents. The latter price was also paid for October shipments of 5-yard sheetings. Further easiness developed in the clothing specialties. Sales of those goods included 39-inch 64-104 sateens at 17 cents, or about 3 cents a yard less than was recently asked for the same construction.

Uneven Clothing Stocks.

Clothing stocks in retail hands, according to information coming to the wholesale trade, are rather badly assorted in many instances. There is said to be more than the usual mixing up of Fall and Spring goods, depending upon how much of the latter was carried over into the new season. Overcoat stocks include garments which were taken out of camphor, having been bought last year. Price averaging has had the effect, it is further stated, of mixing up new with old goods, and for this reason there are considerable style and pattern differences which do not tend to make the selection of a garment an easy matter for the customer.

Heard Silk Plan Explained.

At a meeting of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, held yesterday in the rooms of the organization at 70 Worth Street, about forty representatives of leading dry goods commission houses here heard an explanation of the steps taken against silk buyers who seek to evade contract obligations. The meeting was addressed by Albert Tilt of the Phoenix Silk Manufacturing Company, a member of the Bureau of Contract of the broad silk industry. Mr. Tilt explained the resolutions adopted by the bureau and their enforcement act, as well as covered in detail the methods pursued in the silk industry to combat the cancellation and claim evil.

Buyers Like Frequent Purchases.

When the Fall buying season started, those who advised careful purchases did not find so ready a hearing, it is said, as their counsel at that time deserved. Now the buyers have recognized the wisdom of the plan suggested, inasmuch as their frequent purchases have helped to bring price reductions that otherwise would not have been offered. In other words, the more the orders are split the oftener a wholesaler has to make an attractive price. The only danger seen in the new system of buying is that it leaves the manufacturer in doubt about his future business and does not allow such economical production.

Luxury Appeal in Windows.

Retail show windows, from a survey made of them, continue to emphasize the luxury appeal. Price tickets, of course, have appeared in many displays that formerly were not accustomed to give such information, but there is still a well defined tendency in the direction of showing the most expensive things contained in the store. By some merchandise men this display of luxury is said not to be in keeping with the spirit of the times, but on the whole, however, that it is really the great development in the art of window dressing that is responsible for the rich displays.

Woolen Report Denied.

A denial was made yesterday by officers of the American Woolen Company that there would be a shutdown of the mills because orders for new fashion would not be sufficient to permit operation. The report also told of a reduction of 50 per cent. to be made in the prices of goods now held in stock by the company. This also was denied. The market, it was stated elsewhere, has been rife with rumors of a rather sensational nature lately, chief of which was that in the effort to get business now lacking some leading mills might inaugurate greater price reductions than have yet appeared. The best opinion in the trade is that no further large concessions are to be expected, but that other slight cuts may continue to be made.

NIXON SAYS CANALS AID THE RAILROADS

WOULD BAR MONOPOLIES

Says Deeper Channels and Free Terminals Will Bring Trade —Defends the Erie.

Speaking yesterday before the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association at Atlantic City, Public Service Commissioner Nixon said that with more and better patronized canals would come a reduction in the cost of necessities, and that one of the first things to do was to see that the big railroads withdrew their opposition to transportation via canal. He pointed out that canals really help the railroads by taking from them much of the freight carried at such a disadvantage as to entail loss. This loss, he said, had to be met by charging more for other freight.

"The canals," continued Mr. Nixon, "in carrying cheaper raw material and fuel enable factories to produce outputs that will bear an adequate railroad rate, and the most prosperous roads are often parallel to navigable water courses."

Mr. Nixon said that it would be necessary to prove conclusively that water trunk lines are cheaper and better than railroads in order to procure for them popular support. He declared that the decadence of the Erie Canal was not due to the obsolete mule and barge, but to the monopoly of all terminals. He said:

"Give the water courses and terminals freedom from selfish exploiting, and American enterprise will produce the vehicles of commerce and economy of loading and discharge that will meet public needs. The task is to free the waterways along the Atlantic Coast from private or corporation ownership, to deepen them to a uniform depth, and then to induce every city that desires to utilize the blessings of such a trunk waterway to install free terminals, as freight clearing houses, where railway car, steamer and barge may meet with co-ordinating freight handling facilities suitable to all."

Mr. Nixon said the enlarged Erie Canal links the Atlantic with the Middle West and "because its usefulness has not yet been availed of there are those who wish to reflect upon the judgment of the men who brought about this great undertaking."

He showed how the Erie Canal backs up the supremacy of the Port of New York by linking it with prosperous cities all the way to Duluth.

Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania said that he hoped we would never get through spending money on our merchant marine, and that "if we had today the canals which the railroads put out of business in Pennsylvania, after upward of $50,000,000 had been spent upon them, we should have a rate regulating influence upon the railroads far greater than all the rate making commissions in the country."

Woman First to Seek Annulment of Vows on That Ground.

The first suit by a woman to annul her marriage on the ground that she had discovered she had become the wife of an anarchist was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Helen Grossman of 131 West 110th Street against John Grossman, now living at West Newton, Mass.

Mrs. Grossman says that she was married to the defendant on March 25 last on his representation that he was an honorable man respecting the laws and institutions of the United States. She later learned, she says, that he is a member of several anarchistic societies and has advocated the overthrow of this Government by violence. She left him on March 29, she says.

—instantly Rand Visible Records show all Sales Conditions

NO longer merely "order-takers"—the sales force to-day must get out and fight for business.

And wise sales managers who keep constantly before them a "birdseye view" of the market and sales conditions by means of Rand Visible Card-Records, face the future without anxiety—and let results speak for themselves.

For Rand Visible Card-Records are the biggest possible help in Sales Promotion. You can see at a glance just what you want to know—the name and address of the prospect, his requirements, length of time between sales, form letters written, salesmen's calls made, prospect of new equipment, possibility of using other lines, and so on. So too, you are able to route salesmen to best advantage, shifting men rapidly (as daily conditions make it necessary) through being in control every minute of every factor in sales conditions.

And as in Sales Promotion, the instant accessibility of records displayed the Rand way, makes this equipment just as successful in other phases of modern business—Credit, Costs, Personnel, Stock, Production, etc. It takes the guess, the memory-work out of the executive's task—speeding up and cutting down overhead at the same time

Doing Away with Chance in Children's Hosiery

CHILDREN are hard on stockings, at best. The least your dealer can do is to give you children's hosiery of known value—full size, shapely, and good for at least a normal period of wear.

Probably once upon a time you got some of this exceptional Black Cat Hosiery for your children. Did you get the same thing the next time you went back to the store? Or were you forced to take something out of a mixed stock?

This practice of mixing hosiery stocks is nothing but a habit of the average dealer's mind. The real merchant broke away from it years ago. Thousands of stores are concentrating on Allen A Black Cat Hosiery as their one great standardized line.

Allen A Black Cat Hosiery has been made in the same great Mills for thirty years. Each pair will in the future be stamped "Allen A"—the Maker's personal pledge to you of uniform quality and dependable value.

"Allen"—the name of the Makers; and "A"—the standard mark of first and finest grade. Tell your dealer to concentrate on Allen A Black Cat Hosiery—keeping up his assortment and sizes, buying from the Mills direct.

ASK SUPREME COURT TO EVICT TENANTS

LAWS' VALIDITY IS INVOLVED

MANY REFUSE TO PAY RISES

Offers to Cut Increases Spurned, Tenants Preferring to Let Courts Fix Rate.

The first court argument to test the new rent laws is scheduled for hearing this morning before Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan. William Brandt & Co., Inc., through Attorney Meyer D. Siegel, will present arguments to have certain tenants in the six-story elevator apartment house at Audubon Avenue and 170th Street show cause why they should not give up their apartments in accordance with their leases.

In his affidavit Mr. Siegel said that his clients had been owners of the property since last February. The leases, he said, provided that at the expiration of the agreement, unless a new agreement were made, the tenants would quietly surrender possession. On Sept. 30 the leases of Solomon Weil, David Gerston, Betsy Fernheimer, Cornelius S. Vail, Ray Frankenstein, Rebecca Frankenstein, Samuel Golden, Nathan Layman, Solomon L. Kahn, George R. Fish and Clarence H. Kahn expired.

The tenants refused to vacate because of the new rent laws and because they were unable to obtain other apartments. Counsel for the owners maintains that the action of the tenants constitutes confiscation of property without due process of law and is therefore unconstitutional. The tenants are also charged with conspiring to deprive the owners of the possession of their property. The owners ask for judgment against the defendants and that they be ordered to vacate their apartments during the pendency of the action and that the costs of the action be assessed against them.

Laws Held Invalid.

Another case to test the constitutionality of the new laws will be argued in the Federal District Court tomorrow, when the action of the Marcus Brown Holding Company against Arnold Pollock and District Attorney Edward Swann is called.

The plaintiff, owner of the property at 215 West Ninety-first Street, said to be a New Jersey corporation with main offices in Newark, has asked the court to declare the new rent laws unconstitutional, to halt Mr. Pollock from "trespassing" on the property and to enjoin Mr. Swann from prosecuting.

Thousands of tenants have refused to pay rent increases due on Oct. 1 under leases signed prior to that date. They say that under the new rent laws they may refuse to pay anything but a fair rent and are willing to have Municipal Court Justices determine what is fair and reasonable. Hundreds of tenants' meetings are being held nightly in all parts of the city, where landlords are invited to discuss the situation brought about by the new laws.

Word reached Chairman Hilly yesterday that in many cases landlords, desiring to avoid delays and litigation, have voluntarily approached tenants with offers to cut rent increases in half. In some cases the offers have been spurned, the tenants signifying a desire to have the rent adjusted in court.

One apartment house owner in Harlem voluntarily reduced a $10 increase he had demanded to $5 and promised to make repairs. The tenants have not yet decided whether they will accept the offer or stick to their determination to refuse the increase, as it would have made the third in one year.

An irate landlord complained yesterday that not only did a woman tenant refuse to pay an increase, but she also declared that she had been paying an exorbitant rent for a year and tendered him the rent she paid the year before last.

Urges Voluntary Settlements.

In order to make the work of the court easier in the adjudication of rent cases and to reduce the cases, Justice John R. Davies of the Seventh Municipal Court, St. Nicholas Avenue and 125th Street, issued a statement yesterday calling on landlords and tenants to treat each other with as much consideration as possible.

"Since 1914 we have all learned by sad experience that war is costly, and our court clerks are instructed to advise landlords and tenants who come here for advice to meet each other a little more than half way and adjust their cases themselves.

It developed in court that the Gropers were unaware that Fleming was being forced from his home. When they learned of the surrender of the premises, although they were without a home. Gropper produced a lease which Lowenthal said the superintendent gave to him. The landlord said he was ignorant of the superintendent's whereabouts.

Lease Vanishes in Court.

The lease was placed on the table before Judge Schwab, but when the Magistrate asked to see it the paper could not be found. The Magistrate was indignant. S. W. Lippy, attorney for Lowenthal, said he did not know what had become of the lease, but pointed to the pocket of Harry Hayward of the Hayward Realty Co., Broadway and 100th Street, who was in court in Lowenthal's interest. Hayward thereupon produced the paper, which he said had been handed to him by Lippy. The Magistrate reprimanded Lippy and denied his motion for a long adjournment.

F. Navratil, owner of an apartment house at 400 Third Avenue, Long Island City, was present yesterday when his twenty-four tenants held an indignation meeting and protested against an increase in rent. At the close of the session Navratil said that the arguments of the tenants convinced him that there should be no increase, at least until Jan. 1. He was invited to be the guest of honor at a luncheon arranged by the tenants.

Navy to Start New Campaign To Fill Ranks of Recruits

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Secretary Daniels today announced another special campaign for recruits for the navy in which special inducements will be offered.

The Secretary stated that there are 9,568 men studying specialties in navy schools. From these will be drawn the specialists. There are left 4,700 vacancies in the schools, and these have been thrown open without reservation. Formerly they were open only to former service men.

The navy schools are paying special attention to physical development, and the latest statistics show an average gain of ten pounds in weight in four months and gratifying increases in height and chest development.

An office has been established in Washington to look out for the men's welfare, and particular attention is being paid to this subject by the department and the commanders in chief of the fleets.

UNEXAMPLED BOOM IN GERMAN TEXTILES

62 PER CENT. FOR ONE FIRM

Several Declare Dividends of 30 Per Cent. and Upward—Complaints of Profiteering Heard.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The German textile industry, which of late has begun even to invade England again, has had such an astoundingly successful year that its high records of peace times have been put completely in the shade. Several of the largest concerns are now issuing annual reports and declaring dividends. They all show results which, when the scarcity of raw material, labor troubles, the low rate of exchange and the high cost of production are taken into consideration, present really amazing evidence of the strength and recuperative force of this industry.

The most wonderful example of industrial recovery is that of the North German Worsted Manufacturing and Yarn Spinning Company of Bremen. It has declared a dividend of 12 per cent. and a bonus of 500 marks on each 1,000-mark share, equal to a dividend of 62 per cent. During the twelve months covered by the report the company did four times more business than last year, or during the twelve months before the outbreak of the war.

The Mitweida Cotton Spinning Company furnishes another striking instance of recovered prosperity. Its net profit is 1,700,000 marks, as against 2,000,000 marks in the previous year and in 1913-14. Despite its carrying of a large amount to reserve and the payment of considerable sums to wipe out debts of the war years, the company is able to pay a dividend of 35 per cent.

Following textile industry dividends are also announced:

Aix-La-Chapelle Spinning Company, 32 per cent.; Concordia Spinning and Weaving Company of Cunxlau, 16; Textile Works, 25; Grünberg Woolen Goods Manufacturing Company, 35; Jute Spinning and Weaving Company, Meisen, 41 p.-3; Johannes Grimes & Co., 25; Pong Spinning Company, 20; Saon Thread Manufacturing Company, 34.

What makes the position more remarkable is the fact that not one of the companies just mentioned has paid a dividend for several years past. Then there is the case of the Bedburg Wool Industry Company, which even in the last year of peace did not pay a dividend, but now announces one of 25 per cent.

But these big dividends do not give a full indication of the extraordinary prosperity of the textile industry, because all these companies without exception have put large sums to reserve and paid off great accumulations of war losses.

Such prosperity is, of course, opening people's eyes and giving them to understand the why and wherefore of high prices. Many newspapers are protesting against such ruthless profiteering and declare that the reports of those companies provide excellent material on which to base a strike of the buying public.

From Frankfort it is reported that the textile section of the international fair now being held there is doing an enormous business.

The textile industry is calling for large amounts of new capital. During September twenty-four textile companies issued or announced their intention of issuing within the next few days no less than 64,000,000 marks of new shares and there is something like a rush for them.

MEXICANS KILL OFFICER, HOLD POLICE AT BAY

Barricade Homestead House and Kill Owner—Firemen Turn Water on Windows.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—After killing a patrolman and a resident, a crowd of Mexican laborers, armed with pistols, barricaded themselves in a boarding house at Homestead, a suburb, tonight, and are engaging a posse of police and firemen in an exchange of shots.

The Mexicans, according to the police, were acting disorderly on the street when two patrolmen tried to arrest them. One of the Mexicans drew a pistol and killed Patrolman William Smith and wounded Patrolman Henry Davis. They then retreated to a Mexican boarding house, where they shot and killed the proprietor and barricaded themselves.

The police found it impossible to break into the house because of the constant fire of the Mexicans. The Fire Department was called out, and soon after 10 o'clock were laying several line of hose, with the intention of directing streams into the boarding house windows.

The battle had been in progress for about an hour when the police reported that they had killed one of the Mexicans in the house.

MARLBOROUGH TO CONTEST

Duchess's Suit for Divorce Entered Among Defended Actions.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Duchess of Marlborough's petition appears in the list of defended causes for hearing by the divorce court at an early date.

A decree for the restoration of conjugal rights was granted last March to the Duchess of Marlborough, the daughter of the late W. K. Vanderbilt. Under English law failure to comply with the decree constitutes desertion, and it was reported last May that suit for divorce was being prepared. The Duchess, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt, was wedded to the Duke in this city in 1895.

DAY'S REGISTRATION BREAKS ALL RECORDS

182,296 Persons Pave Way to Vote, Bringing Three-Day Total to 491,949.

WOMEN'S INTEREST GAINS

Registration yesterday took a big jump throughout the city, and all records for a single day's registration in New York City were broken. Women registrants made a better showing than during the preceding two days, especially in the better class of residential districts. They still fell far behind the men, however, in some districts, the ratio being five and six to one.

The Tammany districts in lower Manhattan, which had shown a decided slump on Monday and Tuesday, as compared to the Republican districts, made a much better showing yesterday. The Republican strongholds, however, continued to make a much better showing than the Democratic districts.

Political leaders expressed satisfaction with the registration so far and declared it indicated that the voters were finally showing interest in the campaign.

Yesterday 182,296 persons registered in the entire city, a gain of 18,358 over Tuesday's figures, and the total for the entire city for the three days this week was 491,949. This is 90,117 better than the first three days last year and 135,404 better than in the figures of the first three days in 1916, the last Presidential year.

Manhattan continued to lead the boroughs, the registration for the day being 68,606, as compared with Brooklyn's 64,988. The three-day total for Manhattan is 185,153, and that for Brooklyn 179,249.

The following table shows the registration yesterday and three-day totals as compared with the first three days last year. The capitulation table contrasts this year's results with those for the last four years.

One of the most active districts of the city continued to be the Tenth Assembly District, which includes the territory west of Fifth Avenue between Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets. The district covers the new and theatre section and many women went to the registration stations, many of them in automobiles.

On the west side of Harlem the registration was heavier than last year and the percentage of women registrants was larger than in any section of Manhattan. In the east section of Harlem the registration was slow, the men outnumbering the women two to one.

The twelve branches opened yesterday all over the city by the Honest Ballot Association served as clearing houses for the dissemination of information regarding registering and voting to hundreds of women, particularly the foreign born. Officials of the association said the number of persons seeking information was greater than usual and indicated that probably many thousands are delaying registration until they have learned more about it.

In preparation for election day the association announced it had doubled the number of service branches maintained in 1916 and had also greatly increased its staff of workers.

The Non-Partisan Women Watchers' Committee, among whose members are Mrs. H. C. Havemeyer, Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch and Miss Elinor Byrns, members of the New York Bar, sent this appeal to the Board of Elections:

"The attention of the Women Watchers' Committee has been called by physicians attending women who have recently become mothers that their patients are asking how they may vote since they are unable to register.

"We appeal to you for a ruling on this point. Would it not be possible to swear in such voters on Election Day provided that in each case the mother presented a certificate of the birth of her child on such a date as precluded her from going to the polls between Oct. 3 and 9? Of all citizens, these women should not be disfranchised."

"Vengeance Gang" Convicted in Cairo of Plot to Kill High Egyptian Officials

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 6.—Twenty-five members of the so-called "Vengeance Gang," which allegedly is an anti-British society organized to conduct assassinations of political personages, have been convicted of conspiracy by a court before which they had been on trial for several weeks. The sentences will be promulgated later. Four of the accused persons were acquitted.

Among those convicted was Abdul Rhamen Bey Fahny, former Provisional Governor and at one time a servant of the Executive. He was charged with being a member of the "Vengeance Gang" and also with incitement to murder.

Numerous assassinations and attempted murders are credited to this society, which had an elaborate organization and worked with great secrecy. The objects of the society are alleged to have been the deposition of the Sultan and his assassination, together with his Ministers and other persons who did not receive the approval of the society. It was charged that the organization also preached sedition and distributed arms.

AMERICANS IN JAPAN WARN OF DANGER

All Interests Unite in Deprecating Hasty Action in California.

PARTY CHIEFS REMAIN CALM

TOKIO, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—The American associations of Tokio and Yokohoma have cabled the following joint resolution to Bainbridge Colby, the American Secretary of State:

"We, the American Associations of Yokohoma and Tokio, in a conference definitely representing all American interests in Japan, business, missionary and professional, have resolved to acquaint our countrymen with the intense feeling aroused throughout Japan by the present action in California, threatening the destruction of the traditional friendship and a future estrangement between the two peoples. We earnestly beg our countrymen to act with sober deliberation and patience, trusting the respective Gaverments to find a solution satisfactory and effecting without affronting Japan or sacrificing the principles of equality on either hand."

The Executive Committee of the American-Japan Society has requested two of its American members, E. W. Frazar and John Richard Geary, general manager of the General Electric Company in Japan, to go to America and assist, if possible, in the improvement of Japanese-American relations.

The Kensei-kai Party, which is opposed to the Government, has voted not to publish resolutions passed by the party on the California situation "in view of their grave significance," but to watch developments and adopt measures according to the trend of the situation.

"The anti-Japanese movement is local and premature when considering it as affecting all America. It is improper to get excited and indulge in strong utterances against the Americans.

"Japan should follow the indicated steps to protect the right of her nationals in the belief that the Supreme Court will nullify illegal California measures. If these steps fail Japan will be justified in resorting to other measures.

"Japan's ill-advised diplomacy has contributed to the American situation, especially through the racial equality proposal at Paris. It was inevitable that the United States and Canada would interpret the proposal as a prelude insisting on the solution of immigration problems. Furthermore, the Government's policy in Siberia and China, which has not conformed to the world situation, has produced an undesirable misunderstanding abroad that Japan is adopting the path of militarism.

"These and other things have contributed to the anti-Japanese movement in California and therefore the Government should be held responsible to effect a solution of the situation satisfactory to the will of the nation."

FUKUI, Japan, Oct. 5.—At a general meeting today of the Seiyu-kai majority party held here Sakunoshin Motoda, the Minister of Railroads, in addressing the gathering said that conditions surrounding the anti-Japanese question in the United States were becoming serious and he could not accept anxiety for fear the question might affect the friendly relations of the Japanese and Americans. However, continued M. Motoda, there were at all times many Americans who were extending themselves in the cause of humanity and he had no doubt the question would be peacefully settled when the Presidential election was over.

"At this important moment," he added, "we must do our best and ask the American people to think in ways of humanity and justice and in conformity with the moral obligations and friendship of the two countries."

SOVIET NOW YIELDS TO CURZON'S DEMANDS

Names Agents Through Whom Release of British Prisoners Will Be Arranged.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 7.—The Daily Chronicle's diplomatic correspondent, referring to rumors of a dispatch in the nature of an ultimatum having been sent by Lord Curzon to the Soviet Government, says the facts are that the Foreign Secretary telegraphed on Oct. 1 demanding definite action for the release of British prisoners and the cessation of hostile propaganda, and that a reply from Moscow has been received. It is expected that the note and reply will be issued for publication tomorrow.

Although the Soviet Government agreed to release the prisoners and cease propaganda here and hostile action in the Near East as conditions of trade negotiations, they have not carried out their promise. Lord Curzon named several groups of British subjects still held in Russia, at the same time expressing his anxiety to get rid of several Bolsheviki held here, and referred to recent speeches by Lenin and other Soviet leaders thought to be menacing to British interests in the Near East.

Moscow was summoned to reply before Oct. 10, otherwise the trade negotiations could not be continued and the British Government would be freed from its undertaking not to assist any action against the Soviet State.

The reply from Moscow is understood to be favorable and to name agents through whom the release of the prisoners will be arranged.

ATTACK 'PUSSYFOOT' AGAIN.

Reading, England Rioters Use "Bombs" to Break Up a Meeting.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson, the American prohibition advocate, narrowly escaped from an angry crowd which interrupted one of his meetings last night at Reading, Berkshire, and tried to break through the locked doors of the hall to reach him, according to a Reading dispatch to The Evening News today. The crowd also threw bombs containing foul-smelling chemicals.

The police had to be called out to prevent serious disorders. Johnson escaped, guarded by detectives, by the rear exit of the hall through a graveyard to a taxicab.

MARVEL AT ESCAPE FROM BIG TOKIO FIRE

Sunday School Convention Calls a Thanksgiving Service for the Safety of All.

SURE FIRE WAS AN ACCIDENT

TOKIO, Oct. 5 (Associated Press).—Although the fire which this afternoon destroyed the big hall in which the World's Sunday School Convention was to have been opened tonight spread with amazing rapidity, all the persons who were in the building, including the members of the big chorus of Japanese and foreigners which was rehearsing, made their escape from the structure. This was announced tonight by the Convention Committee, which at once made arrangements to hold the meetings elsewhere, and this evening the first session took place in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Immediately after the building had burned the committee called a meeting of prayer and thanksgiving for the safety of those who had been imperiled by the fire. This was attended by a large company, including many notable Japanese.

Professor Augustus Smith of Boston was rehearsing the chorus just before the fire started. In front of him, above the platform, was a design representing the East and the West joined as one, together with an open Bible and a dove of peace flying over all. Incandescent lamps outlined the words, "I Am the Light of the World."

Suddenly, in the centre of the emblem, tiny pencils of fire thrust themselves out and formed themselves into slowly creeping flames.

"Don't be alarmed," called out Professor Smith, hoping to prevent a panic among the people, who had started for the exits. There was no letup in the rush, however, for the fire was spreading rapidly and had enveloped the entire wall while the occupants were making their way out.

The convention leaders were deeply impressed by the fact that although the building had been reduced to ashes a statue at the entrance by the Japanese sculptor Takaishi, showing Christ blessing the children of the world, was untouched, either by the flames or the walls collapsing about it.

At tonight's opening meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Hall speeches of welcome were delivered by leaders of Japanese Christianity. There was an address by Inajiro Tajiri, the Mayor of Tokio, who cordially greeted the delegates, and also one by Viscount Shibusawa, President of the American-Japan Association. Responses were read from President Thomas R. Ferens and John Wanamaker, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the association, who were absent. Dr. Frank L. Brown of New York, General Secretary of the American section, delivered an address on the subject, "Religious Education a Necessity for the World."

The organizers of the convention expressed their determination to maintain it as a strictly religious effort. Political considerations, however, have disappointed the hopes of having big delegations from China and Korea. Strong political opposition by Koreans to the attendance of their fellow countrymen because the convention is being held in Japan's capital of Japan prevailed and only two or three Koreans are here, while Chinese repugnance to participation was so insistent that there are no credited Chinese whatsoever. In some cases the Chinese notified foreign missionaries that if they themselves attended they need not return to their posts in China.

Owing to existing political conditions some Japanese have declared themselves fearful of the possibility of the impression growing abroad that the fire was due to malicious acts, but the testimony of observers is that it was indisputably the result of faulty wiring.

SAYS WEYGAND GOES TO HELP WRANGEL

Bolshevist Report That Makhno Has Deserted South Russian Chief to Join Reds.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 6.—The French General Weygand has left for South Russia to take supreme command of the anti-Bolshevist troops of General Wrangel, the National Tidende says today.

Recent dispatches from Paris asserted that the French Government was considering the sending of General Weygand to South Russia to advise General Wrangel, whose Government has already been recognized by France. It is to General Weygand's strategy that the successful counterstroke of the Poles which relieved Warsaw and drove the Soviet troops from Polish territory is credited.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 5.—More than 10,000 Bolshevist prisoners were taken and enormous stores of materials captured by General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, when his troops occupied Mariupol, a seaport on the Sea of Azov, and the centre of the Donetz-Yousovka mining basin, says a communication issued by Wrangel's Government today.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—General Makhno, the Ukrainian commander who has been operating under General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, has joined the Bolsheviki and received a command under the Soviet administration against Wrangel, it is asserted in a wireless dispatch from Moscow today.

General Makhno, it is declared, appealed to the Soviet authorities for a command owing to demands from the lower ranks of his army who did not wish to fight for General Wrangel against the Bolsheviki.

LITHUANIANS FIGHT AGAIN.

Several Divisions Attack the Polish Forces Near Orany.

DESCRIBES AGONY OF DYING PETROGRAD

DEATHS 30,000 A MONTH

PARIS, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—A graphic eyewitness description of the fearful conditions existing at Petrograd is given by the Finnish Red Cross in an appeal just issued to the Red Cross societies of the world. It is accompanied by documents prepared by Professor Zeidler, formerly head of the Petrograd Red Cross, but now a refugee in Finland.

The documents, which reached the Paris bureau of the American Red Cross today, tell the story of the agony of a dying city. Petrograd's present population, based on the food cards, is 500,000 or 600,000, and the capital of the Czars is described as having sunk to one-fourth its pre-war size. The report says:

"Death stalks on every side waiting for Winter to aid in the grim work of mowing down the silent, hungry, sick and dying thousands. With streets and houses choked with filth that is already spreading spotted and intermittent typhus, the cold weather will finish the task with pneumonia and abdominal typhus.

"The fuel situation was never so bad. Wooden houses have been torn down for fuel. The material is distributed equally among the population, but during the nights the more energetic citizens steal the quota of wood from others.

30,000 Coffins a Month Insufficient.

"The wood yards have been nationalized. One of them has been given up entirely to the manufacturers of 30,000 coffins monthly. But even this number is insufficient. People have not time to bury the dead, and the bodies take their turn waiting several days.

"Only one important tramway line is in operation, and that runs to the suburbs. In the centre of the city, either there are no street cars or they run very rarely. On the Sadovoya only one branch line is in operation.

"Kerosene costs 450 rubles a pound. There are no candles. Most homes are in darkness. There is no means of transporting things by waterway, because the barges were long since demolished for fuel. The railway transportation is devoted almost exclusively to the distribution of flour.

"Only 200 people are permitted to leave Petrograd daily by passenger train. Workmen receive half a pound of bread daily, and sometimes other food is given. The prices of foodstuffs continue to rise to incredible heights. Many products have almost completely disappeared from the markets.

"The mortality has reached a startling rate owing to the lack of food and insanitary conditions of houses and streets. Fat has left the majority of the population long ago. At present the muscular tissue is consumed. The faces of people have taken on a waxlike color. In order to fill their stomachs with something they drink different substitutes for tea and coffee or great quantities of plain water, resulting in puffiness and dropsy, which change the expression of the face that old acquaintances are unrecognizable.

"The decay of property is aided not only by the colossal prices of materials and wages—slightest repair work costs not under 100,000 rubles—but also by the fact that house porters are abolished, partly as a bourgeois project and partly because the porters are needed for wood cutting. At present houses are looked after by beggars and committees composed of indigent Communists.

Filth Indescribable.

"Indescribable dirt and filth are on every side within the houses. When plumbing gets out of order it remains unrepaired. Whole houses become filthy from top to bottom, and it becomes impossible to live in them. These houses are then barred, and tenants move into other houses, which are neglected in the same manner.

"There is no fuel, no hot water or baths, no janitor, doorkeeper or servants for draining yards, streets, buildings, or for the removal of garbage. The Government appointed a special sanitary commission with sweeping authority, but the commission accomplished nothing. The commission is housed in a building where the heating plant is out of order and the water system and toilets do not function.

"Petrograd is facing a dreadful phantom of epidemics. Thousands are already dying every month of spotted, abdominal and intermittent typhus, dysentery, Spanish influenza, smallpox, pulmonary diseases, hunger and exhaustion. The healthy people of Petrograd have puffed faces and baggy eyes, with sallow complexions. They are suffering hunger and incipient dropsy brought about by almost complete absence of albuminous elements and fats.

"The hospitals are overflowing with dropsy victims, mostly women, elderly men and children. Hernia is more frequent than ever as the result of weakening or from climbing steep steps.

"Patients are taken in the hospitals without a bath. If they want to be warm while in bed awaiting operation they must bring their own blankets and furs with them. Both the patients and the lower medical personnel are engaged in stealing warm coverings. The medical attendants, who are not trained to treat the sick, work because army rations are guaranteed to them. They are hungry, rough, lazy. They rob the sick, steal the property of the hospitals, steal wood to take home, and help themselves to linen nightgowns and blankets. Each physician has 150 to 200 patients. Many are ruining their health contracting diseases from the patients.

Operations in Unheated Rooms.

"In the military hospitals where there are surgical instruments operations are performed in unheated rooms. Almost all the operations result in complications such as pneumonia and ulcers. Medical supplies are very scarce. There is a scarcity of alcohol, kerosene and hot water. There are only two thermometers for 150 patients. Laundry and fumigating plants work badly, because of leaking pipes.

"The hospital food ration is one and a half pounds of black bread with a mixture of oats or millet flour or corn flour. Bread is scarcely baked. For dinner they serve soup with frozen cabbage or potatoes with herring. Food for very sick consists of beef soup made mostly of horse meat, which is indigestible and weak. The second meal consists of a limited quantity of gruel. Weak soup is the principal supper. These conditions in Petrograd hospitals and clinics are as dreadful as nightmares.

"The physicians say the scientific life of Petrograd has stopped entirely. It is impossible to obtain chemicals, medicine, medical instruments. Hungry professional staffs with broken-down nervous systems, and students running about after bread, are naturally not in position to devote their thoughts to science.

"It is impossible not to be horrified by the scene in everyday life of the unfortunate inhabitants of Petrograd. It is impossible not to be moved by their struggle with hunger, the weather and by the thousands of deaths occurring every month, which threaten the speedy dying off of the remainder of the population of this former great Russian capital."

Crown Prince Helps Farrier; Has Made First Horseshoe

Frederick William, evidently finding time heavy on his hands, has obtained a position as an assistant to a local farrier and has already made his first horseshoe.

BRUSSELS FINANCE PLAN AGREED UPON

Committees Will Report to Conference Called by League Today or Friday.

CREDIT SYSTEM REPORTED

Discussions Have Brought Both France and Germany to Take Up Indemnity Question.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—A unanimous agreement on recommendations has been reached by all four committees of the international financial conference, President Ador informed The Associated Press today, and their proposals will be presented at a full session of the conference when it reconvenes tomorrow afternoon or Friday morning. The exact time of the session has not been fixed, as the recommendations must be printed.

There was a contest in the International Trade Committee between the free traders and protectionists, but this committee is now agreed.

The secrecy concerning the committee work has not yet been set aside, but it was said in the lobbies this evening that a recommendation for a sort of international credit system without control or the League of Nations would be proposed. League control was opposed by a number of delegations as likely to amount to interference in the internal affairs of the various countries.

Consideration of plans for an international organization to facilitate credits was hampered in committee, it is understood, by objections from some of the delegates that no effective organization could be set up without the participation of the United States.

"The note of the conference should be optimistic," said President Ador. "Further adjournment was not due to any serious conflict, what has gone on in the work of the committees was exactly what was expected. Each member had his say, and afterward the effort to compromise the differences began. These now have all been reconciled and the results will be communicated to the conference tomorrow afternoon or Friday morning. The work of the drafting subcommittees is long and is not yet finished."

The chairman of the conference said that although this was only an advisory body, its decisions, as set forth in the resolution, will have a deep and far-reaching influence on the action of the states in financial and economic matters.

France Being Won Over.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—If Berlin has a sincere proposal to make about reparations, and if Berlin will make it through the right channels, Paris will be willing to listen. That is as it always has been—in fact, the treaty provides for such conversation. But since the beginning of the Brussels financial conference there has been a change of atmosphere which has made the possibility of Germany talking sincerely and France giving her a fair hearing much more probable than it has ever been since the treaty was signed. This is the spirit of the French refusal to accept Dr. Simons's proposal that Ambassador Laurent be sent to confer on the right bank of the Rhine.

France does not want a conference. What she wants is that some one will come to the Reparations Commission, and through it to the Government, with something concrete. Already such conversations may be said to have begun unofficially in the corridors of the Brussels conference and here in Paris, where Herr Bergmann, President of the German delegation at Brussels, has been for the last few days. These conversations have gone far. In fact, they may be described simply as tentative. All that is admitted is that they have to do with the resumption of commercial relations.

But two factors in the situation made clear at Brussels have produced an altered attitude in the two countries and are leading inevitably to more direct treatment of the reparations problem. The first of these was that the conference showed France that she had little or nothing to hope from America and the other allied powers in the way of help and that to get out of her present difficulties she must depend on Germany. The second was that at the same time the conference made it clear to Germany that she must pay her debt honorably or run the risk of isolation and boycott.

The two countries have therefore been forced separately and by different arguments to the conclusion that they must come together for their separate salvations.

What the proposals will be it is still too early to speculate about. They have not yet reached a definite stage and there will almost inevitably be many slips and troubles before they do. One noticeable fact, however, is that the French press has during the last few days modified somewhat the tone of opposition to the proposal with which Hugo Stinnes is said to be associated, that a part of the indemnity should be paid in work and raw material for rebuilding the devastated regions. That touches very near the question to the resumption of commercial relations which, it is admitted, is being discussed.

The important matter, however, is the change which has begun in the French attitude.

At the same time they are careful to point out that nothing that is likely to come of present and future conversations will infringe on the rôle of the Reparations Commission. The commission has the task of verifying the German power of payment and estimating the amount that must be paid. It is to that commission Germany must make all suggestions. If these suggestions are acceptable to France there is no doubt of the comm

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The reaction of railroad stocks went further yesterday under the impetus of realising sales and what looked like selling pressure for the short account. The movement was by no means uniform, however, Reading, Southern Pacific and several others being bid upward as a counter to the declining tendency elsewhere. From the action of the rails this week the deduction is permissible that professional speculators have not become committed to a program which leaves out of consideration occasional reversals of the railroad share price front, whatever may be their attitude toward the longer future of these securities. The fact is still impressive that the carriers have yet to prove their ability to accumulate profits and satisfactory surplus accounts during the period in which general business is becoming stabilized on a new basis. There are also certain financial aspects of the railroad situation as a whole which will need to be definitely outlined before the transportation situation is firmly replaced in a satisfactory position. An insight of this condition was supplied yesterday in a sudden fall of large proportions of Texas & Pacific shares. From what could be learned the decline of 12 points was primarily the product of a bear attack. But the premise upon which such selling could be predicated was the receivership of this property and its suggestion that stock assessments may be in order in the reorganization. The decline of Texas & Pacific had a very real bearing upon reactions elsewhere, but the generally firm undertone of the market in the last hour seemed to show that the rail group was well supported. Industrial stocks moved with a high degree of irregularity, some which had been heaviest last week scoring gains while others receded. Call money again lent at 7 and 8 per cent.

A bond market on the Stock Exchange which is overtaxing existing facilities tells its own story of a lively interest in practically all sorts of funded issues. Also the quick oversubscription yesterday of $25,000,000 Grand Trunk Railway twenty-year 7 per cents., following the rapid absorption of other large offerings in the last ten days, reflects a continued public demand of large calibre. Institutional buying is reported to have expanded largely since the first week of September, but the reawakened investment purchases by individuals in all sections of the country seems even more impressive than this of a movement which, if not the result, is at least the accompaniment of relaxing commodity prices and the lessening of speculation in several directions. Government war bonds gained good-sized fractions yesterday, though activity was somewhat less than the day before. Railroad bonds remained in far greater demand than industrial issues, and the broad price trend was upward.

The grain market scored a sharp advance, news from Chicago telling of heavy purchases to cover short contracts coincident with a rather marked decline of offerings. The December wheat price advanced 9¼ cents, and December corn was up about 3 cents a bushel at the close. Cotton was firm, but a single day's movement in these markets is not enough to shape judgment as to the next week or month. It would be surprising if such tremendous declines as those of the last month—wheat fell about 60 cents a bushel in this period—did not bring some compensating swings the other way.

The $9,500,000 gold which arrived from London yesterday was nearly all for the Federal Reserve Bank, representing the transfer of more of the metal held on the other side for Reserve Bank account. A little more than a week remains before the Anglo-French loan payment falls due, and to date only about $26,000,000 gold imports are directly traceable to French Government shipments. There is time of course for a round amount to come in before the due date, but the Street is wondering whether France has not provided a larger proportion of her obligation through exchange and sales of American securities here than had been expected. The foreign exchange market was irregular yesterday, the only feature being a decline of lire rates to a level close to the minimum of the year.

News of the steel trade is of a special interest this week in that it shows that price cutting is not making any great headway, one reason being that producers are well hooked up for several months. The pig iron output in September, amounting to 104,310 tons per day, according to The Iron Age, was the highest daily outturn since February, 1919, with the exception of March of this year.

Will Recommend Stock Dividend.

Directors of the Texas Company have decided to recommend to stockholders at the annual meeting on Nov. 18 the declaration of a 10 per cent. stock dividend, to be paid March 31, 1921, to stock of record Dec. 10 of this year.

$50,000,000 OFFER OF NOTES PLANNED

New York and Chicago Syndicate to Market Sears, Roebuck Issue Next Week.

OTHER FINANCING LIKELY

Two Bond Issues Totalling $65,000,000 Floated This Week — Demand Affects Stock Exchange.

It is probable that the next large new financing transaction to be announced will be that of an offering of $50,000,000 one, two and three-year notes of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. by a syndicate of New York and Chicago bankers. The notes probably will not be formally offered until next week, possibly on Wednesday, as Tuesday is a holiday, and it is understood they will bear interest on their face value at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum. The price at which they will be offered to the public, it is said, has not finally been decided, but it is believed it will not be much in excess of the coupon rate. In other words, the notes will be offered close to par.

The syndicate managers for this operation will be the Chase Securities Corporation and Goldman, Sachs & Co., and Lehman Brothers will be associated with that institution. Several Chicago banks and banking houses also are expected to participate in the syndicate. The notes, it is said, will be the ordinary short-term security, without any privilege of convertion into other securities.

Several other pieces of new financing will be announced next week, but it is not likely that any further large operations will be announced this week. The market has taken a very considerable amount thus far and bankers are inclined to favor the idea of allowing this to digest before bringing out new issues. The two largest issues this week were the $40,000,000 Swift bonds and the $25,000,000 of Canadian National Railways, both of which were well oversubscribed within a very short time. The Canadian railway bonds were offered yesterday morning at par and all were sold within a few hours.

The tremendous current demand for bonds has made itself felt on the Stock Exchange, where the so-called "bond crowd" is experiencing a most unhappy time in getting orders filled and executed. Members of the Exchange who specialise in bonds say that neither the portion of the trading floor set aside for bond dealings, nor the number of brokers there to attend to the business, is large enough to accommodate the volume of orders which is pouring in. Brokers who specialise in other departments of the market hesitate to enter the bond crowd for temporary operations for fear of losing their other connections and very few of the floor brokers care to convert themselves into bond specialists permanently because they are not sure that that particular line of endeavor will remain profitable permanently.

Southern Pacific Freight a Record.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company is handling a greater gross tonnage of freight than ever before in its history, according to statistics which have been issued by the company. In the three months ended with July, total gross tons miles were 6,058,705,000, which was an increase of 575,359,000 over the corresponding 1919 period. At the same time commercial freight loadings showed an average per car of 25.1 tons, an increase of 1.4 tons per car, as compared with May, June and July, 1919.

INVEST HEAVILY IN CANADA.

American Interests Send $200,000,000 a Year, Says Report.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—Capital from the United States is being invested in Canada at the rate of $200,000,000 annually, Government officials announced here today. The money is not only going into industry, but is also being invested in Dominion provincial and municipal bonds.

The statement said that of $275,000,000 invested in the Canadian pulp and paper industry about 80 per cent. was American and that more than $500,000,000 in Canadian loans, exclusive of war securities, were held in the United States.

Plans for growing flax in the province of Quebec for British linen interests have been made, it also was announced.

American Light Cuts Dividend.

There was a cut yesterday in the common cash dividend of the American Light & Traction Company to 1 per cent. for the quarter. The stock dividend declared on the common was 1¾ per cent., which was unchanged from the July 6 declaration. The cash declaration on the common as of that date was 1¾ per cent. The regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. was declared yesterday on the preferred. All of the disbursements are payable Nov. 1 to stockholders of record Oct. 15. Before the July 6 declarations the company had paid 2½ per cent. in cash and 2½ per cent. in stock on the common shares.

New Stocks Listed on Exchange.

The following listings were approved yesterday by the Committee on Stock List of the New York Stock Exchange: National Aniline and Chemical Company, voting trust certificates for 158,396 shares of common stock; Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, $6,000,000 ten-year 7 per cent. notes; Manhattan Electrical Supply Company, permanent certificates for 30,000 shares of capital stock to be substituted for temporary outstanding certificates, with authority to issue 40,000 shares additional; Seneca Copper Corporation, 200,000 shares of capital stock; New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad, $7,195,000 refunding and improvement mortgage 4½ per cent. bonds.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Prices Ease Off.

The decline in Texas and Pacific stock yesterday caused an unsettling of the railroad list and the shock was imparted to the industrials as well, the entire market feeling the depression. The reaction in the case of the rails was felt to the greatest extent by the lower priced issues, but considering the extent of the Texas and Pacific decline it might be said that the rail list stood up well under the situation. At any rate there was no panicky selling. Whatever it was that caused the break in Texas and Pacific is hard to gauge directly since there were all sorts of untoward stories afloat concerning the stock. Reading managed to make headway against the trend and closed the day with a gain of some 6 points. The industrial list was heavy but without any pronounced declines in the leading issues. There was, however, not much incentive in the action of the shares to induce traders to take further commitments on the long side.

No Linseed Announcement.

When the Directors of the American Linseed Company met yesterday it was expected that a statement would come forth as to the supposed pending deal whereby the company is to be purchased by British interests. The close of the meeting however disclosed that only routine business had been discussed. There seems to be much mystery surrounding the Linseed situation. Inquiry at the offices of the company does not gain either affirmation or denial of such a deal. But gossip in Wall Street is to the effect that the plan has been practically concluded and that only a favorable time is being awaited for making the announcement.

Iron and Steel Prices.

In view of the statements which are being made by the heads of steel companies there is coming to be some readjustment of opinion as to the course of steel prices. Ever since price cutting began the general sentiment has been that reductions would develop shortly. Even the trade publications were telling of recessions which had already taken place and predicting more. Now it is asserted that there does not seem to be the foundation for any radical price change before the end of the year, at least, for the reason that buying is so light as to preclude the basis for a price readjustment. In the meantime the steel companies are working on unfilled tonnage.

The Gold Influx.

Gold continues to flow in, and at the same time there are indications that the outflow either has been or is about to be interrupted. The Japanese Government, it now seems reasonably certain, is not to draw upon our gold stocks for some time to come, and it is not believed that private Japanese interests will take much, at most. Meanwhile, the flow from Europe is surprisingly good. Not the least of this is the quiet week-to-week importing movement which is being carried on by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. With the $5,000,000-odd of latest engagements, this one source now accounts for something like $45,000,000 since the first of the year and with gold expanding at the ratio of 6 to 1 to 8 to 1 to credit, this means that on this one account some $250,000,000 to $350,000,000 of new credit has been created here alone.

Liberty Bond Reductions.

More than $37,000,000 of the several classes of Liberty bonds were cancelled by the Government during September. Of this total, the Fourth Liberties were the most prominent in this reduction process, with a total of $27,171,500, against $9,398,650 for the third issue; $591,650 for the second and an increase of $1,050 in the first. Victory notes also were reduced during the month by $2,225. For the first quarter of the present fiscal year, which began on July 1, the reduction in Liberties of all issues has amounted to $42,009,750; the fourths by $28,112,700, the thirds by $12,786,750, the seconds by $1,074,650, and the firsts by $36,450.

Bonds Sold Privately.

Not all of the new financing which industrial companies and bankers are now attending to is coming on the market. There has been a number of small issues sold privately to investors, without any formal announcement whatever. And, say bankers, this is likely to continue. One railroad issue which has been widely discussed for several days, without any official statement being forthcoming, is expected to be brought out in this quiet manner. At least, some of the bankers who have been working on the proposition think it may be disposed of in this way and are of the opinion that it would be better so. The private offering of municipals and other tax-exempt bonds has reached fairly ambitious proportions, for investment securities of this description are eagerly sought by many rich investors who are important enough to warrant a little extra consideration from some of the distributing bankers.

Italian Exchange.

Italian lire broke to well under 4 cents each in yesterday's foreign exchange market. The quotation was somewhere between 3.85 and 3.90 at the low, but this was not a new low record. On April 12, with the rate quoted the old way of lire per dollar, the low record for all time was 26.65 for sight bills. This would be equivalent to about 3.75 according to the present method of quotation. So far as could be ascertained yesterday, there were no special reasons for the weakness, but in view of the alarming reports of social conditions in Italy bankers were not in the least surprised over the break.

Another Rail Rumor Denied.

Accompanying a break in the price for Texas & Pacific Railway shares on the big board yesterday rumors were circulated that plans were afoot which called for the raising of sums running all the way from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000. In authoritative quarters the rumors were discredited, however, and the break in the stock was generally attributed to the fact that the professionals picked out a vulnerable spot in the rail list for a concerted bear attack. The break in Missouri, Kansas & Texas shares served to pave the way for attacks on issues which have appreciated materially in price during the recent rail stock advance, and the action of Texas & Pacific was not as much of a surprise as it might have been. That the reorganization plan for the road was nearing completion was a fair part of the burden of the rumors, but it was asserted in authoritative quarters that such was not the case. In fact, it was said that nothing is being done regarding the plan.

Reading Crosses Southern Pacific.

Reading enthusiasts realised an ambition of several weeks yesterday, when the shares pushed through 100 and crossed Southern Pacific. The high for Reading was 100¾, while the high for Southern Pacific was 99⅝. When the former reached par, however, there seemed to be plenty of stock offering, and as the result of a fair amount of profit taking there was a recession to the closing quotation of 99⅝. The turnover was larger than usual. Southern Pacific closed at 99¼, which was fractionally lower than the last price on Tuesday.

Southern Lumber Labor Plentiful.

The lumber mills in some of the southern States are beginning to report that labor conditions have materially improved, that the supply of labor is greater and that labor costs are less than they were some months ago. In this connection a representative of several southern mills, who is visiting New York, said yesterday that the offers little true comparison with labor conditions in other lines of industry for the reason that only a small part of the southern lumber labor is organized.

Owners of sound bonds bought at a high level should increase their holdings at present low prices. Thus the average cost will be reduced and the yield increased.

Upon request we shall be glad to send a list of diversified offerings which we recommend for investment yielding from

Speculating in Safe Bonds

It is worthy of note that during the past few weeks many of the most experienced investors have been buying underlying mortgage bonds of railroads and industrial corporations for two reasons: First, because of the very high yield they will receive over a long period of years; second, because of their conviction that as money rates return to normal, bond prices will improve.

CUT BY REVERE REFINERY

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The Revere Sugar Refinery today announced a price of 11¾ cents a pound for refined sugar. This price will be reduced 2 per cent. for payment within a week of purchase. Two weeks ago the company quoted a nominal price of 22½ cents a pound, with the statement that it was "out of the market," but since that time it has made several reductions.

W. E. Foster, Vice President of the American Sugar Refining Company in a statement to Attorney General Allen today in relation to the latter's inquiry into the sugar situation, said the company would require wholesalers to live up to their contracts for sugar at 22½ cents a pound, notwithstanding recent declines. The company would not be justified in using its surplus of $23,000,000 to offset losses of customers, he said, adding that if such a policy were seriously undertaken by the management any stockholder would have a right to enjoin the proceedings.

"Is it not a fact that pressure was brought to bear on jobbers to contract for sugar at 22½ cents a pound?" Attorney General Allen asked. Mr. Foster replied that dealers demanded sugar and that there was a feeling that there would be a shortage in the Fall.

The American company made an average profit of only 2¾ cents a pound on all sugars sold up to September, the witness said. It was now "out of the market," selling only on contracts previously made.

Mr. Foster set at "slightly over $11,000,000" the operating profits made by the American company in the first eight months of the year. Attorney General Allen then sought to obtain from the witness a statement as to the extent to which this profit would be impaired if the company reduced its price on the 40,000 tons of sugar which Mr. Foster said it had on hand.

Mr. Foster estimated that if the company reduced its price on the undelivered sugar to meet present market conditions it would lose $10,000,000.

"Well," Attorney General Allen asked, "if you took a loss of 5 cents a pound you would lose only $4,500,000, wouldn't you?

"So it appears," the witness replied.

"Then with a profit for eight months of $11,000,000, a possible loss of $4,500,000 to meet the market conditions would still leave the company a net profit for the year of $6,500,000, would it not?" pursued the Attorney General.

Mr. Foster admitted it would. He stated that the total stock of sugar which the company has on hand was 118,000 barrels, and its undelivered outstanding contracts called for 131,000 barrels.

The amount of refined sugar on hand in the Port of Boston represented the full storage capacity of its local plant, between 15,000 and 17,000 tons, he said. Mr. Foster, in a prepared statement, said:

"Notwithstanding the severe decline in the price of sugar, less than 5 per cent. of our trade in the New England territory has requested cancellation of contracts. Many have, however, asked for postponement of delivery. The attitude of the company is now, and has been, that our company will assist its customers who ask for extension of time in which to receive shipments or to make payments. On its part it has outstanding contracts for raw sugars, entered into months ago at higher prices than those at which refined sugar can now be purchased at retail. These it must meet, and as a matter of fact the refined sugar which the company has delivered to its New England trade was manufactured from raw sugar which cost the company as high as 23.62 cents per pound, landed in Boston.

"Our company has not this year made an abnormal sum of money from its operations in New England or elsewhere. For the first eight months of this year the average cost of our raw sugars refined in Boston was 15⅝ cents per pound. The average price of our refined sugar delivered to the trade was 17⅜ cents per pound. The difference is only 2 cents.

"Out of this margin must come not only any profit, but the entire cost of refining and distributing, and the loss incident to making refined sugar out of raw."

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Local sugar refineries announced today another drop in the local price of refined cane sugar to the jobber of 50 cents a hundred pounds, following a fall of $1.50 yesterday. Beet sugar was reduced in proportion, making today's prices $12 for cane and $11.80 for beet.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 6.—Reduction of the wholesale price of beet sugar by 50 cents per hundred pounds, effective tomorrow, was announced today by the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company of Salt Lake City. This will bring the Utah price to $12.82 and the San Francisco seaboard price to $13.02.

MILLER RAPS CITY FINANCE.

Before ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for Governor, went to the world series baseball game at Ebbets Field yesterday he was the guest of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce at luncheon.

In a brief address after the luncheon, he scored New York City's present financial system, and declared that it was handicapped in its efforts to develop the port and other necessary improvements because of the burden of the non-supporting bonds for revenue-producing improvements, such as the subways.

The proposal to build a canal from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic by way of the St. Lawrence River, as favored in the Democratic national platform, was also criticised by Judge Miller. Senator William M. Calder presided.

WILL CONFER ON ADRIATIC.

Italians and Jugoslavs Agree on Venice as the Place of Meeting.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Delegates representing Italy and Jugoslavia will meet at Venice to discuss the pending Adriatic question at a time not yet announced, according to information reaching the French Foreign Office today. Italy proposed the holding of the conference at Venice, and the Belgrade Government, the advices state, has accepted the Italian city as the seat of the conference.

Diplomatic advices from Belgrade received in Washington Oct. 2 announced that a second conference between Italian and Jugoslav representatives to discuss the Adriatic settlement had been arranged. The last conference took place several weeks ago at Pallanza, Italy.

Adelphia Co. Pleads Not Guilty.

The Adelphia Coal Company, under indictment with the Brooklyn Edison Company on a charge of profiteering in coal, pleaded not guilty before Federal Judge Mayer yesterday. A week was allowed in which the defendant may change the plea. George Gordon Battle is counsel for the company.

CAN'T DELIVER DRY DOCK.

German Shipyard Notifies Argentina It Lacks Towing Facilities.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6.—The Government was notified today by a German shipyard concern at Emden, which prior to the war undertook the construction of a 40,000-ton floating dry dock for Argentina at a cost of $300,000 that the dock was completed, but the shipyard was unable to fulfill its contract to tow it to Buenos Aires because of the lack of shipping facilities.

Unless the Argentine Government is willing to provide towage, the shipyard says, it will be obliged to retain the dock and refund half the cost, which Argentina paid on account.

Semi-Speculative Railroad Bonds Inviting

WITH the clarifying of the railroad situation, the prices of many non-dividend paying stocks have recently advanced 100% over their low figures for the year. The prices of the underlying bonds of these roads have not as yet advanced proportionately. There are many inviting possibilities open to those who buy these bonds now.

Send for letter T-48, which gives a list of such bonds, their records in former years, together with current quotations and yields.

STEEL CONSUMERS IN WAITING MOOD

Market Conditions Contradictory in Showing Both Weakness and Strength.

FIRM UNDERLYING BASIS

The fundamental soundness of iron and steel conditions as emphasized by the leading producers has created a more cheerful feeling in those quarters where an advance in prices by the leading interest would be regarded as an important factor toward the restoration of confidence, according to The Iron Trade Review in its weekly survey of conditions. In discussing the situation this publication says in part:

"Market conditions in iron and steel are contradictory in their evidence of both weakness and strength, which varies with the character of the material and the producers. Some lines show great firmness. Others have been softened further under a situation where order books are shrinking and buyers are refusing persistently to be attracted. Some further narrowing of the wide gap that has separated the price schedules of the Steel Corporation and the independent mills apparently has made consumers more determined than ever to play a waiting hand. This is especially true since much of the pressure for prompt delivery of materials has gone out of the market and more and more new requirements are being determined on the basis of competitive steel costs.

"The fundamental soundness of iron and steel conditions, emphasized by leading producers, has created a more cheerful feeling in those quarters where any advance in prices by the leading interest would be regarded as an important factor toward the restoration of confidence.

"The falling off in buying of iron and steel is more pronounced and thus the week's developments in prices have been meager. The hesitation and uncertainty that have marked the motor car industry are now appearing in some degree in the agricultural implement trade, which only recently was said to be taking up enough steel to balance what automobile makers were cancelling. Some implement steel has been held up and tractor companies in particular have been halted by the Ford announcement. All steel companies made much more steel than they booked in September and nearly all shipped more than they produced. Yet the leading independent makers have business that will carry them through the year and are not reducing prices, since that would mark down much that is on their books. The real test of the market is looked for at the turn of the year.

UTILITIES NEXT

Public confidence in well secured railroad bonds has been very largely re-established by the publicity given to rate increases.

We believe that the growing appreciation of the trend toward Utility rate increases will have the same effect upon well secured Utility issues.

We suggest for investment a high grade Public Utility Bond with the following features:

1. Secured by First Mortgage.
2. Runs 29 years.
3. Nets about 7½%.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON SHORT COVERING

News Is All Bearish, but Market at Peak Is Up 60 to 110 Points.

SPOTS ADVANCE TO 25.25c

Slight Losses at Liverpool, While Spots Drop There to New Low.

Apparently the short interest in the cotton market has been more extensive than most people imagined, for yesterday the list looked as thoroughly sold out as it had been on the day before, when substantial recoveries in prices were scored in the face of most bearish news. Yesterday's market was of precisely the same sort. All the news there was—and there was not a great deal—was bearish, yet the market advanced materially, going up 95 points for October and 110 for December, at the day's highest, and 60 to 75 points for the others. At the close a good part of these advances were maintained.

Short covering seemed to be the explanation for the movement. Wall Street, local commission houses and the ring all bought heavily and as these several interests had been figuring conspicuously in the very aggressive selling of last week it may be safe to assume they were covering up yesterday, as they undoubtedly were the day before.

Weather and trade reports were distinctly bearish. The weather over almost the entire belt was very good and there was no threat of a repetition of last week's frost scare, except in the most northerly part o the eastern end of the belt. As for the trade reports, they were as unsatisfactory as ever.

Spots here were quiet, but the quotation was advanced a cent a pound to the basis of 25¼ cents for middling. In the South the spot markets were steadier and reports from there were more reassuring than they had been for the past ten days.

Liverpool was quiet and slightly lower than due. Spots there were down 43 English points to 17.80d., a new low for the year.

Liverpool cables—Spot cotton was dull at 17.80d for middling; sales, 3,000 bales, of which 2,000 were American; imports, 2,000 bales; future opened quiet, 20 to 26 points down, and closed quiet, 2 to 35 points down on the day. Prices—October, 18.12d; December, 16.85d; March, 16.02d; May, 15.84d. Manchester—Yarns and cloths were dull.

WHEAT ADVANCES STRONG.

Possible Embargo on Canadian Imports and Huge Selling Cause Increase.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Violent upturns in the price of wheat today accompanied discussion regarding possibility of an embargo on imports from Canada. The market closed strong 5¢ to 10¾ cents net higher, with December 1.90¼ to 1.99¾ and March 1.87¾ to 1.97¾. Corn gained 2¾ to 3½ cents and oats 1½ to 1¾ cents. In provisions, the outcome varied from 40 cents decline to 40 cents advance.

Buying on a huge scale made the wheat market jump as soon as trading began. Most of the purchasing was ascribed to shorts. A big New York cotton trader in particular. Notable reaction took place at every lull in the bidding, but the setbacks as a rule were brief, and the finish was near the topmost point reached, although an embargo against Canadian shipments could only be imposed by the President or by Congressional action. At present, owing to the Underwood Tariff law of 1913, no duty is collected on Canadian-grown wheat brought into the United States. Some at least of the selling on today's advance was from Winnipeg houses that were placing hedges on Canadian wheat.

OCTOBER INVESTMENT SUGGESTIONS is especially interesting because it is the third of a series of monthly suggestions which has proved of practical value and resulted in substantial profits to our clients.
Facts and figures about five prominent dividend paying securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange—a rail—a copper—a tobacco—a motor and an equipment stock. All selling at unusually attractive figures and showing a high investment return.
If you are looking for a clear resume of the present market situation, which points out very definitely the profit-making opportunities of today,

PRICE GUARANTEE CALLED NECESSARY

Manufacturers Insist Practice Has Forced Lowering of Cost to Consumers.

COMMISSION ENDS HEARING

Federal Trade Board Asked to Decide Complaints on Merits of Individual Cases.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The manufacturers' guarantee against price decline was characterized as a good form of "insurance" by representatives of business interests who appeared today at the Federal Trade Commission hearing. They urged the commission to follow a "hands-off" policy and decided complaints against the systems on the merits of individual cases.

The commission ended its public investigation, although briefs may be filed during the next thirty days.

Proponents of the guarantee practice denied that it aided in maintaining high prices. On the contrary, they declared it had resulted in an immediate passing on of price reductions by manufacturers to consumers. As the manufacturer assumed the risk of losses, the dealer was forced, through competition, to sell at his lowest figure, the speakers argued.

W. T. Nardin of St. Louis asserted that the evaporated milk industry, which he represented, could not avoid the practice and that sales could not be carried on effectively, because of the nature of the product, without giving the dealers such protection. He challenged the statement that few guarantors ever had paid or had been called on to pay refunds through price reduction, citing cases where refunds had run into "thousands," "and even tens of thousands of dollars in a single year."

Mr. Nardin contended that had the guarantee not been in operation many commodities might have followed sugar in its price collapse and brought "scores of substantial businesses" to the verge of bankruptcy. He believed the guarantee would have prevented sugar prices from reaching the "peak" to which they soared and would have prevented a tumbling which "certainly must send a lot of people to the wall."

"Some" speakers said yesterday that everybody ought to take his own risk," Mr. Nardin continued. "They said each dealer should accept his own responsibility. I object to that as being fundamentally wrong. Even when the title has passed, I contend that the manufacturer still has an interest in his goods and ought, if he is financially able, still to assume the burden."

The rubber industry was declared by M. E. Clark as being unable to operate effectively without the guarantee. He said that fifty-five out of sixty-nine of the principal tire and rubber manufacturing concerns employed it because of the seasonal demand for their products. Dealers would not accept the risk, he said, unless they had assurance that prices would remain at or above the level at which the purchase was made.

He asserted that practically all manufacturers of motor tires had been compelled to make refunds to their dealers, under the guarantee contracts when the slump in the market came last year. As a result of the guarantee, Mr. Clark believed, the consumer had obtained the benefits of lower prices much sooner than if the dealers had been loaded up with high priced stocks on which they must carry the loss alone.

G. Carroll Todd, speaking for a large syrup refining corporation, argued that operation of the guarantee resulted in a more economical manufacture of all commodities and said that it meant a steady flow of products, steady employment for labor and a consistent operation of plants. This condition, he added, resulted in a generally lower level of prices on the given article.

Speakers opposing the practice told the commission that there was no way to avoid the menace of overstocking by dealers who were certain of sustaining no loss under the guarantee.

Mr. Clark's statements were challenged by other speakers who maintained that had not the guarantee been in effect dealers would not have overloaded.

CALLS JUDGE WEEKS BIASED

Isaac E. Ferguson, an attorney of Chicago, and Charles E. Ruthenberg, of Cleveland, indicted with James Larkin and others in November, 1919, for criminal anarchy, were put on trial yesterday before Justice Weeks in connection with the publication of the Communist Manifesto. More than twenty-five were originally on the list and six were convicted.

Ferguson, who will defend himself and act as attorney for Ruthenberg, read an affidavit when his motion to dismiss was denied, in which he cited "bias and prejudice" shown by the court in the trials of ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow and Harry Winitsky, and because of this, he asserted, Justice Weeks should not preside at the present trials. Ferguson contended that the court had arbitrarily prevented Gitlow from making a summary to the jury of the doctrine contained in the writing upon which the indictment was based.

Justice Weeks rejected the plea and the work of getting a jury will continue today.

Chamber of Commerce to Meet.

The first regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York will be held today. Action will be taken in memory of Jacob H. Schiff and Frank Trumbull, who were Vice Presidents of the Chamber, and a number of reports will be presented by different committees.

FAILURES SHOW INCREASE.

September Liabilities Are More Than Double Those of August.

An increase in failures during September is reported by Bradstreet's, the move along this line having been in evidence since July of last year, when failures touched their low point. The September failures show a heavy increase in liabilities as compared with August, being two and one-half times greater, and twice those of June. Bradstreet's says:

"There were 661 failures recorded in September, which marks an increase of only twenty-five, or 3.9 per cent., over August, but of 238, or 56.2 per cent., over the total in September a year ago, while as compared with September, 1918, the increase is only four failures, or less than 1 per cent. September failures, in fact, are the most numerous reported since October, 1918, but are, after all, trifling in number when compared with such years of stress as 1914 to 1917, and far [illegible] years back to early 1907 or 1906, when failures were down to a minimum. Liabilities for September of $70,503,696 were unquestionably very heavy, being two and a half times those of August, as above stated, and, in fact, were only twice exceeded in past months back to 1892, those months being October, 1907, and July, 1893.

"Troubles among the trust companies of Boston stand out as conspicuous contributors to the volume of liabilities, nearly three-fifths of all the month's liabilities, in fact, being due to this cause. Here it might be noted that these trust company suspensions are, for statistical purposes, classed here as failures. The wearing apparel trades —woolens, silks, furs and cottons—have also contributed heavily to the liabilities, as have importers and exporters and sugar and other brokers, mostly at New York, and manufacturers of machinery specialties. In all, some thirty-five suspensions account for over $50,000,000 of the $70,000,000 of liabilities in that month."

Second Jewish Relief Unit to Sail.

A second American Jewish Relief Unit has been recruited for service in Poland under the direction of the Joint Distribution Committee, it was announced yesterday. The second unit, seventeen strong, will sail on Saturday on the Lapland and will act as a replacement unit to fill vacancies caused by the murder of Professor Israel Friedlaender and Dr. Bernard Cantor, who were killed in the Ukraine in January, and the return of some members and the transfer of others to special relief work in Latvia, Lithuania and Constantinople.

Authorize Rock Island Bond Issue.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company to issue general mortgage gold bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 as of Jan. 1, 1898, to be pledged as security for first and refunding mortgage gold bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 as of April 1, 1904, payable April 1, 1934.

SEEK TO FIX LOW PRICES.

All Classes in Salamanca Unite to Reduce Living Costs.

SALAMANCA, Spain, Oct. 6.—The local Chamber of Commerce has initiated a collective movement to reduce the cost of articles of necessity, by holding a meeting of representatives of industrial and commercial organizations, proprietors of land and houses and workingmen to discuss methods for bettering living conditions.

The gathering decided that the most practicable method of action was to fix prices of foodstuffs and other essentials as low as possible instead of continually raising wages to meet their cost. A joint committee on which all classes were represented was selected. It will inquire into production and selling costs with the purpose of fixing selling prices so as to allow a fair profit to dealers.

Seeks to Stop Deportation of Russian

A writ of habeas corpus has been asked by Miss Rose Weiss, of the law office of Charles Recht of 110 West Fortieth Street, in an effort to stay the deportation of Ephim Kerts, a Russian, who was taken to Boston with other alleged radicals a few days ago. The American Defense Society announced yesterday that it had sent to Acting Secretary of Labor Post a protest against the alleged barring of Ellis Island of Americanization work by the American Legion.

Notice of reception of bids for removal and disposition of garbage and dead animals for the City of Atlantic City, N. J.

At a meeting of the City Commission, to be held on the 29th day of October, 1920, at 3:00 P. M., in the Commission Chamber, City Hall, Atlantic City, N. J., bids will be received and opened for the collection and disposal of garbage and dead animals, for said city, in accordance with the proposal, specifications and proposed contract (copies of which are on file at the office of the Mayor and can be had on application therefor).

Bidders may bid for the removal and disposition of the garbage and dead animals aforesaid for a period of one, three or five years, respectively, in one bid, or they may bid separately for each or any of the periods above designated.

Bids must be in sealed envelopes, accompanied by a certified check in the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000), drawn to the order of the City of Atlantic City, said checks not to be enclosed in said envelopes, but be attached to the outside thereof.

The checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the contract to the successful bidder.

Should the successful bidder refuse or neglect for a period of ten days after the contract has been awarded to execute and deliver same to the City, he shall be adjudged in default, and the amount of the deposit made by him shall be forfeited and retained by the City of Atlantic City as liquidating damages for such neglect or refusal, but should said successful bidder enter into said contract within the period aforesaid, said deposit check shall be immediately returned.

Should the successful bidder refuse to enter into contract as above provided for the period of ten days, the checks of the unsuccessful bidders will thereupon be returned.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids, without giving any reason therefor.

All bids must be accompanied by letter of a surety company, authorized to do business in this State, agreeing in writing to become surety for the successful bidder on the bond provided for in the contract and specifications, in full accord with the terms thereof, said bond to be in the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000).

All bids must be accompanied with detailed statement of the bidder, showing ability to properly carry out the contract, including the place of disposal and system to be used.

Bidders are cautioned to follow strictly the forms and conditions imposed by the proposals, specifications, etc., and will be held to conform thereto, notwithstanding anything herein contained.

EDWARD S. BADER,
Mayor.

OLYMPIC BRINGS NOTABLES AND GOLD

$10,000,000 IN BULLION, TOO

Mrs. Marshall Field Pays Nearly $3,000 in Duty—Passengers Total 2,445.

The White Star liner Olympic arrived yesterday morning from Southampton, via Cherbourg, making the trip of 2,930 miles in 6 days, 2 hours and 42 minutes at an average speed of twenty knots. Commodore Sir Bertram F. Hayes, D. S. O., R. N. R., said that the fog off the Banks and the westerly gales had delayed the ship from arriving on Tuesday evening.

The list of 706 passengers in the first cabin contained a number of notable American business men returning from their annual visit to Europe. Those who had been taking the cure at Carlsbad said the hotels were crowded with profiteers who have made millions in the year in Germany and Austria and were trying to get rid of the money as quickly as possible because they were afraid it might be taken from them.

The Olympic brought $10,000,000 in gold bullion, which was consigned partly to the Federal Reserve Bank and the remainder to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Thomas Fortune Ryan looked much benefited by his trip, and returned impressed with the idea that America should let Europe alone to work out her own problems. He and Mrs. Ryan, who accompanied him, were entertained by the King and Queen of Belgium at Brussels.

When asked about the proposed deal with the French Government for the tobacco monopoly in France Mr. Ryan smiled and replied: "I have nothing to say."

Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, returned on the Olympic with Mrs. Sabin from a two months' trip to Europe, where he inspected the new offices opened in Brussels and London, and said they were doing very well indeed. Mr. Sabin continued:

"I am still an optimist on conditions in Europe. Things have looked serious recently in Italy, but will improve from now on, in my opinion. The radical elements among the workmen have listened to the wiser counsels of their more conservative comrades and there will be no more serious labor strikes there, I am sure."

"What do you think of the exchange problem," he was asked.

"There is little likelihood of it improving on the Continent until the question of the indemnities to be paid has been settled. In England financial conditions are better and the pound may go up to $4 by the end of the year. The Belgians are working hard and exporting goods to various countries, and France is working too, but she is hampered like Italy by the coal question."

James Speyer, head of the banking firm of James Speyer & Co., returned with his wife from a trip to Germany and Austria as well as France and England. Mr. Speyer was pessimistic in regard to conditions in Germany and said the country was suffering from a lack of raw materials and that the workmen were so under-nourished that they were not fit to do their prewar tasks in the factories.

Another banker on the ship was Charles Steele of J. P. Morgan & Co., who said he had been away two months and was in Scotland shooting grouse and partridge when the Wall Street explosion occurred. He was grieved, he said, to hear of the tragic death of William Joyce, chief of the stock department.

Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, now on the reserve list of officers of the United States Army, was another passenger. He said he had been away since last May, and that Mrs. Vanderbilt and her daughter would return to America shortly. He found considerable improvement in England and France since his visit there last year, he said.

Customs receipts for duty were high on account of the number of wealthy Americans who returned on the liner. Mrs. Marshall Field paid nearly $3,000 in duty and Mrs. Speyer paid nearly the same amount.

In addition to the 706 first cabin the Olympic brought 542 second and 1,195 steerage passengers, making a total of 2,445 passengers.

ALYS DELYSIA ARRIVES IN RED LEATHER SUIT

French Actress Also Wears a Diamond Anklet—Robert Loraine and Elman on Olympic.

Alys Delysia, the French musical comedy actress, who has been appearing in London for the last six years in revues, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic to play the leading rôle in "Afgar," in which she starred recently at the London Pavilion. The play will be produced by Morris Gest at the Central Theatre on Nov. 8.

Miss Delysia, who is an attractive blonde, speaks English fluently and has considerable personal magnetism, wore a brilliant red leather tailor-made suit, with hat to match, and a diamond anklet, which attracted the interest of the photographers and the moving-picture men for whom she posed on the promenade deck.

Miss Delysia said that she had been so excited over seeing New York for the first time that she had not slept scarcely for the last three nights, although the ship was like a hotel in its steadiness. "I have met so many Americans in Paris and London," she continued, "and I hope that I shall make a success in their country."

She took part in the concert in the salon on Tuesday night with Lupino Lane, the English comedian, who is to play with her in "Afgar," and Mischa Elman, which realized $2,250 for the Seamen's Widows and Orphans Fund.

Before "Afgar" Miss Delysia played nearly two years in London in "As You Were," which was produced last season in New York, with Sam Bernard and Irene Bordoni. W. H. Rawlins, another member of the "Afgar" cast, came on the Olympic. Charles B. Cochran, who was a passenger, said that he intended returning to London after "Afgar" was produced by Mr. Gest. He said his best success in London this season was the revue, "London, Paris and New York" at the Pavilion Theatre.

Colonel Robert Loraine, the English actor-manager, arrived yesterday on the Olympic on his way around the world for a vacation. After spending a few days in New York Mr. Loraine will leave for the Pacific Coast to take a steamer for the Far East and expects to reach London via India early next spring.

Otto Well, assistant manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, returned yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic after spending the Summer in Italy and visiting France and Austria. He spent several days at Carlsbad and said there was more gambling going on there now than in Monte Carlo. The players carried the Austrian kronen in valises to the casino and one man who lost a million kronen in this paper money regarded it as if the sum was $1.65.

Mr. Well added that Austria was in very bad shape, as the people had little to eat. It was wonderful to see the Viennese going to the opera in crowds without dinner and living on music practically.

Ricardo Martin, the American operatic tenor, returned yesterday from London, where he has been singing in Covent Garden Opera House, on his way to Chicago to join the Chicago Grand Opera Company, which goes on tour on Oct. 15.

BIG DEAL PENDING.

Negotiations are pending for either the sale or lease of the eight-story Clark Building at 1 Park Row, owned by the Joseph Pulitzer estate, which acquired the realty in 1902.

Assessed at $250,000, the structure covers a triangular plot having a frontage of 40.9 feet on Park Row, 62.7 feet on Ann Street, and a rear line of 52.3 feet. On the opposite corner is the St. Paul Building.

The two-family house at 2,784 Marion Avenue has been sold for Annie Miller through Kilpatrick & White.

Brooklyn.

The Clinton Trading Corporation sold to Herman Hänemann the two-story and basement frame dwelling at 110 Vanderveer Street. F. Barshad was the broker in the transaction.

In the Bay Ridge section Frank H. Malone sold the apartment house at 329 Sixty-eighth Street for James C. Francesconi to a client for investment.

Baptists Buy $250,000 Estate.

The David S. Walton Estate, consisting of a large stone residence and about five acres at 64 South Munn Avenue, East Orange, N. J., has been purchased by the American Baptist Home Mission Society for use as a seminary for the training of foreign speaking Baptist missionaries. The price was about $250,000. The society will consolidate its schools of this nature in Cleveland and New York and will endeavor to raise $1,000,000 to finance the undertaking. The Kraemer Real Estate Agency arranged the deal.

Suburban Sales.

Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., in conjunction with Mrs. R. W. Fuller, sold the C. W. Waller Estate at Greens Farms, Conn., to R. H. Stranahan of Pittsburgh, Pa. The property consists of 33 acres with house and outbuildings. It has been held at $100,000.

The dairy farm belonging to Watson D. Robinson situated at Holmes, Putnam County, has been sold to Sam Zeona of New York City. The property contains 300 acres of land, a modern farm house and several modern farm buildings. George Howe was the broker.

Queens Borough Transactions.

The Lewis H. May Company sold for the S. & L. Construction Company 312 Dickerson Avenue, Edgemere, a two-and-a-half-story stucco dwelling, on a plot 50 by 100, to Max Beckerman for occupancy.

The property located at 181 Chestnut Street, owned and occupied by Alfred Patton, has been sold by J. Albert Johnston to Jennie Walsh for occupancy.

W. P. Jones sold for Isabella Paynter to Charles Koch the three lots, each 25 by 100, on the south side of Clinton Avenue, 250 feet east of Rosedale Avenue, Rosedale.

Westchester.

H. W. Sullivan sold for William Hastroff to a client the residence 146 Alta Avenue, Park Hill, Yonkers, on a plot 60 by 125, the property being held at $27,000; and for Marcel Schmitt to a client her residence 35 Caryl Avenue, Yonkers, on a plot 100 by 125. The property sold for $16,000.

Olcott & Egger sold for John W. Kennedy his residence at Larchmont Gardens overlooking the lake to Mrs. William J. Freeman of Los Angeles.

Jackson Buys Hotel Fenton.

The Hotel Fenton, a six-story apartment hotel at 35 and 37 East Twenty-seventh Street, opposite Madison Square Garden, has been purchased by Daniel H. Jackson from the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark as Trustee for the Anna T. E. Kirtland estate. It occupies a plot 50 by 113 and was held at $300,000. E. H. Ludlow & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

Columbia Trustees Sell.

Dwight, Archibald & Perry sold for the Trustees of Columbia University the two four-story buildings at 91 and 93 Ninth Avenue, on plot 40.2 by 100, adjoining the northwest corner of Sixteenth Street. The purchaser contemplates extensive alterations and will use it for business.

Apartments Altered Into Offices.

The five-story building with stores, apartments above, at 1,631 and 1,633 Broadway, will be altered at a cost of $50,000, by having the apartments on the upper four floors converted into offices. The Girard Trust Company is the owner. Louis E. Dell is the architect.

Church Street Business Deal.

William C. Walker's Sons have sold for the New York Improved Real Estate Company to the Barron Realty Company the five-story commercial building at 320-322 Church Street, southwest corner of Lispenard Street, fronting 48 feet on Church Street and 75 feet on Lispenard Street.

KILLS GIRL, SHOOTS SELF.

Tragedy Ends Youth's Plea for Reinstatement by Sweetheart.

Harry Gleason, 21 years old, a boilermaker, living at 124 Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, went last night to the home of Elsie Dahl, 19 years old, at 19 Hamilton Avenue, who had discarded him, and pleaded to be reinstated in her affections.

Two sisters of the girl, who were upstairs, heard the voices of the two for a time and then suddenly five revolver shots. When they ran downstairs the girl was dying of three wounds in the body and the boilermaker lay beside her with two wounds in the head. She died later in the Holy Family Hospital. Gleason was removed to the Long Island Hospital, apparently in a dying condition.

PRIVATE HOUSES IN STEADY DEMAND

PARK ROW DEAL PENDING

Both the East and West Side Residential Sections Furnish Several Good Sales.

With a deal pending for the office building at 1 Park Row, the purchase of the Fenton Apartment Hotel, opposite Madison Square Garden, and a continued strong demand for private dwellings, there was considerable activity in the realty market yesterday. The large buying of private houses which has been noticeable for several days shows the trend toward the ownership of one's home, a direct result of the serious housing situation.

Both the east and west side residential sections furnished a number of these sales. At 123 East Seventy-eighth Street Pease & Elliman sold a three-story dwelling, fronting 19 feet, for S. P. Cahill to a client for occupancy. Dr. Antonio M. Crispin, the tenant of the four-story house at 15 East Ninety-fourth Street, on a plot 21.11 by 100.3, purchased the property from Charles L. Hirsch and others, the consideration being about $64,000.

The Cruikshank Company sold for Thomas B. Gilford and others the four-story dwelling at 131 East Forty-sixth Street, on a lot 20 by 98.9. The purchaser will occupy the property.

Nail & Parker sold for the Donald Holding Company to a client for occupancy 152 West 132d Street, a three-story brownstone dwelling, on a lot 14.8 by 99.11.

John R. Davidson sold for a client of McDowell & Byrnes 528 West 149th Street, a three-story private dwelling, on a plot 15 by 100, to a Mrs. Bonner.

L. J. Phillips & Co. sold for E. Pfarrus the four-story and basement dwelling at 57 West Seventieth Street, on a lot 20 by 100, between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue. The new owner will occupy after alterations have been made.

Alice L. Smoot bought from the Billings Estate Corporation the four-story and basement dwelling at 106 West Seventy-eighth Street, on a lot 23.9 by 100, adjoining the southwest corner of Columbus Avenue. Mrs. Smoot recently acquired No. 108, adjoining.

The United States Trust Company, as trustee, sold for $8,750 to Hartsell W. Carter the three-story dwelling at 66 West 131st Street, 16 by 100.

Annie P. Henry has transferred to Elisabeth H. Redfield the four-story dwelling at 47 East Forty-ninth Street, 21 by 100.5.

Goodwin & Goodwin sold for Geisler & Krakow to Charles Nichols the three-story and basement dwelling at 157 West 131st Street, 16 by 100.11. The same brokers recently sold No. 106 to B. Kohosoff.

An Honest Bargain—20% Cut

SUBURBAN BUILDER: Will sell at a sacrifice a small Colonial home, with garage, of unusual charm, designed to be finished in the quaint style of bygone days. I need cash and have too much construction on my hands. The decorations are still to be put in. I will install them according to the desires of a purchaser. The house has eight large, light rooms and a fine, big, completely appointed tiled bathroom. The plot is 100x190 feet, with several oak trees, one foot thick, as shade. Only 5 minutes' walk to trolley, in a beautiful old residential section. 300 feet elevation. Water rights afford fine boating, sailing, fishing, skating. Splendid commuting service to New York City, express station. $5,600 cash takes it. 1st mortgage $5,000. It was cheap at the regular price of $13,250. For complete details apply BUILDER, Post Office Box 748, City Hall Station, New York City.

A TWO YEAR OLD HOUSE FOR SALE NOW

AT A PRICE WHICH WAS REASONABLE 2 YRS AGO

We are purchasing a larger house in our immediate vicinity. We are not in the real estate business and are not looking for profit. We want to transfer our investment to a larger property already selected. The house has 8 fine rooms and tiled bath. Garage also included. Plot 150 ft. x 150 ft. Rooms decorated under the personal supervision of celebrated artist. Property situated in aristocratic suburban community very conveniently located as to N. Y. City. Can easily be cared for without the aid of servants. Total price, $14,500. Title and immediate occupancy can be had on payment of $4,500 cash. Communicate with GEO. C. BLACKWELL, 170 Broadway, N. Y. Instruction.

PUT YOURSELF IN A BIGGER JOB.
THE OPPORTUNITY IS HERE FOR EXECUTIVE PUBLIC (A. U. P. A.) AND INDUSTRIAL COST ACCOUNTANTS.
Haphazard methods must give way to exactness, efficiency and the skilled handling of problems, both old and new.
This means a great demand for the man or woman trained in modern accountancy, the one who is a keen analyst—who can map out the conditions of businesses—think—plan. Those who qualify can earn from $1,800 TO $10,000 A YEAR.
A short period of training has often proved sufficient to increase individual incomes 100 to 300 per cent.
Our method is the "Problem Method" of individual instruction. The student works with problems taken from actual business, under the direct supervision of accounting and business experts, including Certified Public Accountants and members of the American Institute of Accountants, and is thoroughly trained in the special knowledge and practical procedure necessary to qualify for important accounting work.

Will for Probate.

BRADY, PHILIP (Sept. 21). The family residence, 264 East 70th St., is left to his widow, Maria B., and one-quarter of the residue. To the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, 150 West 71st St., $1,000 is left for masses. One-quarter of the residue goes to a son, Vincent; another to a daughter, Alice L. Brady, both of whom live with their mother. The remaining quarter is left in trust to a daughter, Mrs. Vera Sherry of Larchmont Manor, the income to be paid to her until she is 42, when the principal is to be paid over to her.

STERZELBACH, MINNIE (Sept. 8). The will leaves $1,000 each to the Jewish Hospital St. Mark's Av., Brooklyn, and the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Ralph Av.; and $500 each to the Sanitarium for Hebrew Children, Rockaway Park, and the Montefiore Home, Gun Hill Road, in the Bronx, and $300 to the Temple Bethel Home, Keap St., Brooklyn. The residue goes to a brother, Abrahem Sterzelbach of 286 Garfield Place, Brooklyn.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Pressure was low and falling Wednesday throughout the Northwest, and high over the Southern States and the upper Mississippi Valley eastward. There were local rains in South and Central Florida, and general rains in the Pacific States from Central California northward.

Elsewhere throughout the country the weather was fair. The temperature was somewhat lower Wednesday in the Virginias and the Carolinas, and readings continued below normal in all eastern and southern sections.

The weather was abnormally warm in the Northwestern States, Bismarck, N. D., reporting a maximum of 92 degrees, which is the highest on record for October, cooler weather overspreading the Pacific States, except Southern California.

The weather will continue fair Thursday and Friday in the States east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will rise gradually, except in the extreme South.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Northern New England—Fair Thursday and Friday; warmer Friday, and in Vermont Thursday.

Southern New England, Eastern New York and New Jersey—Fair Thursday and Friday, with slowly rising temperature.

3 A. M.	45	70	4 P. M.	60	75
6 A. M.	45	70	6 P. M.	58	75
9 A. M.	48	69	8 P. M.	54	69
12 M.	54	72	11 P. M.	52	65

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 52; for the corresponding date last year it was 70; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 60.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 47; at 8 P. M. it was 56. Maximum temperature, 60 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 45 degrees at 7:30 A. M. Humidity, 67 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 52 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.17 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.20 inches.

A Stock Broker's Testimonial.

"When I retired I invested half of what I had in Guaranteed Mortgages—half in other securities. I would be better off if my whole investment had been in Guaranteed Mortgages, for I have suffered considerable loss through shrinkage of my other securities, while my mortgages are intact, and have caused me no anxiety. I have advised my son to put his surplus earnings into Guaranteed First Mortgage Certificates."

TRUMPET ISLAND—Vitagraph

"TRUMPET ISLAND" will be one of the talked about pictures of the fall and winter. It is easy to believe that Tom Terriss and his cast spent months and endured all manner of hardships that this might be a super-feature in fact as well as in the advertising. The "air stuff," as the climax of which an airplane is sent hurtling through an electric storm and ends with a crash in the treetops of a lonely island, however it may have been obtained, is much the most realistic of any similar scenes to which we have been witness. The story is a Gouverneur Morris romance, which is sufficient to stamp it with a certain originality and charm, and the scenario and titles are by Mr. and Mrs. George Randolph Chester, which is something of a guarantee of quality. A young girl, convent reared, falls in love with a soldier boy back from the wars. Her father decrees, however, that she shall marry one of those withered roues of the drama who can bring her wealth but no love. The soldier boy acquires sudden wealth and loses his head, and then seeks to recover his equilibrium by going to live on that good old abandoned island of the movie seas. The girl, dutifully agreeing to marry the roue on promise of being taken in an airplane on her wedding tour, from which she expects to dash herself to death, is eventually dropped at the boy's feet on "Trumpet Island," her memory gone but her sweet self miraculously preserved. Together the youngsters live through several happy weeks, and then they are found and threatened with a separation that you very well know never take place. A big picture in the true sense, and an interesting picture, rich in adventure, not too extravagantly illogical and pictorially arresting. Marguerite de la Motte is an attractive heroine, Wallace MacDonald a plausible and likable hero.

To Have Curly, Wavy Hair Like "Nature's Own"

Women who have trouble keeping their hair in curl, or of securing the desired wavy effect, will do well to try plain liquid sallmerine. They acquire such pretty waves and curls having all the appearance of "Nature's own." And the hair has such a lively lustre and wholesome beauty.

If one will get a bottle of liquid sallmerine at any drug store and follow the accompanying directions, she will be simply delighted with the result. This product is of course perfectly harmless and there is nothing sticky, greasy or unpleasant about it. The hair will be quite manageable, no matter in what fashion it is done up.

WALLSTEIN ASSERTS BUDGET IS PADDED

CUTS TO FOLLOW, HE SAYS

Enright Asks Split of $200,000 Fund, $100,000 to be Used for "Secret Service."

Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel to the Citizens Union, made the charge yesterday that the Hylan administration is padding the tentative budget figures for the purpose of cutting large sums out of it later so as to impress the voter with the cry of economy. He declared that the administration having got rid of the pay-as-you-go act by the same methods last year, it was now trying to get rid of the constitutional tax restriction which limits the city's taxing capacity to 2 per cent. of the city's taxable real estate and personal property values. He said:

"The Hylan administration is again this year deliberating upon outrageously padded estimates for the next budget. Upon the basis of staggering figures, such as could be submitted only by departments bent upon a course of wanton waste of the public moneys, the administration whines about the legal restraints, which, fortunately, still remain to save the city from ruin. The only purpose of the repeated Hylan objection to these restraints must be to prepare the way for getting rid of them. The situation is fraught with danger and it behooves the public clearly to understand the administration's 'game'."

Mr. Wallstein declared that the excess of the city's taxing capacity is not $25,000,000, as asserted by Controller Craig, but about half that figure and that it will be entirely wiped out when over $14,000,000 for salary increases is taken out of the budget.

Police Commissioner Enright sent a letter to the members of the Board of Estimate yesterday requesting that the $200,000 appropriated several days ago for "emergency investigation of crimes against the Government" be split into two funds of $100,000 each, one to be a contingency fund and the other to be used for the employment of "secret service." In his letter the Commissioner said that the vouchers for the latter fund "should not be subjected to public inspection, for the reason that the identity of the men performing this work should not be known except to the person in direct control and to the person who audits the bills."

Mayor Hylan declared that the Board of Estimate would designate the person to examine the vouchers of the secret service payroll. Controller Craig declared that the Corporation Counsel had held that the Police Commissioner was not required to disclose information concerning vouchers for money spent from the contingency fund.

When the question of park improvements came up for discussion by the Budget Committee yesterday, Controller Craig objected to any allowance for improving Riverside Drive. He said he did not think that "70 cents" should be spent there, notwithstanding the fact that an examiner had reported that some very necessary repairs should be made to certain sections of the Drive.

"Do you mean in front of Mr. Hearst's house?" asked the Controller, turning to the Mayor.

Pleas for an increase of 20 to 25 per cent. in the fund granted by the city annually to private charitable organizations were made before the board by representatives of several organizations. George S. Gillespie, speaking for the Catholic organizations, asked for an increase of 20 per cent. Judge Abram I. Elkus, representing the Jewish organizations, and William M. Powell, who spoke for the Protestant societies, asked for an increase of 25 per cent. Additional amounts for the Child Welfare Board were also asked. If the increase asked for is granted, the fund awarded to charitable organizations during the coming year will approximate $10,000,000.

OBREGON IN EL PASO, RECEIVED BY MAYOR

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 6.—President-elect Obregon of Mexico, who is making a tour of his country before assuming office on Dec. 1, crossed the International Bridge from Juarez this morning to this city, thus marking the resumption of railway passenger traffic between the two countries. The special train bearing Mexico's next President was the first passenger train to cross the border here in eight years. The El Paso Commission, headed by the Mayor, escorted the Obregon party within the city, the Mexican staff band leading the parade from the station to the Paso del Norte Hotel, where Obregon will stay.

El Paso is making a determined effort to show that good feeling prevails over the prospective settlement of Mexican difficulties. A committee has arranged several entertainments for the visitors covering each hour of the day, and on Thursday Juarez will entertain visitors from El Paso with a bull fight and auto races.

A luncheon was given to General Obregon today by the Kiwanis Club of El Paso, and replying to a toast in his honor Obregon spoke in favor of the most cordial relations between the two countries, and hoped that the entire Continent of America would always be free from war. He added that not through diplomatic relations only could such a friendship be established which would prevent future wars, but through the intermingling of peoples of these neighboring countries. He felt that meetings like this would prevent misunderstandings.

General Ygnacio Enriquez, who took office as Governor of Chihuahua yesterday, is said to be the first Governor ever to assume his post in that Mexican State after being elected by popular vote. Chihuahua has suffered more than any State of Mexico during years of revolution, and the people now are anxious to return to peaceful work, cultivate their farms and restore business, which has been stagnant for years.

Jenkins to Leave Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—William O. Jenkins, former American Consular Agent at Puebla, Mexico, who was kidnapped at Puebla a year ago and was released only upon payment by him of $150,000 gold ransom, has sent his family to the United States and is selling his holdings in Mexico preparatory to quitting the country, it was learned today at the State Department.

Fresh additions are constantly being made to this extraordinary sale from manufacturers who are being forced to take drastic measures in order to avoid being caught with large stocks on a fast lowering market. Months ago we forecasted a general decline and despite the apparent firmness of the wholesale market we refused to buy a dollar's worth of Fall goods. As a result we were able to take full advantage of the situation when prices fell abruptly, and as a consequence have been able to present our customers with values that are positively astonishing. You owe it to yourself to see these remarkable offerings—they are absolutely unmatched anywhere in greater New York today.

"Wesnit" Top Coats A lucky purchase. The same quality that retailed last season for $50. 100% all wool. $27.50

Note: —Due to our extremely small margin of profit on these Suits and Overcoats alterations will be charged for at actual cost of time involved in making them.
